

genera occur almost exclusively in the Gulf States and two, Callimantis and Bactromantis, are known only from Florida. Yersinia has a single species in Eastern Colorado and neighborhood. Nearly or quite all these genera are represented, often much more fully, south of our border, including several of our species.

VATINAE.

This subfamily is represented in the United States by only a single genus, Theoclytes Serville, a single species of which occurs along our southern border.
