

The Wind-Up.

Conclusion of the Big Sunday School Convention.

It Has Been a Great Success in All Respects.

Important Resolutions on Temperance, Sabbath Observance, Etc.

Active Work in the Plebiscite Urged—The American Delegates Thanked—Sunday Bicycling as a Social Evil Condemned.

A vivid recollection of the Provincial Sabbath School Convention, which closed last night, will be long retained by the delegation present. It was successful beyond the most sanguine expectations. Every meeting was largely attended, and the marked enthusiasm never flagged. Those who attended the convention learned many practical and useful lessons, and Sabbath school work throughout the Province—but more particularly in London—received a great impetus. Last night, as on the two preceding evenings, Dundas Center Church was crowded to the doors, and hundreds were unable to gain admittance.

Thursday Afternoon.
This session, which was very important, was opened by Rev. Ira Smith, London, with devotional service.

Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, Ohio, then delivered a 30-minute address on "Qualifications and Duties of County, City and Township Organizations." Although the subject was the least interesting of the convention, it was of great importance, as organization was the frame-work which held together the Sunday school work. The convention was but the means to an end. He emphasized the fact that the organization alone would do the work. The speaker mentioned five results of organization. Information would be one; the people must be informed or they will not co-operate. Every Sunday school in the Province of Ontario had more money in its treasury than would be the case if this Provincial Sunday School Association did not exist. Another result is agitation. A great many people are satisfied with their work. The enemy of the best is "Good Enough," said Mr. Lawrence. People should be stirred up and stimulated to better work, and made dissatisfied with their efforts, not by discouragement, but by encouraging them. "Show them the beautiful land across the river," said he, "and they will get out their boat and get there." Organization resulted in improvement and perpetuation. It perpetuates itself. Mr. Lawrence then referred to Wesley and Whitfield as equally great preachers, but the work of Wesley had a greater evidence in the world today, because he was a better organizer.

Mr. J. K. McDonald, of Toronto, president of the Children's Aid Society in Ontario, gave an address on "Debtors and Creditors." This was a subject, he said, on which a political economist could easily write a book. But it was very obvious that the same line as would a political economist, but say something of special reference to the association. He said he was not coming before them with a set speech, but to make a few practical remarks. The Sunday school work in this country is of great value to the speaker. It is a source of pride to him that the occasion of the proposed Dominion conference of Sunday school workers in this country. It is a source of pride to him that the occasion of the proposed Dominion conference of Sunday school workers in this country.

A DOMINION CONFERENCE.

THE LATE A. MURCHMORE.
This convention has been marked by profound grief of the decease of our late ex-president, Alex. Murchmore, of Ottawa. While humbly bowing to the dispensation of sorrow which his loss has entailed upon the Sunday school work, we loved so well, we desire to convey our sincere condolences to his widow and family.

EXPRESSING THANKS.
The cordial thanks of this convention are due and hereby given to the pastor and trustees of the Dundas Center Methodist Church for placing at our disposal their new, handsome and completely equipped church for the purposes of this convention. The local committee, to the hosts and hostesses of London for their generous hospitality to Rev. J. K. McDonald, M.A., Ayr; to Mr. W. H. Hewlett and the choir of the church; to the trustees of the other city churches placed at the disposal of the convention for departmental conferences; to the retiring president for his unceasing attention to the business of the association, and the urbanity of his conduct in the chair of the convention these two years.

THE LAST SESSION.
The evening session commenced by a praise service of fifteen minutes' duration, led by Rev. Robert Johnston, of St. Andrew's Church. At 7 o'clock Mr. Patterson took charge of the meeting. He announced that he had received a telegram from Hon. S. H. Blake, Q.C., stating that he was grieved to say that he could not be present. "Oh," said a number in the audience, giving unmistakable evidence of the sincere disappointment occasioned. Continuing, Mr. Patterson said they had expected to hear Mr. Blake's stirring words on one of the foremost questions of the day—Sabbath observance—and very much regretted his absence.

REV. J. L. GILMOUR.
Rev. J. L. Gilmour, B.A., Ph.D., Hamilton, gave an excellent address, marked by earnestness and the speaker's thorough study of child life. His subject was "The worth and the winning of a child." After mentioning the great importance of the work, he said: "The unit of enthusiasm is not a large school with a large staff of teachers and officers, and good and well supplied equipments, but it is the individual child that is there." Teachers should get away from the idea that numbers counted in the Sunday school, but should have a burning and ardent enthusiasm for the single child. He compared the development of a child to that of a new continent. As well might a man say "It's only new continent," to say "It's only a child." The child is worth saving, because it thinks more than grown people. I am speaking from a conviction," said Mr. Gilmour, "that all the great problems of life that come to adults come to the child before reaching 10 years of age. Problems of God, sin, self and future." In illustration the speaker told of a 4-year-old child who one day asked his mother if the sky was hard or soft. The mother, not knowing how another means of encouragement. Out of all the people in this Province only 25,000 had taken up and presented the work of home Bible reading. Two reasons he said why people did not take the matter so seriously were: because their time was short both for visiting and teaching, and because they were afraid that their efforts should result in failure; but self-sacrifice and persistence were the remedies for these. There were many people in this city, he said, as well as in Mitchell and other places, who never read a Bible and never went to church. It was no small matter to the church to have its people go about into the homes and encourage reading either by literature or any other means. It needed workers as well as talkers. He charged them not to neglect the home reading department of the church, and not to be stingy with it, as the church would find it a benefit not only in dollars and cents, but other ways as well. He closed by saying that thousands were now reading the Bible daily through the efforts of this department, and he advised every representative present to foster the idea of organizing a similar department in his or her church.

Rev. Louis C. Peake, of Toronto, read the following resolutions, which were all endorsed by the convention:

THE PLEBISCITE.
"We hereby affirm our abhorrence of the legalized liquor traffic, and our demand for its total suppression by statutory enactment as a just and proper measure in aid of all moral efforts for the abolition of intemperance and its attendant evils; and inasmuch as the Dominion Government has declared its purpose to submit the question to the vote of the electors of Canada with a promise of prohibitory response, we hereby request the Ontario Alliance to take such immediate and energetic action as may be necessary to insure a successful issue. We pledge ourselves to a hearty co-operation in the impending campaign, and call upon Sunday school workers generally to join with others interested in the matter to do all in their power to make the popular verdict emphatic and overwhelming."

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.
"This convention affirms its conviction that the sanctity and usefulness of the Christian Sabbath must be thoroughly conserved, and earnestly recommends the pastors and Sunday school and Bible class teachers of this province to lay broadly and deeply in the minds of their congregations and their pupils the true and eternal value of the Sabbath, and to guard it against all encroachments of Sabbath observance, and to direct them most carefully to the thought that it is easier to retain than to regain the Lord's day rest and worship. It views with alarm the breaking down of the old walls of Sabbath observance, as exemplified in the too great prevalence of Sunday bicycling, golf playing and other kindred amusements; also the threatened invasion of the Sunday trolley car, which is a menace to country roads and a direct blow at the Sunday rest of the working man. This convention also acknowledges with deep thankfulness the efforts hitherto made by the Provincial Day Alliance to hold firmly our Sabbath rest and worship, and also pledges itself to aid and encourage their continued effort to bring to a triumphant consummation the work which they have so well inaugurated."

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.
"We again express our pleasure at the reappointment of Rev. Dr. Fotts on the international lesson committee, and would deprecate any effort to do in any way materially change the scheme of a uniform lesson, which has been for so long a time successfully followed."

A DOMINION CONFERENCE.
"We believe the holding of a Dominion conference of Sunday school workers in this country is of great value to the speaker. It is a source of pride to him that the occasion of the proposed Dominion conference of Sunday school workers in this country. Do You Use It?

It's the best thing for the hair under all circumstances. Just as no man by taking thought can add an inch to his stature, so no preparation can make hair. The utmost that can be done is to promote conditions favorable to growth. This is done by Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, cleanses the scalp, nourishes the soil in which the hair grows, and, just as a desert will blossom under rain, so bald heads grow hair, when the roots are nourished. But the roots must be there. If you wish your hair to retain its normal color, or if you wish to restore the lost tint of gray or faded hair use Ayer's Hair Vigor.

the question would turn out, answered, "Soft." Then spoke up the little boy, "How do they get along with their legs sticking through?" Children not only bring to the world brightness, but they are educators. True, they learn from their parents, but the parents learn much more from the children—patience, faith, etc. "How much we seem to lose," said he, "when we grow away from the poetry of early years." Among the beneficial influences in their lives, bringing us back again to see these impalpable things. The child is a tremendously powerful mislaid key, through which little ones the primary teachers have access to people whom we as pastors cannot reach."

AT THE CONCLUSION OF MR. GILMOUR'S ADDRESS. President Patterson said that as the representative of the association, he was ready for an invitation from some place in which to hold the next annual convention.

Mr. Ball, of Hamilton, said: "We want you to come to Hamilton. It is ten years since you last visited us. He added that, if possible, they would go as well as London had done. Mr. Patterson said: "As a mark of the ambition of Hamilton, we are asked to meet there, and a direct soil for the Hamilton company today." THE CINEMATOGRAPE.
Drawing Enormous Crowds to the City Hall.
So much has been heralded about this marvelous exhibition that citizens were loath to believe it really genuine, but it commenced its short London engagement last Monday, and the opening was witnessed by fair audiences, who at once set their seal of approval on the merits of the cinematographe entertainment, and now London is, figuratively speaking, "cinematographic crazy." Of all the inventions that electricity and photography have given us, the cinematographe is pre-eminent. Compared to it, the X-rays and all the other "scopes and graphs are as naught!" This is what the New York Herald says.

Some of the pictures are not only wonderful, in an artistic sense, but they also exceedingly create. Take, for instance, the babies playing with their toys; nothing prettier nor so attractive can be imagined. The cinematographe, in short, is without doubt one of the greatest and most entertaining inventions that has ever visited London. In speaking of the cinematographe, the New York Times says:

"That the next year will see great developments in the wonderful process is assured, for, if necessity is the mother of invention, with 50 or 60 different makes of machines tumbling over each other in their haste for public approval, the chances are that some of them will show something original."

Will is puzzling imitators of the marvelous cinematographe—and all other machines are but mere imitations—how it comes about that before they begin to move all the subjects are absolutely still. In the theatre, the microscope, the zooscope, the two score other scopes, the subjects start with movement. The chief fault with the machine is that the views are too short. However, it is a brand new, up-to-date novelty—and all should go and see the cinematographe.

SHOE NAILS AS TEETH.
Barrie Advance.
Some weeks ago Mr. Whiteley, shoemaker, had a number of his teeth extracted. On Thursday last he was suffering great pain from what he supposed to be the roots of some of the extracted teeth, and he went to the dentist for a remedy for the pain, but as the dentist was out of town, he waited until the next day. When the dentist arrived at his shop and made a search for the supposed decayed teeth, to his great surprise he extracted two shoe nails, about half an inch in length, from Mr. Whiteley's gums. The patient says the pulling of the nails was as painful as the pulling of the teeth. As shoe-makers are in the habit of putting shoe pegs and shoe nails in the mouth, it is supposed that the two nails had worked into the gums, which was the cause of the pain.

BOSTON. MONTREAL. CHICAGO.

Born in 1793.

John Mitchell, of Dorchester, Celebrates His 103rd Birthday.

The Occasion of a Happy Family Gathering—Sketch of His Life.

A number of London relatives and friends went today to the home of Mr. John Mitchell, lot 11, con. 2, Dorchester township, to join that sturdy veteran in celebrating his 103rd birthday. For years Oct. 30 has witnessed a happy family gathering at the old homestead, and as the worthy centenarian becomes older and older, the greater interest attaches to the anniversaries. He is still in excellent health, and enjoys the use of every faculty.

Mr. Mitchell was born on Oct. 30, 1793, in the parish of Bellefleur, Banffshire, Scotland. He followed the occupation of a blacksmith in early life, and thus developed to an unusual degree a naturally vigorous constitution. In 1818 he married Jane Bruce, who was four years his junior, and who passed away many years ago.

A family of thirteen children were born to the couple, three of whom died before the family left Scotland in 1847. Mr. Mitchell was then 50 years old, an age at which people are generally settled for life and loth to pull up stakes. He settled at Pond Mills, where for four years, together with his sons, he conducted a smithy. The family then removed to the present homestead, lot 11, con. 2, Dorchester township, at that time a virgin forest.

A log house was of necessity their first domicile, but gradually the land was cleared and developed by the unrelenting energy of the settlers until it became productive enough to render Mr. Mitchell's later years comparatively free from care of toil. Three daughters, Ann, Jane and Ellen, live at home with the father and one son, A. son, Thomas, is married and has ten children: Mrs. Nixon, of Westminster, another daughter, has seven children, including three married daughters. The eldest son, Alexander, is 79 years old, and the eldest daughter 77. Mr. Mitchell is a Roman Catholic.

THOSE ASTOUNDING ADVANCES.
One evening a gentleman came home with a budget of news. An acquaintance had failed in business. He spoke of the incident as "deliciously sad." He had ridden up town with a noted wit, whom he described as "horribly entertaining," and to cap the climax, he spoke of the incident as "deliciously sad." The young people stared, and the oldest daughter said: "Why, papa, I should think you were out of your head."

"Not in the least, my dear," he said pleasantly. "I'm merely trying to follow the fashion. I worked out 'deliciously sad' with a good deal of labor. It seems to me rather more effective than 'awfully sweet.' I mean to keep up with the rest of you hereafter. And now," he continued, "let me help you to a piece of this exquisitely tough beef."

Adverts, he says, are not so fashionable as they were in his family—Boston Post.
