THE GUARDIAN 1924

Monuments -Headstones

If you want a first-class Head stone or Monument, send to

Chislett's Marble Works

We carry the LARGEST STOCK and BEST FINISHED WORK in the City.

Entire Satisfaction Guaranteed. Our Garving and Lettering pleases everyone. We are now booking orders for Spring Delivery.

DESIGNS and PHOTOS of our own work sent everywher FREE.

Write te

April19, 23

Chislett's Marble Works 108 Water Street, ST. JOHN'S P. O. Box 86

Newfoundland Government Postal Telegraphs and Cable Service

Covers the whole of Newfoundland with Telegraph and Telephone Service.

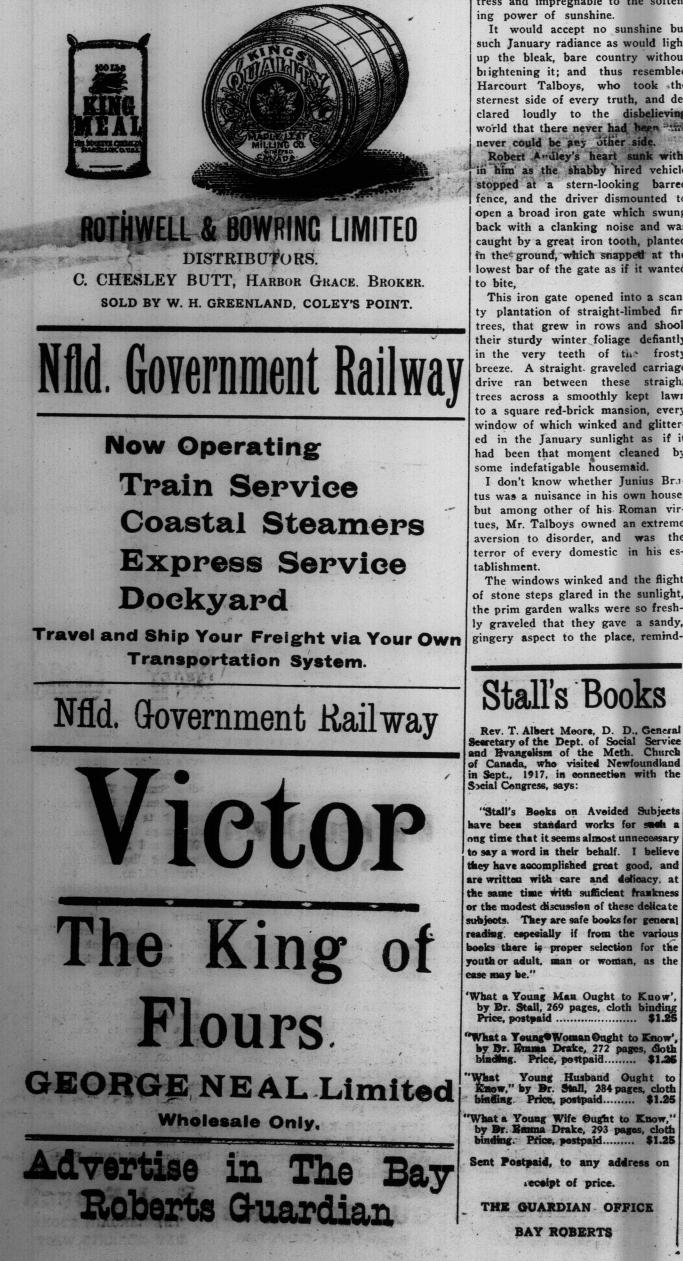

Has Wireless connection with Shipping, via Cape Race, Fogo at Wareham to take him over to striped linen jacket, which was eviand Labrador, via Battle Harbor.

Gives quick service to-Canada and the United States, and all benefits of reduced low rates fornight messages. Direct service to Great Britain at rates as low as 6 cents a word.

Earnings go to Newfoundland Revenue, and the business is cold blue sky. The horses' hoofs handled by officials sworn to secrecy.

> DAVID STOTT, Superintendent

G. W. LeMESSURIER Deputy Min. Posts & Telegraph

GRAHAM'S BORE

(Continued.

his wife from the first to the last square half-glass door of the hall hour of his brief married life. The was adorned with dark-green wood- voice of Mr. Talboys, love that is not blind is perhaps evergreens. only a spurious divinity after all; for 'If the man is anything like his; when Cupid takes the fillett from his eyes it is a fatally certain indication that he is preparing to spread his wings for a flight. George never forgot the hour in which he had first Maldon's pretty daughter, and how-a curve in any other man's greunds) ecome bewitched by Lieutenant uncanged and unchanging represented her in his heart.

break, and reached Wareham station hand. early in the day. He hired a vehicle

Grange Heath. The snow had hardened upon the frosty, every object in the landscape tleman send in his card? standing in sharp outline against the clattered upon the ice-bound road, house. the iron shoes striking on the ground that was almost as iron as themselves. The wintry day bore some wainscot shone with the same unresemblance to the man to whom Robert was going. Like him, it was sharp, frigid, and uncompromising; red-bricked mansion. likek him, it was merciless to distress and impregnable to the softening power of sunshine. brightening it; and thus resembled Harcourt Talboys, who took the Robert A sternest side of every truth, and de- while his name was being sul clared loudly to the disbelieving while his name was being world that there never had been that the Coorge's father. never could be any other side. Robert Andley's heart sunk within him as the shabby hired vehicle stopped at a stern-looking barred fence, and the driver dismounted to subject, open a broad iron gate which swung back with a clanking noise and was caught by a great iron tooth, planted in the ground, which snapped at the lowest bar of the gate as if it wanted to bite. breakfast hour.' This iron gate opened into a scanty plantation of straight-limbed firtrees, that grew in rows and shook their sturdy winter foliage defiantly breeze. A straight graveled carriage himself and everybody else. lrive ran between these straight trees across a smoothly kept lawn to a square red-brick mansion, every window of which winked and glittered in the January sunlight as if it had been that moment cleaned by some indefatigable housemaid. I don't know whether Junius Bratus was a nuisance in his own house, but among other of his Roman virtues, Mr. Talboys owned an extreme aversion to disorder, and was the terror of every domestic in his establishment. The windows winked and the flight to glance away from the master of to his fate?'

ing one unpleasantly of red hair. The lawn was chiefly ornamented with | dark, wintry shrubs of a funeral asdisplayed in such speeches as these, pect which grew in beds that looked cotton, which rolled away upon the like problems in algebra; and the polished oaken flooring beyond the George Talboys had never discover-ed it. He had loved and believed in sturre half glass door of the hall 'Sit down, Clara,' said the 'Sit down, Clara,' said the hard en tubs containing the same sturdy address his daughter, nor had his face been turned toward her when she rose. It seemed as if he had der that poor George and he parted.' known it by some social magnetism At the end of a scanty avenue the peculiar to himself; it seemed, as his carriage-drive turned a sharp corner, servants were apt disrespectfully to observe, as if he had eyes in the (it would have been made to describe back of his head.

and ran before the ltwer windows of 'Sit down, Clara,' he repeated, 'and ever she might have changed, the im- the house. The flyman dismounted keep the cotton in your workbox.' age which had charmed him then, at the steps, ascended them, and The lady blushed at this reproof, rang a brass-handled bell, which flew and stooped to look for the cotton. back to its socket, with an angry me-Mr. Robert Audley, who was una-

Robert Audley left Southampton by a train which started before day-break and reached Wareham station carpet, found the reel, and restored it to its owner; Harcourt Talboys A man in black trousers and a

laundress, opened the door. Mr. Tal-ground, and the day was clear and boys was at home. Would the gen-Robert waited in the hall while his card was taken to the master of the finished looking for reels of cotton, Lose it yet win it somehow.

with stone. The panels of the oaken | it?"

He waved his well-shaped hand compromising polish which was on everf object within and without the Some people are so weak-minded standing the gesture, brought forward a ponderous red-morocco chair.

as to affect pictures and statues. Mr. It would accept no sunshine but tical to indulge in any foolish fancies Harcourt Talboys was far too pracsolemn, that Robert had at first such January radiance as would light A barometer and an umbrella-stand thought that something extraordinup the bleak, bare country without were the only adornments of his en- ary was about to be done; but the truth dawned upon his at last, and Robert Audley looked at these he dropped into the massive chair. The linen-jacketed servant returnfaced man of almost forty, and had ged me to state that everybody in Dorsetshire was acquainted with his This was intended as a stately reproof to Mr. Robert Audley. It had. however, very small effect upon the young barrister. He merely lifted his ly as if he were taking a liberty in in the very teeth of the frosty eyebrows in placid deprecation of 'I don't belong to Dorsetshire,' he said. 'Mr. Talboys might have known that, if he'd done me the honor to exercise his powers of ratiocination. Drive on, my friend.' The emotionless man looked at Robert Audley with a vacant stare of joined. It was the attitude in which, unmigitated horror, and opening one had he been Junius Brutus, he would of the heavy oak doors, led the way into a large dining-room furnished Robert Audley been easily embaraswith the severe simplicity of an apart sed, Mr. Talboys might have sucment which is meant to be ate in, but never lived in; and at top of a table which would have accomodated ity upon an open gunpowder barrel

The lady half rose from her seat, letting her work, which was large and awkward, fall from her lap as The World Auxiliary Insu ance Corporation Ltd. British Fire Offices. That gentleman did not appear to Property insured at Tariff Rates, Losses Liberally and Promptly Settled. H. Maxwell Dawe staring at the proceeding with an ex There never was a goal worth getting but you nust work to attain. dently fresh from the hands of the pression of unmitigated astonishment. You must suffer and bleed for it, cling to your creed for it. 'Perhaps, Mr.-, Mr. Robert Aud- Fail and go at it again, ley!' he said, looking at the card which he held between his finger Success is no whim of the moment, no crown for the indelent brow and thumb, 'perhaps when you have You must battle and try for it, offer to die for it:

SUB-AGENT AT BAY ROBERTS. Bowring Bros. Ltd., St. John's, Nfld. AGENTS for NEWFOUNDLAND.

The Liverpool & London &

Globe Insurance Co. Ltd.

you will be good enough to tell me The Pathway to glory is rugged, and many the heart-aches you ll know The hall was large and loftl, paved to what I owe the honor of this vis- He who seeks to be master must rise from disaster. Must take as he giveth the blow.

> with a gesture which might have There's no royal righway to splendour, no short cut to fortune or fame been admired in the stately John You must fearlessly fight for it, dars to be right for it, Kemble; and the servant, under- Failing, yet playing the game.

Much as you long for it, man must be strong for t. The proceeding was so slow and Work is the door to success.

> HEALTH is the greatest blessing in the world If you are HEALTHY you can work hard but not other the house toward the female figure at the window. 'His sister, no doubt. He was fond of her, I know. Surely, she is not utterly indifferent as she did so, and dropping a reel of of stone steps glared in the sunlight, Harcourt Talboys. the prim garden walks were so fresh-Mr. Talboys was robed in a dresly graveled that they gave a sandy,

Stall's Books

Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., General Secretary of the Dept. of Social Service and Evangelism of the Meth. Church of Canada, who visited Newfoundland in Sept., 1917, in connection with the Social Congress, says:

"Stall's Books on Avoided Subjects standard works for such a ong time that it seems almost unnecessar to say a word in their behalf. I believe they have accomplished great good, and are written with care and delicacy, at the same time with sufficient frankness or the modest discussion of these delicate subjects. They are safe books for general reading. especially if from the various books there is proper selection for the youth or adult, man or woman, as the case may be."

otherwise. What a Young Woman Ought to Know' by Br. Runna Drake, 272 pages, cloth blading. Price, postpaid....... $1.25

What Young Husband Ought to Know," by Dr. Stall, 284 pages, cloth binding. Price, postpaid....... $1.25 What a Young Wife Ought to Know," by Br. Emma Drake, 293 pages, cloth binding. Price, postpaid....... $1.25

Sent Postpaid, to any address on receipt of price. THE GUARDIAN OFFICE BAY ROBERTS

Mr. Talboys, as the servant about to withdraw; 'Mr. Audley ed presently. He was a square, pale would perhaps like coffee.' the appearance of having outlived morning, but he glanced at the long every emotion to which humanity is expanse of dreary table-cloth, the silver tea and coffee equipage, the 'If you will step this way, sir,' he stiff splendor, and the very little apsaid, 'Mr. .Talboys wil! see you, al- pearance of any substantia! enterthough he is at breakfast. He beg- tainment, and he declined Mr. Talboys' invitation.

'Mr. Audley will not takek coffee, Wilson,' said the master of the house. 'You may go.'

The man bowed and retired, opening and shutting the door os cautious doing it at all, or as if the respect due to Mr. Talboys demanded his walking straight through the oaken panel like a ghost in a German story. Mr. Harcourt Talboys sat with his gray eyes fixed severely on his visitor, his elbows on the red-morrocco arms of his chair, and his finger tips have sat at the trial of his son. Had ceeded in making him feel so: as he would have sat with perfect tranquileighteen persons Robert beheld Mr. lighting his cigar, he was not at all proper national colorsdisturbed upon this occasion. The father's dignity seemed a cery small sing-gown of gray cloth, fastened thing to him when he thought of the about his waist with a girdle. It possible causes of the son's disapwas a severe looking garment, and pearance.

was perhaps the nearest approach to 'I wrote to you some time since, the toga to be obtained within the Mr. Talboys,' he said quietly, when range of modern costume. He wore he saw that he was expected to open the conversation.

a buff waistcoat, a stiffly starched Harcourt Talboys bowed. He cambric cravat, and a fultless shirt collar. The cold gray of his dressknew that it was of his lost son that ing gown was almost the same as Robert came to speak. Heaven grant the cold gray of his eyes, and the affectation of a vain man, rather than pale buff of his waistcoat was the the utter heartlessness which Robpale buff of his complexion. Robert Audley had not expected to ert thought it. He bowed across his find Harcourt Talboys at all like finger-tips at his visitor. The trial George in his manners or disposihad begun, and Junius Brutus enjoying himself. tion, but he had expected to see some family likeness between the 'I received your communication, Mr. Audley,' he said. 'It is among father anod the son. There was none. It would have been impossible to imother business letters: it was duly agine any one more unlike George answered.' than the author of his existence. Rob 'That letter concerned your son.'

There was a little rustling noise ert scarcely wondered at the cruel at the window where the lady sat, letter he received from Mr. Talboys when he saw the writer of it. Such as Robert said this; he looked at her almost instantaneously, but she did a man could scarcely have written not seem to have stirred. She was There was a second person in the large room, toward whom Robert quiet. 'She's as heartless as her father. glanced after saluting Harcourt Tal-boys, doubtful how to proceed. This expect, though she is like George, thought Mr. Audley. second person was a lady, who sat at the last of a range of four windows, employed with some needlework, the kind of which is generally called plain work, and with a large wickekr basket filled with calicoes and flannels, standing by her. The whole length of the roor divided this lady from Robert, but he could see that she was young, and that she was like George Talboys. 'His sister!' he thought in that one was wise. HARD WORK means SUCCESS but you will NEVE be able to work very hard without HEALTH and STRENGTH Robert had eaten nothing that If you require HEALTH and STRENGTH use

Brick's Tasteless Cod Liver Oil PRICE $1.20 BOTTLE Dr. F. Stafford & Son Wholesale, Retail Chemists and Druggist

St. John's, Newfoundland

NOTICE

To Owners and Masters of British Ships

The attention of Owners and Masters of British Ships is called to the 74th Section of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894."

75.-(1) A Ship belonging to a British Subject shall hoist the

(a) on a signal made to her by one of His Majesty's ships, including any vessel under the command of an officer of H's Majesty's navy or full pay, and

(b) on entering or leaving any foreign port and

(c) if of fifty tons gross tonnage or upwards, on entering of leaving any British Port.

(2) If default is made on board any ship in complying with this section the master of the ship shall for each offence be liable to fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

At time of war it is necessary for every British Ship to hoist that his icy stoicism was the paltry the colours and heave to if signalled by a British Warship; if a vessel hoists no colours and runs away, it is liable to be fired upon. H. W. LeMESSUEIER,

Registrer of Shipping

Thousands of Clever Women not seem to have stirred. She was Are giving their families delight of eating the bread made from

Munn, Wholesale Agent

(To be continued.)

THE GUARDIAN needs more subscribers. We want two or three hundred more in Bay Roberts and vicinity. We also want our friends in the United States and Canada to send us along additional subscripmoment, during which he ventured tions. Will you help-NOW?

