All expressed a sympathy in the work and aims of the society. The annual address was then presented, which gave an outline of what had been accomplished during the past, year. We sought powers in the legislative assembly in certain circumstances which were most essential, the bill that was brought on the thing of a notorious race out of Belgium where many of the horses participating had been contended for was cut away, and a mutilated and nearly useless bill was all that was left to us after this well fought battle. The principal clause that was left to us, "That under certain safeguards the society should have power to destroy animals suffering past recovery," answered every requirement, but the sting was in the tall, for the last clause of the bill which was added at the last moment. This act applies only to incorporate cities," rendered the bill nearly ussees. The committee do not accept the defeat, but are not sorry to find out from the division lists who are their real friends in the House. Our thanks are chiefly due to that good friend of the society, and of the power to destroy at this the operation to incorporated cities, we have dealt with cases such as the act contemplated. One occurred within the city, heing a bad case of glanders, the horse was ordered to be killed inmediately. In anoher case, outsde the city limits, the horse was ordered to be killed three months ago, but as the society had not the power to destroy it thing house again met he would introduce the horse seamed to be starving in a lot outside the city with no one to care for it. It is no doubt dead now. These facts are given to show how the wark that the society wished to carry out has been mendered incoperative by members who eyposed the bill, and, as it seems to us, might surely have known that such cases were much more likely to occur in places when he and his colleagues endeavored to be more divisionally and the power to destroy it that the thorse had the power to destroy it that the with the society wished to carry out has been mendered incoperative by members who eyposed the bill, and, as it seems to us, might surely have known that suc in part is as follows:

There have been 139 crueity cases dealt with, being rather in excess of last year. There have been seven cases taken into court, with the following result: Two were dismissed; one was withdrawn, the owner consenting to the horse being shot; one case was fixed $30 and another $25 for cruelty in overwhipping and beating horses; another was for overcrowding and neglecting ducks, fined $15; while the last was for improper care and starving dogs, fined $50, sentence suspended on the so-cledy undertaking to look after the case, which Dr. Hamilton kindly consented to

The society, to encourage drivers in the proper care of their horses, put forward at considerable expense a system of prizes which it intended to present on Thanksgiving Day. The committee thought it wise, seeing so many new laws have been added this year, to piace in the hands of the public, certainly at considerable expense, all the necessary information respecting the laws under which we art, with other information which we are under which we act, with other information which we hope will be of use to the public. And we hope shortly to be able to distribute literature, for there are a great many people with whom we can never come in personal contact, who can only be reached by well thought out articles being piaced in their hands. It is most essential that suitable literature should be provided and circulated amongst the young, as this is our only hope at present of reaching them. When we have this literature it will require a system, a fair amount of time and helpers to assist in its proper distribution.

In the city hall Wednesday the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals met in its sixth annual meeting. Journeys have to be taken, had not the government grant and for this and there willingness, as evinced by this evening sevening to distinct the country way, we desire to tender them our thanks. The work in this large district, which the government grant does not touch, has been carried on by the sympathy and ready help of the people. It becomes evident that as population increases the work of this society will increase and greater assistance be required, and this we are sure will be forthcoming if they feel the work for which we require funds is being accomplished.
