THE LABORER AND THE WARRIOR.

The camp has had its day of song,
The sword the bayoner, and the plant
Mare crowled out of rhyste too long
The plough the savil and the loca,
A! for upon our tented fields
Are freedom's heroes bred slone;
The training of the workshop yields
More heroes true than war has know

Who drives the bolt, who shapes the steel, May with a heart as valiant smile. As he wine sees a forman reel in blood before his blow of might: The skill that conquers space and thus. That graces life, that lightens reil, May spring from courage more sublime. Thus that which makes a realm its spoil.

Let hoor, then, look up and see
His craft no pith so honor lacks;
The soldier's vific yet shall be
Less honored that the woodman's see
Let art his own appointment prize,
Nor deem that gold or outward light
Can compensue the worth that lies
In tastes that breed their own delight.

And may the time draw nearer still,
When man this sacred truth shall heed,
That from the thought and from the will
Must all that raises man proceed:
Though pride may hold our estling low,
For us shall duty make it good,
And we from truth to truth shall go,
Till life and death are understood.

VARISTT.

The Value of Character, -Character, estid Dougles Jerroid, is like money; when you have streat lead of it you may risk some, for, if you hose it, folks still believe you have plenty to space. There is a large amount of keen and trutfell observation in this sentiment. How many in this world act upon it throughout their entire life, and get credit for the possession of a goodness they never scaily own, we shall never know, but we are at liberty to conjecture. There is no man so vile as to effect utter indifference to a reputation, nor in there any man to rich as to be able to disclaim all regard for money. But there is many a bankrupt who maintains himself in good stanting on change, and his esteemed a man of oppulence because he keeps his lowest to himself. It like manner there is many a benetions man who is considered a racide! of propriety, because undeterful in his criminality. His character has peen furnited here and there; but the aggregate has not being known, he is still presumed to be wouthly in his remaining store of unspyropristed to be wouthly in his remaining store of unspyropristed to be wouthly in his remaining, that if you give a dog a bad

Been forcelled here and there; but the aggregate loss not being known, he is still presumed to be worthly in lar remaining store of unspropriated facraticy.

It is an old asping, that if you give a dog a bad asme none can be converted of his honesty. In precuesty a similar amount, if you bestow on him a good one, it will be difficulty to so far divest him o. It as to make him worthless in the public opins. He who has the credit of being an early rise. He who has the credit of being an early rise. He who has the credit of being an early rise, any he in bed till ten o'clock and it discovered will be apposed to have done to by accident. He who is characterised as sleeping till noon, may rise by daybrosk, but he will find nobody to believe the act usual or voluntary. Sound reputation therefore, is a moral capital out of which insame.

It is only a rich man who can afford to wear a shabey coat. In him it looks like its a nobles and in the standard date as sign of increasing poverty, and his creditors will discover that they all need the samount of "that like bill" immediately. So, or man the translated into a sign of increasing poverty, and his creditors will discover that they all need the samount of "that like bill" immediately. So, or who have a loss of the sense of the sense. It is, in him, a manly independence, the outsaful proportion by the deview to outcobosate that uncharitable judgment.

It was a large assortment of Routledge's cheap matter and house or provided the surface of the sense o weathly in the remaining store of unappropriate control of the process. going to a party, improves her complexion, hair, and teeth, and supplies all deficiencies. The trade, according to the women's statement, bring her in not less them £500 a year, and what it enables her to afford may be inferred from the fact that the cause of action arcee out of a dispute about a lodging she had taken in Bond street, at the rent of three guineas a week. Leverson boasts of having all the orewned heads amongst her customers, not excepting her Majesty, whose patronage she pretends to enjoy. She says she has preparations for making complexion white or red at pleasure and carrier about beauty for sale in a small bon. We know nothing of this woman's preparations, but generally the medicine-chest is not for behind the paints, and too often the coffin brings up the tear. For Bradford losunges are hardly more deleterious than cosmeties.

If we could see the account of the number of women destroyed by deing violence to the complexion suited to them by nature, what a frightful revelation it would be. The law interposes to prevent suicide by jumping over a bridge, by the huife, platol, &c., and why not by the slower but not less sure process of the paint pot, or white lead? I magine a Dutchess brought up to Mary-lebone police officer upon a charge of attempting to destroy herself by spreading a deadly preparation on the reheals to pale the vulgar huse of health. Fancy her replies to the human magistrate's inquiries, what could have driven her to practions which she must know would shorten her life, and her confession that for a miserable vanity she was content to accept disease and death.—London Estambers, the most favourable is ween.
