

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The Royal Military College of Canada

THERE are few national institutions of more value and interest to the country than the Royal Military College of Canada. Notwithstanding this its object and the work it is accomplishing are not sufficiently understood by the general public.

The College is a Government institution, designed primarily for the purpose of giving instruction in all branches of military science to cadets and officers of the Canadian Militia. In fact, it corresponds to Woolwich and Sandhurst.

The Commandant and military instructors are all officers on the active list of the Imperial army, lent for the purpose, and there is in addition a complete staff of professors for the civil subjects which form such an important part of the College course. Medical attendance is also provided. Whilst the College is organized on a strictly military basis the cadets receive a practical and scientific training in subjects essential to a sound modern education.

The course includes a thorough grounding in Mathematics, Civil Engineering, Surveying, Physics, Chemistry, French and English.

The strict discipline maintained at the College is one of the most valuable features of the course, and, in addition, the constant practice of gymnastics, drills and outdoor exercises of all kinds, ensures health and excellent physical condition.

Commissions in all branches of the Imperial service and Canadian Permanent Force are offered annually.

The diploma of graduation, is considered by the authorities conducting the examination for Dominion Land Surveyor to be equivalent to a university degree, and by the Regulations of the Law Society of Ontario, it obtains the same exemptions as a B.A. degree.

The length of the course is three years, in three terms of 9½ months each.

The total cost of the course, including board, uniform, instructional material, and all extras, is about $800.

The annual competitive examination for admission to the College, takes place in May of each year, at the headquarters of the several military districts.

For full particulars regarding this examination and for any other information, application should be made to the Secretary of the Militia Council, Ottawa, Ont.; or to the Commandant, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. H.Q. 94-5. 9-09.

mine—would you like to come into the company on the ground floor?"

The audacity of the offer staggered even Amber.

"Whitey," he said admiringly, "you're the last word in refrigeration! Come in on the ground floor? Not into the basement, my Whitey!"

"Can I speak to you alone?" Whitey looked meaningly in the direction of Peter, and Amber shook his head.

"You can say what you've got to say here," he said, "Peter is in my confidence."

"Well," said Whitey, "man to man, and between gentlemen, what do you say to this: you join our board, and we'll give you £4,000 in cash and £10,000 in shares?"

Amber's fingers drummed the table thoughtfully.

"No," he said, after a while, "my interest in the Company is quite big enough."

"What company?" asked Whitey. "The River of Stars Diamonds, Ltd." said Amber.

Whitey leant over the table and eyed him narrowly.

"You've no interest in our Company," he said shortly.

Amber laughed. "On the contrary," he said, "I have an interest in the River of Stars Diamond Fields, Ltd."

"That's not my Company," said Whitey.

"Nor your mine either," said Amber.

CHAPTER XVII.

Whitey Has a Plan.

WHITEY met Lambaire by appointment at the Whistlers. Lambaire was the sole occupant of the card room when the other entered. He was sitting at one of the green baize-covered tables dressed in evening kit, and was enlivening his solitude with a game of Chinese Patience. He looked up.

"Hullo, Whitey," he said lazily, "aren't you going to dress for dinner?"

Whitey closed the door carefully. "Nobody can hear us?" he asked shortly.

Lambaire frowned. "What's wrong?" he asked. "Everything's wrong." Whitey was unusually vehement. "I've seen Amber."

"That doesn't make everything wrong, does it?" It was a characteristic of Lambaire's that alarm found expression in petulance.

"Don't bark, Lambaire," said Whitey, "don't get funny—I tell you that Amber knows."

"Knows what?"

"That we didn't find the mine."

Lambaire laughed scornfully. "Any fool can guess that,—how's he going to prove it?"

"There's only one way," replied Whitey grimly, "and he's found it."

"Well," demanded Lambaire as his friend paused.

"He's located the real mine. Lambaire, I know it. Look here."

He pulled up a chair to the table.

"You know why Amber came out?"

"With the girl, I suppose," said Lambaire.

"Girl nothing—" said Whitey. "He came out because the Government thought the mine was in Portuguese territory—your infernal compasses puzzled 'em, Lambaire, all your cursed precautions were useless. All our schemin' to get hold of the plan was waste of time. It was a faked plan."

"Fake! Fake! Fake!"

Whitey thumped the table with his fist. "I don't attempt to explain it—I don't know whether old Sutton did it for a purpose, but he did it. You gave him compasses so that he couldn't find his way back after he'd located it. Lambaire—he knew those compasses were wrong. It was tit for tat. You gave him a false compass—he gave you a spoof plan."

Lambaire rose.

"You're mad," he said roughly, "and what does it matter, anyway?"

"Matter! Matter!" spluttered Whitey, "you great lumbering dolt!

You blind man! Amber can turn us down! He's only got to put his finger on the map and say 'Our mine is here,' to bring our company to ruin. He's takin' the first step to-morrow. The Colonial Office is going to ask us to locate the River of Stars—and structures that may be on the said lands or any of them, and to sell, lease, exchange or otherwise dispose of the whole or any portion of the lands and all or any of the buildings or structures that are now or may hereafter be erected thereon, and to take such security therefor as may be deemed necessary; and to erect buildings and deal in building material; (b) To take or hold mortgages for any unpaid balance of the purchase money or any of the lands, buildings or structures so sold, and to sell, mortgage or otherwise dispose of said mortgages; (c) To improve, alter and manage the said lands and buildings; (d) To guarantee and otherwise assist in the performance of contracts or mortgages of persons, firms or corporations with whom the company may have dealings, and to assume and take over such mortgages or contracts in default; (e) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights; (f) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possessed of property suitable for the purposes of the company; (g) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, licenses, concessions and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights or information so acquired; (h) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same; (i) To take, or otherwise acquire and hold shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly benefit the company; (j) To enter into any arrangements with any authorities, municipal, local or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges and concessions; (k) To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and conveniences calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company (or its predecessors in business) or the dependants or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects, or for any exhibition or for any public, general or useful object; (l) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit the company; (m) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business, and in particular any machinery, plant, stock-in-trade; (n) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, railway branches or sidings, on lands owned or controlled by the company, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof; (o) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons; (p) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants and other negotiable or transferable instruments; (q) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof, for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company; (r) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals and by granting prizes, rewards and donations; (s) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company; (t) To do all or any of the above things as principals, agents, contractors, trustees or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others; (u) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects. The operations of the company to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "The Real Estate Corporation of Canada, Limited," with a capital stock of forty thousand dollars, divided into 400 shares of one hundred dollars each, and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the City of Toronto, in the Province of Ontario.
