

Mr. Aquin advised me that this was one of the few times that he had not kept a daily record of expenses while on the road, and from his experience in this matter, he certainly intends to revert back to his usual habit of keeping a record of each day's expenses at the end of that particular day.

It is quite certain that this will not occur again, especially if he has to take someone with him.

I trust that this will clarify the question, and might advise that both our copy of the Credit Voucher and the enclosed original have been corrected to read properly.

Payment is attached herewith for the difference in amounts due to the above corrections.
