Aldrich, Thomas Bailey. (cont., vol. I, add. j.b. 1836, at Portsmouth, N.H., passed a portion of his early life in Louisiana, and on the death of his father entered the counting-house of an uncle in New York City, where he remained three years and began to write in prose and verse for periodicals. His subsequent career has been wholly literary. He contributed to Putnam's Magazine, the Knickerbocker Magazine, the New York Evening Mirror, and other journals, and was for three years (1836-39) on the staff of N. P. Willis's Home Journal. He was editor of Every Saturday from its commencement until its close in 1874, and in 1881, on the retirement of Mr. Howells from the Atlantic Monthly, succeeded him as editor of that magazine, to which he had for some time been a frequent contributor. As only two of his earliest books are mentioned in vol. I, a full list is here subjoined. 1. The Hells: a Collection of Chimes. By T. B. A. N. York, 1855, 12mo. 2. The Hall of Babie Bell, and other Poems, Bost., 1856, 12mo. 3. Daisy's Necktie, and What Came of It, N. York, 1857, 12mo. 4. The Course of True Love never did run Smooth, N. York, 1858, 12mo. 5. Pampinea, and other Poems, N. York, 1861, 16mo. 6. Poems (two collections), Bost., 1863, 1865, 16mo. 7. Out of his Head: a Romance in Prose, N. York, 1864, 12mo. 8. Story of a Bad Boy, Bost., 1869, 12mo. 9. Marjorie Daw, and other People, Bost., 1873, 16mo. 10. Cloth of Gold, and other Poems, Bost., 1874, 16mo. 11. Prudence Palfrey, Illust., Bost., 1874, 16mo.

"A slight sketch of New England life, with numerous bits of satire and humor, in which many of the peculiarities of the people of that section are touched upon in the usual manner."—Nation, xix. 297.

"Mr. Aldrich is perhaps entitled to stand at the head of American humorists. The little work in this line he has hitherto done is singularly fresh, original, and delicate. . . . The only fault that can reasonably be urged against it is a certain measure of artifice. It is like a conjuring feat, which loses its interest after it has been often seen, and the mechanical trick on which it depends is discovered. In 'Prudence Palfrey' he attempts to employ in a long story a device which has told admirably in less important experiments. Once more he succeeds."—Atla, No. 341.

12. Flower and Thorn: Litter Poems, Bost., 1876, 12mo. 13. The Queen of Sheba, Bost., 1877, 16mo. 14. Miss Metabel's Son, Illust., Bost., 1877, 32mo. 15. Rivermouth Romance, Illust., Bost., 1877, 32mo. 16. (Trans.) Story of a Cat, by Emile de la Bedollière, Designs in Silhouette, Bost., 1879, 8vo. 17. The Stillwater Tragedy, Bost., 1880, 12mo. 18. XXXVI Lyrics and XIV Sonnets, selected from Cloth of Gold and Flower and Thorn, Bost., 1880, 16mo. 19. Prior Jerome's Beautiful Book, selected from Cloth of Gold and Flower and Thorn, Bost., 1881, 16mo. 20. Complete Poems, illustrated by the artist and Clay Club, Bost., 1882, 8vo. 21. From Ponkapog to Pesth, Bost., 1883, 12mo.

"It records the impressions of a literary American as to some of the differences between the Old World and the New. . . . Mr. Aldrich's eyes are primarily those of a poet. He has the poet's temperamental of a poet, and a poet's delicacy of expression. . . . A dash of somewhat extravagant humor is thrown in, but this often seems to be done in obedience to the fashion of the day."—Nation, xxxviii. 81.

22. Mercedes, and Later Lyrics, Bost., 1883, 8vo. "His poems can not be ranked as classics, but they often have the form of classics; they present such graceful thoughts, clothed in words so delicate, that criticism is almost disarmed."—Nation, xxxv. 469.

"The most pointed and exquisite of our lyrical craftsmen. . . . Though successful in a few poems of a more heroic cast, his essential skill and genius are found in bric-a-brac comparable to faultless specimens of the antique graver's art."—ST. NICHAS: Poets of America, p. 498.

"Mr. Aldridge is a safe guide. His pages are never wearisome even to the reader who was acquainted with cattle on a par with what Dr. Johnson declares was the extent of Goldsmith's knowledge of natural history."—Acad., xxy. 386.

"It has the merit . . . of being, so far as we know, the first account of the cattle business by the ranchman himself."—Nation, xxxix. 293.
