WAITING, THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Of all the lessons the young man who is to succeed in life has to learn, one of the hardest and most indispensable is, the lesson of patience. "To know how to wait," says DeMaistre, "is the secret of success." "He that can have patience," says

Franklin, "can have what he will." In business at the bar, in medical practice, in the ministry, and in every other calling, the secret of success is, not in brilliancy of talents, in promptness of action, or even in energy, needful as that is, but in ability to bide one's time. Time is an important element in all solid achievement. The fruits that are best worth plucking ripen slowly; therefore, the man who would win a great and lasting success must learn both "to labour and to wait." He must put his faith not in brilliant genius, in tricks and devices, in oc-

a winding, half-overgrown path amid a winding tangle of wild flowers. The young visitor exclaimed at their variety and beauty: "I mean to gather all I can carry when we come back and have a little more time," she said. "Better pick them now, if you want them," said the elder woman. "It isn't likely we'll come back this way."

been making boats out of pine bark. "This is the best one of all," said mother, as she cut a three-cornered piece of paper and slipped it on a toothpick. The toothpick just fitted in the tack-hole Dick had made at one end of the boat. "And can't you take me to Rock Stream now, mother," Dick pleaded.

FLOWERS BY THE WAYSIDE.

A young girl visiting the country was following the farmer's wife along

It was one of those simple, homely incidents that sometimes seem to epitomize life. We must pick now, if we want them at all, the flowers that God scatters along our way. The pleasant hours, the dear friendships, the offered confidences, the happy gatherings—all the brightness and blessings that we so often push aside, but mean to find leisure to enjoy some time—we must take them day by day as they come, or we shall lose them altogether; we can never turn back to find them.
