pleasent thought I wendered on, Beneath the deep weed's ample shade, fill suddenly I came upon Two children who had thither strayed.

Just at an aged birch tree's foot
A little boy and girl recland;
flis hand in hers she kindly put,
And then I saw the boy was blind.

The children knew not I was near,
A tree concented me from their view,
But all they said I well could hear,
And I could see all they might do.

"Dear Mary," said the poor blind boy,
"That little bird sings very long;
fay, doyou see him in his joy,
And a be pretty as his song ?"

"Yes, Edward, yes," replied the maid,
"I see the bird on youder tree."
The poor boy sighted, and gently said,
"Sister, I wish that I could see. "The flowers, you say, are very fair, And bright green leaves are on the And pretty birds are singing there— How beautiful for one who sees!

"Yet I the fragrant flowers can smell, And can feel the green leaf's shade, And I can hear the notes that awell From these dear birds that God has a

"So, sister, God to use is kind,
Though sight, dist? He has not given;
But tell me, are there any blind
Among the children up in Heaven ?"

"No, dearest Edward, there all see— But why ask me a thing so odd ?" "Oh, Mary, He's so good to me, I (hought I'd life to look at God?" E.e long, disease his hand had laid On that dear boy so meek and mild; His widowed mother wept and prayed, That God would spare her sightless child.

He feit her warm tests on his face, And said, "O, never weep for me, I'm going to a bright, bright place, Where Mary says I God shall see.

"And you'll be there, dear Mary, too, But, mother, when you get up there, Tell Edward, mother, that 'tie you— You kness I never saw you here!"

He spoke no more, but sweetly smiled Until the final blow was given— Until the final blow was given— Wien God took up the poor blind child, And opened first his eyes in heaven!

MISCELLANEOUS.

It does one good to look at you, as the fox said the chickens, when he found the wall too high with a windless."

A young gentleman was one day arranging music for a young lady, to whom he was paying his addresses, "Pray, Miss D.," said he, "what time do you prefer?" "Oh," she reflied, care, itsely, "any time will do—but the quicker the better."

The principal building here represented is the Institution for the Blind, behind which rise Dorchester Heights in very good pertiesly, "any time will do—but the quicker the better."

A man who heard of Dr. Johnson's fame, but then is seen moving into the area who had never seen him, was shown in his presence once, and not knowing him, made inquiries where Johnson was; Johnson in that he was bounded by Layfayette, Johnson was; Johnson in the control of which was laid by Layfayette, Johnson in Johnson in You Johnson; and that he was laid by Layfayette, stone of which was laid by Layfayette, whom men call illustrious or contemption to a goode. internal authority resides it would be impossible to say. When the laws and the people are left to take care of themselves, the former would indeed require to be just and equitable, and the latter exemplary and penceful, to prevent ebullition. There was a time when the strong arm of the kw, nided by military force, was scarcely able to restrain the licentiousness of popular violence; but now, happy time, the lion couches with the lamb the reins of government are thrown loosely on the neck of the hitherto innealy steed and the well-trained hack simbles away in his scentstomed pace, without danger of breaking his knees by a fall, or galloping out of his harness.

This beautiful work of art has become so very popular in Montreal.

Some idea of the cost of royalty in England may be formed from the fact that the Prince of Wales, though under 10 years of age, has a revenue of nearly $300,000 per annum from the Duchy of Corawall!—Guergo Times.

Note.—The knowledge the Americans have of English affairs is very limited. In the first place, the whole revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster amount to something less than £35,000 per annum, out of which certain officers, have to be p. id. Secondly, the Prince of Wales is not Duke of Cornnall, although in time he may be so created; his mother, the Queen, erjoys the income. Thirdly, the cost of royalty has nothing to do with the question; the property yielding the revenue being the private property of the Crown, by the same tenure that any other person or persons bo'd landed estates; the solitary difference being that certain droits are paid to the Duke of the contract of the contrac
