Carlisle

On Friday afternoon at one o'clock the neighbors and friends of James and Mrs. McCartney, upon invitation gathered at their home, "Mount Pleasant Farm," it being their first anniversary in their new home of "threshing and Harvest Home."

Mr. Norman Walker, proprietor of the threshing machine, acted as general superintendent. Mr. Cramer Zimmerman in an efficient manner acted as manager of the separator, while Mr. Stanley Gregson manipulated the water wagon. The guests according to their various abilities, were stationed in the different departments. George Chapman, a returned soldier, was honored by being head officer in the granary department, and was ably assisted by Roy McCartney, son of the host and hostess. In the straw department the host, assisted by Chas. Newell, Carlisle's post-laureate, built a stack that compare favorably with any other in the country. It was claimed by all present that it was much like a cistern, for the rain could easily get into it but would be impossible for it to get out.

Sir Wilfred Coverdale, who was nursing a baby boil on his wrist, was stationed at the helm and ably manipulated the blower. The mow department had as its superintendent, Chas. A. Prudham, and was ably manned by Clark Pegg, Frank Slow-up, Lloyd Fueter and Master Chas. Rolph.

About 6.30 the guests were ushered to the house by Chas. Rolph, who is a man generally noted for having a special capacity for eating pumpkin pie. The host and hostess threw the door wide open to the guests. The first social event of the evening was the gathering around a large tub and with heads bowed the guests washed off the dust that had gathered on their faces while indulging in the afternoon sports. The company then sat down to a sumptuous repast. After ample justice had been done to the inner man, Mr. Norman Walker acted as toastmaster, and a program of speeches was enjoyed by all.

It was regretted that three of the guests had to leave early, they having to attend an ensilage feed, or as some call it a corn roast, at John Harper's, of Harper's Corners. Roy Gladys, in excusing himself from the "At Home" said that he must go as he was to tramp corn at the ensilage feed and Lloyd Fueter was to handle the distributor while Stanley Gregson, who is a separator man, was to relax and slacken belts as the occasion required.

After singing Auld Lang Syne led by Cramer Zimmerman, the guests departed to their several homes.

Wm. McCrea, Judge
R. R. No. 1, Gulph

Last week 3000 trout from the Government fish hatcheries were placed in the Waterdown creek. Sometime ago Mr. J. F. Vance proposed the stocking of the creek with brook trout, and when the matter was brought to the attention of the Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Fisheries, he heartily agreed with the plan and made arrangements for sending the fish to Waterdown. Last week the little beauties arrived in town and were placed in the creek by one of the fishery attendants who was sent along for that purpose. The fish will be protected for the next two years from molestation. Signs to that effect will soon be posted along the stream.

The late Mr. Binkley was born in West Flamboro township 70 years ago where he followed farming until 33 years ago, when he was appointed Township clerk, in which position he served faithfully until last August when he resigned on account of failing health.

Besides his wife, he leaves four sons, George of Winnipeg, William, Arthur and Aley of Greensville, and one daughter, Mrs. Percy Morden of Carlisle.
