MANY MEN OF MANY KINDS

Tis as true in buying Gent's Furnishings as it is in all other things. Could we depict the different people we find shopping in this department, 'would fill a page. All, or nearly all, are aiming to make their money go farthest, and in this (as in all other departments) they find the right goods at right prices with us. Some are induced to visit the "something for nothing' shops with the promise of a sewing machine, bedroom suite or some other article with every purchase, but the sensible, practical kind who reason thus: "When they dance someone must pay the fiddler," are buying where they get best value for their money. Our aim has been to give the best possible value and the best goods. Don't you think we're on the right track?

The Old Oaken Bucket.

How dear to this I eart are the scenes of my childhood, When fond recollection presents them to view; The orehard, the meadow, the deep tangled wild-wood, And every loved spot which my infancy knew. The wide spreading stream, the mill that stood near it, The bridge and the rook where the cateract fell; The cot of my father, the dairy house by it And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well.

The old caken bucket, the iron bound bucket, The moss cover'd bucket that hung in the wel

The moss cover'd bucket I hail as a treasure,
For often at noon when return'd from the field,
I found it the source of an exquisite pleasure,
The purest and sweetest that nature can yield.
How ardent I seized it with hands that were glowing,
And quick to the white pebbled bottom it fell;
Then soon with the emblem of health overflowing,
And dripping with coolness it rose in the well.

How soon from the green mossy rim to reseive it,

As poised on the curb it reclined to my lips;

Not a full flowing gobiet could tempt me to leave it,

Tho fill'd with the nectar that Jupiter sips.

And now far remov'd from the lov'd situation, The tear of regret will intrusively swell; As fancy reverts to my father's plantation, And sighs for the bucket that hung in the well.
