MEETING A CROCODILE.

The Animal and the Hunters Were All

Taken by Surprise.

While looking for a hippopotamus it was the fortune of the author of "Uganda to Khartum" to encounter a organia to knartum to encounter a crocodile under somewhat unusual circumstances. He was following a fresh track leading through the dense undergrowth from the lake inland. Two men accompanied him, one carrying his camera and the other his second sun, while he shouldered his site.

his camera and the other his second gun, while he shouldered his rirle.
Suddenly I heard a rustling noise in front of me and realized that some creature was approaching, but what? It could not be the hippo, because there was no thunderous tread, but I had no time to think, for the creature, whatever it might be, was upon me in a second.

At two yards I discovered what it was an immense crocodile more than twelve feet long. I was right in its path, and there was no possible escape on either side, so I stood still with my rifle at shoulder and waited. The "crock" did not wait, however, and in some remarkable way it hustled me to one side, almost knocked me over, and endeavored to make his ways to the water.

ed me over, and endeavored to make his way to the water.

To dispute his right of way would have been folly. I realized only a horrible, soft, wriggling mass pressing against my legs in a most sickening way. Why he did not bite me I do not know. At first I thought he had done so as he brushed against my leg, but I found it was only his horny scales that scraped my shin. And he was more taken by surprise than I was and forgot all about his huge jaw and the lasting impression he might have made upon my legs.

after he had passed I turned to see how the men would fare. One had got back to the shore and so was no longer in view. The other man with the camera was the funniest sight. His head was stuck fast in the thick brambles, and his legs were in the air, the camera of course in the mud beside him.

I do not think the "crock" could have seen him, for he had literally taken a header into the bush, and his legs were far above the crocodile's jaws.

THE SNEEZE

In Past Ages It Played a Very Important Part In Life.

Many odd notions still exist as to sneezing, and some persons may be heard to exclaim "Bless, my soul, once!" "Bless my soul, twice!" and so on after each sneeze. But in next on after each sneeze. But in past ages the sneeze really played a very important part.

In ancient Greece the people saluted each other whenever any one present each other whenever any one present chanced to sneeze. As Xenophon was addressing the Greek army in a moment of defeat on a historical occasion a soldier sneezed. The lines of battle were formed at once, for the sneeze was deemed a good omen, and the Greeks were successful.

Among the Hebrews when a person sneezed the bystanders would say, "Tobinz challm"—"A long life to you."

"Tobins chailm"—"A long life to you." In India crimhals on the rack of torture have saved their own lives by sneezing accidentally.

A humorous story about sneezing is told in that wonderful collection of oddities, "The Arabian Nights." A schoolmaster was particular in teaching his pupils the value of politeness. He also told them that whenever he sneezed they should clap their hands and say, "Long live our noble master." sneezed they should clap their hands and say, "Long live our noble master."
One day master and pupils went out for a stroll. The air was hot, and all soon grew very thirsty. Great was their joy at last to find a well. But the bucket was at the bottom of the well, and so the schoolmaster went down to bring it up. The boys seized the rope and tugged for dear life. Just as the schoolmaster reached the top of the well he sneezed. The boys let go the rope and clapped their hands, shouting, "Long live our noble master!"

As for the poor schoolmaster, he fell to the bottom of the well, where he may be to this day, for all one knows.

Swords Bent Double to Test Them.
If you have an opportunity at any time of examining a sword such as is used in naval and military services you may notice that just below the hitt, an inch or two down the blade, there is a small disk of brass welded into the blade. The meaning of this brass might well escape any one not possessed of a well developed sense of curlosity. Swords are subjected to very severe tests before being issued, and this brass piece indicates that one of the tests to which the sword was subjected was to have its point bent right back until it touched the hilt at the brass spot. Swords that have snecessfully withstood this severe test are trustworthy.—London Chronicle.

Tested it.

"Willie," said the boy's mother, who was preparing to go out, "you mustn't eat that cake in the pantry while I'm gone. It will make you sick."

Three hours later when she returned Willie said: "You didn't know what you were talking about, mamma. That cake didn't make me sick a bit."

Too Willing.

Paris, Sept. 20.—(C. A. P.)—The Franco-Canadian treaty was signed yesterday at the Foreign Office by the British ambassador, Messrs. Fielding, Brodeur and Pichon'; Caillaux, Doumergue and Ruan. Hon. Messrs. Brodeur and Fielding go to London this week and will sail on the Victorian for Canada.

The same secrecy observed throughout the negotiations is still maintained regarding the provisions of the Franco-Canadian treaty, which, it is intended, will not be made known until officially communicated to the Canadian Parliament. If the negotiations have been anusually protracted, it is not owing to any particular divergence of views so much as to the minute attention of the Canadian representatives to details and precautions they had taken to prevent any chance of a future misunderstanding or misinterpretation.

Both Canadian and French delegates are much pleased at the result, which is hailed as a commercial success.

Wednesday evening Jason Mickerson and his 10-year-old son were drewned by the capsizing of a boat in this harbor.

Nickerson, who was employed in building the Government whart there, went after supper to the wharf in his skiff to get some log ends and took his little boy with him. Not returning in the morning, search began, and in a short time both bodies were discovered in about five feet of water. Father and son were brought to the surface clasped so tightly in each other's arms that it took quite an effort to separate them.

It is supposed the boat tipped over while taking in log ends alongside the wharf.
