

Old Age

It is too late! Ah! nothing is too late. Till the tired heart shall cease to palpitate. Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles Wrote his grand Oedipus, and Simonides Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers When each had numbered more than four score years; And Theophrastus at four score and ten Had but begun his "Characters of Men." Chaucer, at Woodstock with the nightingales, At sixty wrote "The Canterbury Tales." Goethe, at Weimar, toiling to the last, Completed "Faust" when eighty years were past. What then! Shall we sit idly down and say The night hath come; it is no longer day? The night hath not yet come; we are not quite Cut off from labor by the failing light; Something remains for us to do of dire, Even the oldest trees some fruit may bear. For age is opportunity no less than Youth itself, though in another dress; And as the evening twilight fade away The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day.

Henry W. Longfellow.

Jeff's Tough Lesson

Jeff was adopted at an early age by a young mining engineer in Mexico. Of course Jeff was a dog, and he was a great favorite, devoted and affectionate, and he was obedient too—that is, he was obedient with one exception. He always came when he was called, unless the commanding whistle or spoken order reached his ears at a moment when a frantic rabbit was diving into its hole. After that rabbit Jeff would go, regardless of anything his master said or did, and into the burrow as far as he possibly could. His chief ambition was to discover the contents of every hole in the ground.

Now, it is all very well to chase bunnies to their lairs, but in this country where Jeff lived, there were many other creatures not so attractive. In fact there were some most disagreeable and dangerous ones infesting that portion of the globe and Jeff soon found this out.

"Jeff" warned the dog's master, many a time, after Jeff had disobeyed a command to return, tempted beyond his endurance by a frisky bunny, "one of these days, old man, something is going to happen to you. You will meet a scorpion or a rattler, and then what?"

Then Jeff would apologize. He knew well enough that he was doing wrong. He would sit at his master's feet and look up with remorseful eyes as his tail went thump, thump against the ground to emphasize his repentant feelings. But although Jeff promised as best he could that if he were forgiven this time it would never happen again, it always did.

The scorpions, he admitted, were mean little varmints. He avoided them as well as he could. As for rattlers, didn't he know as much about them as his master? Didn't they always give warning with that nerve-racking buzz on the tip of their tail? Hadn't he jumped out of their way more than once, and so saved himself from coming in contact with their poisonous fangs, and couldn't he jump again in the face of danger. He wasn't old and stiff, and he wasn't going to get that way, either, at least not for a long long time. His master was young and quick and he was too so really he felt quite able to look out for himself.

Thus reasoned Jeff to himself and all went well for some time. So long as his master was near, the world was his. Jeff's motto evidently was, "Love me and the world is mine." His good disposition, his cute bright ways, as well as his cunning, intelligent expression made him a favorite.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and the condition is commonly worse in winter.

"I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, but have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Miss Frances Barr, Prescott, Ont.

"I had an attack of the grip which left me weak and helpless and suffering from rheumatism. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and this medicine has entirely cured me. I have no hesitation in saying it saved my life." M. J. McDosola, Trenton, Ont.

all over the mining camp. For, with the exception of that one fault mentioned, no one could ask for a better dog.

One hot, sunny morning Jeff and his beloved master were out looking for a nice fat rabbit to make a stew for dinner. Suddenly a bunny flashed across the desert on a run for its life, with Jeff in hot pursuit. His master called in vain. Regardless of the shrill whistle that summoned him back, Jeff dashed ahead, and, fortunately for the dog his master was not far behind.

The rabbit went headlong into a big hole, and in his hurry, with so many holes about, Jeff made a mistake in his calculations—or perhaps he was running so fast that he couldn't stop to turn into the right hole. Anyway, there were two holes close together. The bunny took one hole, Jeff took the other, thinking like the foolish pup that he was—that he had selected the right one. His body half disappeared and the next moment Jeff jerked back, and the air rang with a newly acquired college yell.

"Ki-yi-yoop-ee-yow-you-ki-yi!"

Jeff's master looked on half amused and really quite alarmed, too. Jeff was engaged in what looked like an imitation of an Indian snake dance. He danced and whirled around in frantic terror, while clinging to his nose was a big rattler, its cruel fangs deeply imbedded.

With a bound Jeff's master was beside him. He persuaded the dog to hold still, for now Jeff had braced himself and was pawing at the big snake's body. The young man aimed carefully and fired and that was the end of the reptile's career, but alas, Jeff's troubles had only begun.

Poor doggie! That dreadful poison from the rattler's fangs was doing its worst. His head as well as his nose began to swell alarmingly. His eyes were nearly shut, his "college yell" died to a moaning whisper. In less time than it takes to tell about it, he was a most pitiable object, and Jeff's master, bending over him, spoke only kind, soothing words, and hadn't even the heart to say, "I told you so!"

There was no time to lose, if Jeff's life was to be saved so with a vindictive glance at the big rattler that had done this damage to his pet dog, Jeff's master lifted him tenderly in his arms and fairly ran back to camp.

There was no sleep for Jeff or for his owner that night. And the dog weakly tried to express his gratitude, and knowing, as animals invariably do, that his master was trying to help him quietly submitted to being doctored.

His head had about as much shape to it now as a sausage. Hour after hour the young engineer worked with his suffering dog, applying remedies to combat the terrible rattlesnake venom.

At first it looked as though Jeff could not rally. Every member of the mining camp paid him a visit, and the wisest ones in desert lore shook their heads dubiously. Even Jeff's mournful eyes seemed to say:

"It's no use—this is the last of me!" But in answer to every moan he heard the sympathetic voice of the master he loved as he bent tenderly over him.

MEASLES LEFT BAD COUGH.

The after effects of measles may be far reaching, as the irritation of the respiratory passages is one of the characteristics of this disease, and very often those who have been robust, become delicate and liable to lung troubles, hence measles should never be regarded with indifference.

Measles are generally followed by an acute attack on the mucous membranes. The sneezing is accompanied with a watery discharge, sometimes bleeding from the nose, a cough of a short, frequent and noisy character, with little or no expectoration, hoarseness of the voice, etc.

Once the cough starts you should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, take a few doses a day and thus prevent bronchitis, pneumonia, or perhaps a consumption getting a foothold on your system.

Mrs. Oliver Kelly, Bellisle Station, N.B., writes: "Two years ago I had the measles, and they left me with a bad cough. I kept getting worse until at last I could not get my breath. My neighbor told me of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I sent and got a bottle, and before I had used it my cough was all better."

I find it a great family medicine for colds and coughs, and I now keep it in the house all the time."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 35c, a large bottle 60c, at all druggists and dealers. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Cheer up, old scout! You're going to pull through all right! And pull through he did, after many anxious hours. In a week Jeff was ready to go hunting again, a thinner and a wiser dog. The camp welcomed this re-appearance, and all the honors of a returned hero were heaped upon him. He had all kinds of choice bones to bury in a hundred mysterious spots, against that always to be dreaded hunger of the future.

"Wonder how he'll act about holes!" thought Jeff's master, as they started out together one day. He soon found out. Bunnies were thick and before long Jeff was busy in pursuit of one. It darted off towards its burrow and dived in head first. Close at its heels was Jeff when his master whistled. Instantly the dog turned and came trotting back, the picture of obedience and his master laughed at himself as he watched Jeff twisting himself almost in two in his endeavor to say that he had learned his lesson at last.

Jeff was entirely cured.

Every seat in the trolley was occupied, when a group of women got in. Going through the car to collect the fares, the conductor noticed a man asleep. Seizing him by the shoulder, he proceeded to shake him back into a state of consciousness!

"Wake up!" shouted the conductor.

"I wasn't asleep," said the passenger.

"Not asleep!" snapt the conductor. "Then what did you have your eyes closed for?"

"It was because of the crowded condition of the car," explained the passenger. "I just hate to see women standing."

Monsieur;

For 15 days in the month of January I was suffering with pain of rheumatism in the foot. I tried all kinds of remedies but nothing did me any good. One person told me about MINARD'S LINIMENT; as soon as I tried it the Saturday night, the next morning I was feeling very good; I tell you this remedy is very good. I could give you a good certificate any time that you would like to have one. If any time I come to hear about any person sick of rheumatism, I could tell them about this remedy.

Yours truly,
ERNEST LEVEILLE
