Our Little One.

There's a fresh little mound 'neath the willow.
Where at evening I wander and weep;
There's a dear, vacant spot on my pillow.
Where a sweet little face used to sleep;
There were pretty blue eyes but they slumber.
In silence beneath the dark mould;
And the little pet lamb of our number
Has gone to the heavenly fold.

Do I dream, when I sleep, I behold her.
With a beauty so fresh and divine,
And so close in my arms I enfold her.
I can feel her soft cheek upon mine?
Oh! so loving those gentle eyes glister
That my vision is lost in my tears,
And bewildered, enraptured, I listen
To a voice from the spirit's bright spheres.

There's a stillness in parlor and chamber,
There's a sadness in every room.
We know that the father has claimed her.
Yet all things seem burdened with gloom.
But I'll not be a comfortless mourner,
No longer brood over my pain,
For I know where the angels have borne her,
And soon I shall see her again.

The Bad Soldier.

In one of the barrack rooms in London, a soldier, not having much time to dress for guard, had cleaned his boots very well in front, but hardly at all behind. One of his chums, noticing this, said:

"Why don't you clean the backs of your boots, Pat?"
"Oh," said Pat, clapping on his helmet and hurrying out to the parade-ground, "a good soldier never looks behind."

In consequence the adjutant awarded Pat three extra parades, and a few days after his chum, seeing a great difference in his boots, remarked, "I thought a good soldier never looked behind, Pat."
"No," replied Pat, "but the adjutant does."

Refrigerators.

BY H. L. RANX.

The refrigerator is a handsome piece of furniture which will hold everything but ice. You can stuff a refrigerator full of early vegetables, fresh butter and skimmed milk and it will hold them until they all taste alike, but the minute that a 50-pound chunk of ice is placed inside it will fade away faster than the creamed chicken at a church supper.

Ice is placed inside of a refrigerator for the purpose of keeping things which otherwise would curl up and die before they could be worked into a semblance of food. The refrigerator accomplishes this by freezing the contents into a stiff and pallid state, in the meantime allowing onion to permeate the butter. People who like chop suey and Welsh rarebit do not object to this practice, but mingle rutabagas, Dutch cheese and custard pie in the same refrigerator with the utmost nonchalance.

Refrigerators are filled with ice by coarse men who weigh the ice with the human eye, seize it around the neck with a pair of tongs and jam it into the ice box with a noise like throwing a chiffronier down the back stairs. This is done as early in the morning as possible, so that the head of the house will have to get out of bed and let the ice man in. Most men call about 6.00 a.m. and try to batter down the back door while waiting for father to slip on his bath robe.

The ice compartment in a refrigerator is built to hold fifty pounds but by the time the ice man has dragged a chunk over the front lawn and broken it up on the kitchen floor it will look like a piece of nut coal. Some refrigerators have the habit of running out of zero weather just when the hostess is about to open a six o'clock dinner, compelling her to serve butter which gives way at the knee joints in a very humiliating manner.

READY-TO-WEAR HATS!

LADIES!

THE DEMAND JUST NOW FOR OUR

Ready-to-Wear HATS

is breaking all records.

A lady when in our store a few days ago said to one of our lady assistants, "You have the finest collection of Ready-to-wear Hats I have ever seen. I've just bought two and I am sending my friends back for more."

This is just one of the many favourable remarks made this season about our Ready-to-wears.

S. MILLEY.

The recent scenes in Belfast, born of political excitement, recalls a story of Lord Charles Beresford's illustrative of past political manners in Ireland. Lord Charles was contesting Waterford in '74, when an aged elector expressed dissatisfaction with the "new style" in electioneering. "Shure, ye're no man," he said. "The last time wan of yer family stud for the county it's up to me ankles I was in blood, and up to me brains in whiskey; but sorry a drop of ather I've seen this time."
