Carling street's mill of justice ground exceeding slow this morning, at noon and this afternoon, and a few fines were ground out to customers of the mill. At 10 o'clock a goodly crowd was in attendance, but as the court dragged on to noon hour the number of attendants began to dwindle, and by 1 o'clock, when it was decided to exclude spectators for an immorality case, it was found that there were only about two to order out of, the room.

From 10 o'clock until the factory whistles blew evidence was being heard in a case of an alleged breach of the Ontario temperance act. A citizen was arrested and brought to court for having a bottle of whiskey in his workshop. In this matter the deputy magistrate decided to reserve judgment.

Then a citizen, charged with driving past a standing street car while it was taking on and letting off passengers, was discussed. Next followed a $2 fine on a motorist, who did not have his autolights burning during the hours of darkness on a recent evening.

A case of assault was adjourned, and a man fined for cruelty to a horse. Another case of assault was dismissed and the plaintiff ordered to pay the costs of the matter, because neither party appeared. It required three hours to dispose of these cases, and there was yet two more to be heard.

Teeth Lost and Found.

At Portheawl, a few years ago, a distinguished visitor, believing he had swallowed four artificial teeth, sent for a doctor, and was in violent agony, until someone found the missing teeth on a table, whereupon all pain left him. Then there was the case of a woman named Lemaitre at the Cochin Hospital in Paris, who imagined that she had swallowed a live animal and suffered torment. Her pains went on for years, Dr. Richelot had his ideas about her case. He put her under the influence of chloroform, made a trifling cut on her filesh, and as she came round showed her a small lizard. She believed the reptile had been tormenting her, and recovered perfect health. But the lizard had been bought from a shop by Dr. Richelot for his innocent deceit.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Trading in wheat was much broader on the board of trade today, prices opening ½c off to ¾c up. Active selling forced a break of ½c off from yesterday's finish, but early offerings were readily absorbed by the pit element, and prices advanced sharply 1¾c oved the early low. Selling continued, however, and other setback was recorded at the end of the first hour. Corn early displayed some firmness, opening ½c off to ½c higher than yesterday's finish, but showing an advance in the first hour. The market later broke sharply, and at the end of the first hour was back to opening figures. Oats jumped a shade to Ic up. There was little change in prices early, except that May jumped 1c and maintained it during the first hour.

there is ample justification for the title. Since March 9 last, when a political feud broke out among two factions there have been twelve murders, whose sole motive was political. It is possible that another murder committed Sunday afternoon, of which a woman was the victim, may have found its inspiration in the same source.

Not even in the mountains of the south, the peculiar home of the feud, have so many killings been committee within an equal period of time.

The feud originated in a difference of opinion between Ald. John Powers and Anthony D'Andrea, an Italian leader The ward was not big enough for both men, whose ambitions clashed and their followers entered on a vendetta, re-markable for its cold bloodedness and
