mate cellapse of the Brotherhood. He talks this way:

Well, it's rather early to forecast, and you know the adage of the old hen and her eggs. My opinion, in a nutshell, is this: The welfare of the clubs and organization is lost in the individual player's interest. The result of this will be either the organization will go up or the player must relinquish his stock and his special rights to the capitalist, thereby returning to the old regime. Either of these conditions must take place. Why? The Brotherhood people have had their eyes opened lately to the fact that the player has too much power in his own hands. He is not only the player with a salary but also a capitalist in his organisation. This is an excellent condition if properly used. There's the first pitfall. This power is taken advantage of by the player. He intagines himself stockholder, manager, captain and player. He will not make room for another player better than himself, and with what result? The organisation will find, if it exists, that it will have to carry a steadily increasing load of dead material. The player will not retire without giving trouble, notwithstanding what is said to the contrary. This is a self-evident truth in baseball history. Experience has taught the older organisations the truth of it.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and naturation, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr., Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors wills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladles are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly hourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with bolling water or milk. Sold only in packets, by grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO.,
