This is a story of Paris in 1593, full of dash and spirit natural to the violent times, to the clash of faiths, and narrating a fierce rivalry for the hand of the beautiful Rose of Lorraine.

"The first edition was one hundred thousand, unprecedented even in this high tide of popular novel."—Toronto Globe.

"By all odds the best story of the year."—Commercial News.

"The best piece of historical fiction ever produced by an American."—The Club Woman.

"It keeps the reader breathless with eager interest"—Bookseller and Stationer.

"It palpitates with life in every page."—Hartford Courant.

"The equal of the ablest work of Weyman or Conan Doyle, and surpasses their best in its portraiture of women."—San Francisco Chronicle.
