died feet in breadth, and all the rest of a corresponding proportion. : How far this will be accompanied with adequate difpatch, is another question, as the incredulous among us are fometimes hardy enough to declare, that ten times Arength would not be able to finish it in

as many years.

Invariably intent on exploring a country, from which curiofity promifes to many gratifications, his Excellency about this time undertook an expedition into the interior parts of the continent. party confifted of eleven persons, who, after being conveyed by water to the head of the harbour, proceeded in a wellerly direction, to reach a chain of mountains, which in clear weather are discernable, though at an immense distance, from some With unheigths near our encampment. wearied industry they continued to penetrate the country for four days; but at the end of that time, finding the base of the mountain to be yet at the distance of twenty miles, and provisions growing scarce, it was judged prudent to return, without having accomplished the end of the expedition which had been undertaken. To reward their toils, our adventurers had, however, the pleasure of discovering and traverting an extensive track of ground, which they had reason to believe, from the observations they were enabled make, capable of producing every thing, which a happy foil and genial climate can bring forth. In addition to this flattering appearance, the face of the country is fuch, las to promife fuccess whenever it shall be cultivated, the trees being at a confiderable diffance from each other, and the intermediate space filled, not with underwood, but a thick rich grafs, growing in the utmost luxuriancy. I must not, however, conceal, that in this long march, our gentlemen found not a fingle rivulet; but were under the necessity of supplying themselves with standing pools, which they met with in the vallies, supposed to be formed by the rains that fall at partia" cular feafons of the year. Nor had they the good, fortune to fee any quadrupeds worth notice, except:a few kangaroos? To their great surprise, they observed indisputable tracks of the natives having been lately there, though in their whole route none of them were to be feen; nor any means to be traced, by which they could procure subfificace so far from the feathore.

wOn the 6th of May the Supply failed. for Lord Howe's Island, to take on board Turtle for the fettlement; but after waiting there (exeral days was obliged to reum without having feen one, owing, we apprehend, to the advanced leafon of the year. Three of the transports also, which were engaged by the East-India Company to proceed to China, to take on board a lading of tes, failed about this time for Canton.

The unfuccefsful return of the Supply cast a general damp on our spririts, for by this time fresh provisions were become scarcer than in a blockaded town. The little live stock, which, with so heavy an expence, and through fo many difficulties, we had brought on thore, prudence forbade us to ule; and fifth, which on our arrival, and for a short time after had been 💝 tolerable plenty, were become so icarce, as to be rarely feen at the tables of the first among us. Had it not been for a firay kangaroo, which fortune now and then threw in our way, we should have been utter strangers touche taste of fresia food.

Thus fituated, the fourvy began its ufu- * el-ravages, and extended its baneful in fluence, more or less, through all descripes: tions of persons. Unfortunately the elemlent vegetable productions of the country are neither plentiful, nor tend very effectually to remove this disease; and the ground we had turned up and planted with garden feeds, either from the nature of the foil, or, which is more probable, the lateness of the featon, yielded but a feanty and infufficient supply of what we flood fo greatly in need of.

During the per lod I am defcribing, few enormous offences were perpetrated by the convicts. A petty theft was now and then heard of, and a spirit of refractory fullennels broke out at times in fome individuals; one execution only, bowever, The fufferer, who was a very took place. young man, was convicted of a burglary, and met his fate with hardiness and infentibility, which the groffest ignorance, and most deplorable want of feeling, along

'Hours of festivity, which under happier skies pass away unregarded, and are soon configued to oblivion, acquire in this forlorn and distant circle a superior degree of

acceptable importance.;

On the 4th of June, the anniverlary of the King's birth-day all the officers not on day ty, both of the garrison and his Majetty thips, dined with the Governor.
