"A Brace of Partridges" has been here before, and has been pronounced "a bird of a show," aitho not in the least gamey. It is two seasons since it was presented at the Grand Opera House, and it will be remembered from the fact that it served to introduce to Toronto playgoers the best English light comedian who ever visited America, Mr. H. Reeves-Smith. Mr. Charles Frohman brought Mr. Reeves-Smith to America, and the tour of the comedian in "A Brace of Partridges" was so successful that try as he would Mr. Sheppard could not secure a return engagement that season, the star being forced to return to England to fill engagements there. When the present tour was broached, Mr. Sheppard was successful in securing a contract, calling for the appearance of Mr. Reeves-Smith in the same comedy, for a week at the Princess, and he considers that the engagement is one of the best that he will have to offer his patrons this season. The comedy itself, which is by Robert Ganthony, is already fairly tory of Music. Sittings will be allottel to the chorus members and reserved seat clecks issued therefor, as was done last season. Each member will also be given a chorus register number, a plan which greatly facilitated the expeditious keeping of the roll book last year. Among the compositions to be taken up at the first relearsal will be Mendelssahn's splendid 114th Psalm for double choir; the hrilliant and dramatte march and chorus from the third act of Biaet's "Carmen," besides a number of novelties not before taken up by any local society. Notwithstanding the receipt of numerous requests from patrons of the society who are desirous that some of last season's numbers should be included in this year's program this season, it has been decided not to repeat any of the music of the last concert at the concert to be given by the choir in January next. Sullivar's beautiful madrigal, "I Hear the Soft Note," which was one of the society's successes during the season of 1896, will, however, be taken up for study this year in response to the desire of many of the members of the Mendelssohn Choir of the novelties to be taken up this season may be mentioned Lloyd's fine pastorale, "The Rosy Dawn," for eight-part chorus, which made a great hit at the Cheltennam Musical Festival of 1897, for which occasion it was specially composed. Elgar'; stirring chorus, "It Comes From the Misty Ages," from "The Banner of St. George," will also be included in this year's work."

Some of the doctors, notably Dr. Wasdin, are inclined to believe that President Mc Kinley was shot with poisoned builets. This is not proved. The only way in which it can be proved is by examination of the remaining bullets, and particularly of the bullet which struck the President in the breast. But the President would have died of his wounds if the bullets were perfectly clean. His system did not possess the vitality to repair the damage done to his vital organs. This does not mean that the President's system was in bad condition, but only that his vitality was condition, but only that his vitality was low, or, in other words, that he had small recuperative powers.

London, Sept. 14.—Next to the attack on the President and the suppression of Anarchy, the subject one hears most in people's mouths is once more the war in South Africa.

Of course interest centred in Lord Kitchenge's last proclamation, which, it was consumed to the manifest itself.

The Missing Bullet.

When the President was shot he received the best possible surgical attention at the earliest possible moment. The surgeons exhausted all the resources of their science and skill. After that they had to depend upon nature coming to their assistance, and nature falled them. The complications which followed the mending of the President's wounds were, the doctors confess, fully beyond their ken. The gangrenous affection did not manifest itself. best that the will have to offer his patrons this season. The comedy itself, which is the president and the suppression of Anarchis by Robert Ganthony, is already fairly by Robert Ganthony, is already fairly well-known and indeed Mr. Reeves-Smith needs no introduction to the patrons of Mr. Sheppard's theatre, for thousands of people witnessed his presentation of the dual rotes of the Partridges here two years ago. The State of the service of t first poisoned by Czolgosz, the assassin. Conditions Never Met With Before

Dr. Mynter, who was in attendance upon the President almost from the moment he was struck down, said: "The assassin's bullet, from what our examinations demonstrated, passed first thru the abdomen, then thru the front and back of the stomach. From there it tore thru the mesentery of the colon transversum, notched off a corner of the left kidney and passed thru the rear wall of the peritoneum. After that it disappeared in the oneum. After that it disappeared in the nuscles of the back, and we could get to trace of its resting place. It would not have been possible to cut in and but never before have I found that conditions developed such as have come up in this case. From the point of entrance of the ball to where it disappeared there had developed a gangrenous course. There was no peritonitis.

"You ask me if the bullet was poisoned?" I must tell you that I do not know. A there is this gangrenous course, such as neither I nor any of the other surgeons attending the President had ever encountered. I cannot account for it. ered. I cannot account for it.

"The President's stomach was amply capable of retaining what food was given to him, but the gangrenous spots in the wall of the organ were working the mischief. Had he survived the night, I am satisfied that to-day would have found these mortified portions falling away, dropping the contents of the stomach into the abdomen, and then death would have ensued quickly.

"Most assuredly the solids given him worked not one whit of harm. We only permitted him to have a few nibbles of toast, that he might chew on them and remove the secretions from his tongue. It was absolutely necessary and worked no injury. The coffee was beneficial, what little he had of it. I give coffee as a stimulant where people suffer from heart trouble."

Never an Impulse Toward Recovery

performed the operation on President Mc-Kinley immediately after the shooting, and who was principally in charge of the case during the President's prostration, said that the autopsy showed two unquestionable facts:

First, that the President never had the slightest chance to recover, and Second, that the surgical steps taken immediately after he was shot were what might have saved his life under favorable conditions. Dr. Mann said that the President's hurt

Dr. Mann said that the President's hurt was one that under nearly any circumstances would be fatal. In the case of a young man in perfect health and vigor the same prompt surgical attention after the same injuries might save life.

'The evidence we find after the autopsy," said Dr. Mana, "is to this effect. Even the first impulse toward recovery never existed in the President's case. The bullet wound showed absolutely no intention to heal. Nature did absolutely nothing to mend the damage. The bullet punctures in the stomach were held together by the sutures, preventing the escape of foreign matter into the addominal cavity, but the tissues had shown no disposition to unite. The President's death was due to the poison developed by the gangrenous condition of the bullet wound. The poison was absorbed into the system, and killed just as surely as would poison taken by the mouth. There was no high inflammation. The constant low temperature, of course, demonstrates that, and there was no evidence of peritonitis or septicemia. I can only say that the President was in a low contonitis or septicemia. I can only say that the President was in a low condition, and repair by nature consequently did not follow his injury.

"I do not mean by that that the President was not physically strong. The con-dition I define is different from physical no recuperative powers. It was found that his heart was rather thin. I mean by that that, like any other muscle of the body, which is not kept at a proper development by exercise, it lacked Not a Question of Cigars.

Not a Question of Cigars.

I asked Dr. Mann if it is true that the President died simply from heart failure.

"No," said he; "that was not the cause of death. As I said a few minutes ago, the cause of death is absolutely plain. It was gangrenous poison. Many a man has a heart like President McKiniey. Any man who leads a sedentary life gets 'short of wind.' That is due to the fact that his heart, not being sufficiently ever that his heart, not being sufficiently exer-cised, is more or less thin."
"It is said," was suggested, "that Presi-dent McKinley was a great smoker, and that the sudden cessation of the use of tobacco affected his heart action."
"I think that is not true," said the doctor. "We did speak at one time or another of allowing him to smoke, but

We will advance you hear that the bullets of Anarchists are poisoned. It would be very difficult, however, in this case to determine whether or not the bullet which killed the President was poisoned. The poison, if there was any, might be alkaloidal, it might contain some germ, or it might be still of some different nature. Nothing but a chemical and bacteriological or chemical analysis of the bullets which remained in Czolgosz's weapon could determine, and I do not think that would interest any one. Dr. Wasdin, at the autopsy, spoke of the possibility of a poisoned bullet, and seemed strongly inclined to believe that the fallure of the wounds to heal might be due to that cause. I do not know that any examination of the remaining bullets, I believe, remained in the weapon after it was wrenched from the assassin's hand."
