

THE TORONTO WORLD

ONE CENT MORNING PAPER NO. 83 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

THE ISSUE THAT WILL DIVIDE THE PEOPLE IN ONTARIO.

"Bystander." In The Weekly Sun of yesterday, discussing the political situation in Ontario, gives it as his view that there may be differences of opinion about such matters as the pulp question, but that of broad and pronounced division of principle there is none as between the followers of Mr. Ross and the followers of Mr. Whitney. The Globe, in its leading editorial yesterday, also discussing the same question, says it believes in party government when the conditions of party government can be fulfilled, and goes on further to say that the parties ought to be divided on some definite issue, but that, in the meantime, the Globe certainly thinks that there are strong arguments for suspending party government until some definite issue is presented, and is ready to give their confidence without reserve to one party or the other.

The sum and substance of these two statements and the articles in both papers is that some kind of coalition government ought to come into existence forthwith in connection with the affairs of Ontario. The World takes direct issue with these contentions. There are today issues of the most important kind before the people of Ontario, issues of far greater moment than have ever raised heretofore, issues which concern the welfare of the people of this province as individuals, and as organized communities under our municipal law. The supreme issue, to our mind, in the province to-day, and the legislature must settle it, concerns corporations owning and controlling monopolies of one kind or another, but especially owning and controlling monopolies in connection with the railways and the various kinds of public utilities.

The government of this country, we admit, has largely fallen away from party lines, and has gone into the hands of politicians, who are willing, if allowed to hold office, to serve the corporations. This is largely true of Federal affairs, but it is still more true of provincial affairs. The corporations are prepared to help to keep in office any set of politicians who will further their ends, and they are willing to subscribe and they do subscribe, to the policies of the municipal ruling party, and they are prepared to smother the opinions of the party in opposition in the same way. In effect, the new game of the corporations, as played at Ottawa and Toronto, is to work their schemes through by chloroforming the opposition or a portion of it, and then working the government in power to hand over franchises, subsidies or concessions to the corporations. As the people are not yet adepts in smothering any effort to enforce the law against them or to compel them to live up to their agreements. The corporations, as a matter of fact, have ruled in the Province of Ontario ever since Sir Oliver Mowat went out of office. They have set out to get, and they have obtained, all sorts of concessions, subsidies and privileges, and the rights of the people have been trampled on, and especially the rights of the people as organized municipalities. The Attorney-General of the province has abandoned the functions of his office as the guardian of the municipal rights of the people, and has become the champion of the monopolies and corporations. Premier Ross has promised time and again to take the side of the municipalities, but has failed every opportunity offered to do so. There have been times when the opposition should have championed the cause of the people, and they neglected to do so. So pronounced, however, has this state of affairs become that a reform must take place, and the people must divide on the issue, whether the corporations own and control the railways and the various kinds of public utilities, or whether the legislature is for the people. As the Premier recently said, they are "creatures" of the legislature, and every legislature ought to be sufficiently strong, sufficiently upright and sufficiently consecrated to the public good to resist them and compel them to do justice to the people. The people of Ontario have to-day this issue before them: there must be a division on this issue. Public men, public newspapers must be for the people or for the corporations. Nothing would suit the corporations better than to have a coalition government which would say there was no issue worth talking about and the corporations would willingly assist such men to remain in office. So bad has this state of affairs become that the people will no longer tolerate it, and the day has now arrived when some man, some party, some section of the legislature, must raise the issue and fight it to a finish.

Just let us take one or two instances. The Ross government, representing the largest consumer of gas in Toronto, has been assiduously for years whenever a call was made for a solution of the trouble between the city of Toronto and the Consumers' Gas Company. There is no issue between the two parties and the only power that can compel a performance of the agreement is the legislature. Mr. Ross has evaded doing so; the corporations have been too much for him. Another issue that no one but the legislature can settle and nobody can settle in the public interest but the legislature is the issue of one street railway company to another, as, for instance, the Toronto and Ontario Street Railway Company. Mr. Ross so far has left it to be dealt between the different companies and the municipalities. He has not had the courage to introduce and provide a general law which would regulate the matter and secure the public interests in spite of the corrupt representatives who so often vote away municipal rights and privileges. In their capacity as aldermen, or members of municipal councils, the rights of the citizens of Toronto and the city of Toronto people who wish to enter this city by trolley line should not be jeopardized by corrupt deals between their representatives for the time being and the companies. The legislature of Ontario should make a clear-cut law regulating this matter and fully protecting the people. Still another instance is the generation and distribution of power in connection with Niagara Falls and other large sources of supply. The city of Toronto, which should not today go in for the distribution of power if it wished to, by reason of the failure of the government and legislature to sufficiently protect the interests of the municipalities. Street railway fares and trolley lines all over the province are subject to regulation by the legislature, but never yet has the legislature had the courage to do so. The question in a thorough manner and in the interests of the public. The electric companies, who are the cause of every municipality in the province. They control newspapers, they control legislatures; they oppose those men who take the side of the people in any issue, and they are always willing to let their tools remain in office and help to keep them in office if they will only do what they ask them to do, and they are always willing to let their tools remain in office and help to keep them in office if they will only do what they ask them to do, and they are always willing to let their tools remain in office and help to keep them in office if they will only do what they ask them to do.

As we said before, this state of affairs must cease. The people have come to see that the great sources of corruption to-day in public life come from the corporations, as was pointed out in the New York papers the other day in connection with the disclosures in the city of St. Louis. Corruption funds do not come from the politicians, but from the corporations. Their heads high in the community, who profess to be proud of their money, whether on one side or the other, but who have the hardihood to hold up their heads and deplore the miserable character of aldermen and members of the legislature that the country is sometimes cursed with, and how can franchises be monopolized when the representatives of the people are so corrupt? The representatives of the people are not corrupt, but they are corrupted by rich men connected with corporations holding franchises, and the legislature was a character of that we would like to exist—to recognize that the corporations—such of them as were allowed that the legislature has full power over them and intends to regulate them and to compel them to treat the people and the municipalities fairly.

We have indicated above just the merest outline of what the great issue is. It is the issue of the day. It comes before the people of the Province of Ontario today in a way it never came before before, and, as we said, men must take one side or the other. A new election may be very near at hand. The air must be cleared, and if we are going into an election let us do it on one great issue. And the sooner men will in politics in Ontario find out where they are and what they will do with issues of this kind the sooner will the air be cleared. But to our mind there is need of a division on this point, a clear-cut division, too, and in consequence thereof there must be party lines and a party issue. It may not mean an issue as between Conservatives and Liberals; it certainly means an issue as between those who are for the people and those who are for the corporations. Whether the cleavage on this will be the same as the cleavage on what has hitherto been called party politics, that is, Liberals and Conservatives, straight, remains to be seen.

We therefore take no stock either in "The Globe" or in "Bystander." There is an issue, and we have tried to present it. The representatives of the people are not corrupt, but they are corrupted by rich men connected with corporations holding franchises, and the legislature was a character of that we would like to exist—to recognize that the corporations—such of them as were allowed that the legislature has full power over them and intends to regulate them and to compel them to treat the people and the municipalities fairly.

THE DEMAND FOR BEEF CATTLE. While Canadian cattle do not bring such high prices as American animals, the outlook for the cattle raising industry, even on this side the line, is admittedly bright. For many years the cattle trade was at a low ebb, and poor markets ruled in Canada, the United States and England. The result of the poor values obtainable was a decided lowering of the quality of beef produced. As the Farmers' World remarks, "Unfinished animals were sent forward. Dealers and butchers murmured and complained to no purpose. The real reason was that not that they could not send forward a superior and finished article, but that it did not pay.

But some months ago the tide turned, and there now seems to be a decided scarcity of beef in all parts of the world. And the situation is further improved by the fact that, owing to the general growth of wealth, almost everywhere there has sprung up a heavy demand for the higher grade of beef animals. The inwardness of the situation will be clearly indicated by the statistics quoted yesterday by The World to the effect that the cattle receipts at Chicago during the first seven months of the current year fell off to the extent of 181,000 head, and that the United States exports of live stock and their products decreased during the same period by no less than $15,684,650. We are face to face with a heavy demand, both on this continent and in England, for good beef cattle at high prices. As our contemporary remarks: "A careful survey of the situation will convince any fair-minded man that further demands will be made on the other settled portions of Ontario for the production of beef. Canada can certainly increase its supply to a very large extent without inconvenience, and doubtless this will be done if the market for the present prices prevail."

Those who have waste lands need not hesitate, therefore, in seeking to stock them with a better grade of beef animals. In many of our dairy districts a very large number of calves can be furnished suitable for this purpose. If, however, our dairymen undertake to supply this demand, which would mean an additional return of say from $12 to $15 for each cow, it must be understood that it can be accomplished only by the use of superior beef stock.

The present prices of beef cattle are good, and in these the farmers should find encouragement to improve their standard of output by careful breeding and feeding.

WILL PEOPLE HURDLE TOGETHER?

If the coal strike continues, one of its effects may be to crowd the people of Toronto together into fewer houses than they now occupy, and the same statement applies to other towns and cities of Ontario and Quebec. The price of coal may soar much higher, or it may be supplied in so short a time that there will not be enough around. In the one case two or three families might be compelled for economy's sake to share one house, and in the other the law of absolute necessity would operate to the accomplishment of the same result.

Or the fuel shortage may result in less radical changes in residential conditions. It may cause many families now keeping house to close up their homes and go boarding for the winter. In fact, we are not sure that some people have not already resorted to this method of circumventing the inconvenient crisis.

COMING OF THE "NATURAL WAIST." The men who are interested in woman's apparel may be divided into three classes—those who make money out of it, those who spend money for it, and those who have no financial interests involved but who regard the female garment with an artistic or artistic eye.

Of course all men of rational mind and artistic sense belong to the latter class, and whether they contribute to the wealth of dressmakers or not it is very natural, then, that the proceedings of the National Dressmakers' Association, which is now holding a convention in the Elgin Building, in connection with wide popular interest, and that the present tendencies toward the graceful and simple draping of the female form, as revealed by the models displayed, is hailed by masculine humanity with delight.

This tendency is plainly disclosed in the evolution of the natural corset, which, of course, is the natural waist. We are drifting gradually and delightfully toward the Greek model of the corset, and the more so, the more the corset is compared to the complex, properly embellished creations of a few years ago. The curves of feminine beauty are brought out in graceful relief instead of being hidden under monstrous mountains of flounces and ruffles.

The passing of this instrument of torture and the coming of the "natural waist" is a task which is truly thankful. It is doubtful if anyone of rational mind ever truly admired the tightly laced corset. It is a relic of a bygone age in manner and dress has always stood for the highest attainment in female ugliness, and it always will.

PLANS OF LABOR CHAMPIONS. Trades Congress Devotes Much Attention to Resolutions to Bill. Berlin, Ont., Sept. 17.—This was a day of resolutions for the Trades and Labor Congress in session here. All the forenoon was taken up in hearing them read, and the Committee on Resolutions has not yet brought down its report. It is not known how many of the thirty-three Congress will endorse. Among them are: One opposing and condemning all Sunday excursions by rail or water; to secure all Federated Labor Unions in the Dominion to be chartered by the Dominion Congress; to secure the appointment of plumbing inspectors and ensure sanitary plumbing; to oppose the compulsory arbitration bill; to urge the Railway Act to compel companies to equip their trains with air brakes and automatic couplers and ladders on the cars; to urge the Fisheries Act in British Columbia administered so as not to interfere with the Indians in their mode of earning a livelihood; to have the government appoint a commission to hear the Indians' grievance regarding their encroachment on their territory, and to give the western fishermen a fair wage; to urge the securing of Oriental immigration legislation; to condemn unscrupulous garlanding of the streets; to amend the Factories Act; to have the Quebec House lease regulations annual; to have larger wages for railway men; to have the union label legalized; to secure a twenty per cent increase in the carriers' wages; to urge union men to abstain from joining militia, except when the country is invaded; to urge Congress' sympathy to the Canadian Northern Railway strike in Manitoba; to place the Gurney Foundry Company on the unfair list; to abolish property qualifications for aldermen and city councillors; to have weekly pay for government employees.

A public meeting was held in the opera house this evening, presided over by J. A. Platt of Hamilton, at which different labor leaders addressed a crowded house. Musical entertainment was furnished by the Boys' and Girls' Choir, 80 strong, of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, in charge of Rev. R. Von Pich.
