Berlin Military Critic Combats Assertion of Lloyd George to Cheer Up Countrymen.

BERLIN. Feb. '.—In a review of re-cent military operations, Major Moraht, the military critic, states that the tactical successes attained by the Ger-mans on the western front near Neuville and south of the Somme, have shown that their supposed numerical inferiority on this front, as asserted by the French, has not interfered with the success of German attacks.

"As to David Lloyd George's assertion regarding the entente's superiority in the supply of ammunition in the western front," the summary continues. 'Major Moraht declares this to be absolutely unfounded. He, likewise, re-calls that Lloyd George's declaration that ahe war was now only beginning for England, was one that had been voiced several times already during the course of the war by Premier Asquith, Lord Kitchener and others. The critics affirms that in his view the British will only be able at the most to make good the losses caused by casualties, which, by their own admission, had reached 400,000 on the western

"A German squadron during the night of Jan. 31-Feb. 1 dropped a large number of incendiary bombs on and near the Liverpool and Birkenhead docks, harbor and factories; also on the Manchester Iron Works and Blackblast furnaces and on the Nottingham and Sheffield factories and blast furnaces, and, finally, on a large number of industrial establishments on the Humber and near Great Yarmouth (Norfolk). At all these ploces powerful explosives were observed and most serious fires followed. On the Humber one battery was silenced.

"The airships were heavily fired upon from all points, but were not hit. All the airships, in spite of the enemy's efforts, returned in safety."

With one exception last night's raid caused the greatest number of casual-ties of any since the beginning of the Oct. 13, 55 persons were killed and 114 were wounded, according to an official statement. Unofficial reports said the mated by returning travelers that between 150 and 300 persons were killed.

The territory roughly outlined in the official statement of last night might be construed as including the City of Manchester, which is 30 miles from the eastern coast of England, to the east of Liverpool, and 194 miles northwest of London. It is a city of vast manufacturing interests, a number of fine public buildings, and a population of over 750.000.

The London Globe says it would appear that the ostensible object of last night's raid was an attack upon certain munitions factories, and adds:
"The moral of the raid seems to be that unless Zeppelins make for some quarter where special preparations have been undertaken we have practically no defence against them."
