

he dandy said to his new coat, when the rain began to fall.

Interesting to Physiologists. There's a man up town whose forehead is so high, that he is obliged to go up garret to put his hat on.

Friend, said a Quaker to an insulted neighbor, if a man spits in thy face, I advise thee not to go to law about it; but let him have a quid of thy tobacco, if thou chewest the weed. Give him a quid pro quo.

Will you take a pinch? said an acquaintance, offering his snuff box to a fishmonger, No I thank you, replied the latter, "I have just had one from a lobster.

Excitements. A man drinks three glasses, and he is in a state of excitement. A person receives a box in the ear, and he is excited. You stick your elbow into a fellow boarder's soup at table, and he is excited. You call a man a thief or a liar, and he is excited. You kick him with a sharp toed boot and he is excited. You pull his nose and spit in his face and he is excited. In short, you can do nothing in the world without creating excitement; save one thing: hire a man to saw wood by the day, and such an example of coolness and Christian patience as he will exhibit, is enough to kill old folks.

Reason in Madness. It is reported that a man in Badiam made these observations: "We that are locked up here are only called mad because our madness does not happen to agree with that of the rest of the world. Every body thinks his neighbour mad if his pursuits happen to be opposite to his own. His neighbor thinks the same of him, but then these two kinds of madness do not interfere with each other. Now and there comes an eccentric man, who taking a just view of things, thinks them all mad—him they catch and lock up here. That's my case.

Right and Wrong. An ill-natured cynic said that the charity of a beneficent neighbor was induced by a wish to be extolled. Ay, Sir? replied the object of his charity, if we see the hand of a clock go right we are sure the mechanism inside cannot be going very wrong.

They have a corn-plaster here that will draw off a dandy's boots, which is the hardest kind of drawing there is.

The Picayune states that a witness on being asked whether a man on trial was drunk or not, replied that "he never would say a man was drunk for certain, except he saw him try to light his pipe in the river."

Arbroath. A girl in this place, while breaking up some eggs for domestic purposes, to her utter astonishment, found in one of them a copper penny of George III, dated 1799. How it came into that situation, remains to be discovered. The egg was apparently sound, and perfectly fresh.

A man, on passing through a field of corn the other day, said "o a friend, whenever you see a herd of cows all lying down and one of them standing up, that one is sure to be a bull.

MARRIAGE. With all its trials and pains, man knows no happiness until he marries; let him possess a woman of sense and virtue, and of whom he himself is worthy, and he will feel a solid and permanent joy of which he never was before sensible. For, as somebody says, the happiness of marriage, like the interest of money, arises from a regular and established fund; while unmarried libertines live upon the principal and become bankrupt in character and respectability. To be sure (and as the same authority tells us) uninterrupted happiness, no man can or ought to expect. Life is no security; fruits do not spring spontaneously from the earth, as they do in the garden of Eden; nor does manna drop from the clouds as it did in the wilderness. But as a scheme of solid comfort, matrimony affords to well regulated minds a double share of pleasure in prosperity, and a relief and support in sorrow and adversity.

A friend had in his service a cook that could neither read nor write. One day coming to his door her perceived his cook taking in from an itinerant book vender some monthly numbers of a work. Curiosity was excited to know what could possibly be the subject of the cook's erudition, so her master carelessly asked her to let him look at the publication. "Maisy, blushing, said that she wished to improve in her kitchen business, and she had been taken in nearly three months, in parts Cook's Voyages.

At a pleasant dinner party, Mrs. Mountain the Vocalist, (who was a very lively person) asked Mr. David Grove whether he was any relation to the GROVES of Blarney? Grove gravely replied that he had but one relation, and that was his brother John.

Mr. A. was at a pleasant convivial party, and having done some thing contrary to the rules of the Society, he was called to order by the chairman, who jocosely reprimanded him at some length, and concluded by observing that he feared the exhortation had produced but little effect on the person addressed, in fact it was "casting pearl before swine." A. rose with a humble demeanor, modestly apologised for his misbehaviour, and perfectly agreeing with the chairman in his last line, beg leave most respectfully "to cast HIMSELF before THE SOCIETY."

The world may have pleasures all sparkling and gay, As the crystals of snow which the branches adorn, But the first breath of sorrow will sweep them away, While the heart like the tree is left bare and forlorn.

COLLATIONS.

Wellerisms. Less of your jaw and more of your legs, as the negro said, when the angator seized him.

Now my patriot spirits rise, as the pauper said over the bottle, on election day.

I wonder you're not tired of working, said the loafer to the cider barrel.

Can't say I admire your style of acting, as the landlady of the ale house said to the strolling player when she caught him stealing her spoons.

There's more truth than compliment in that, said a culprit, when he was adjudged to be a notorious thief.

Lets take care not to hurt one another, as the dunghill cock said to the jack ass, when he got into the stall.

I didn't think you'd have been so hard with me, as the shark said, when he bit the anchor.

You're after my own heart; but its really a pity you drink, as
