

HE SUES MURDERER CALLED SPY

Publisher Posted as Czar's Agent in New York--Wants $100,000 from Revolutionist for Slander.

New York, April 27.—The news flashed through the cafes of the East Side yesterday that a court of honor had found Alexander M. Evalenko, president of the International Library Publishing Company, and one of the best known Russians in New York, guilty on a charge brought by Vladimir Bourzoff, the revolutionist and spy catcher, that Evalenko was for years a spy in New York for the Russian department of war.

A little while later the Yiddish newspapers were straining their lungs and shedding with both hands papers which announced in big type that Alexander M. Evalenko had brought suit in the United States Circuit Court against Bourzoff for $100,000 alleging malicious slander.

Abraham Cahen, editor of the Jewish newspaper Forward and a close friend of Vladimir Bourzoff, telephoned late in the afternoon to Dr. Paul S. Kaplan.

Performed Miracles. Mr. Cahen explained what a great man Bourzoff was, how Bourzoff, with the bravery of a lion and the cunning of a fox, performed miracles for the revolutionists in the red days in St. Petersburg; how he spotted spies who were plotting with the revolutionists and telling tales to the police.

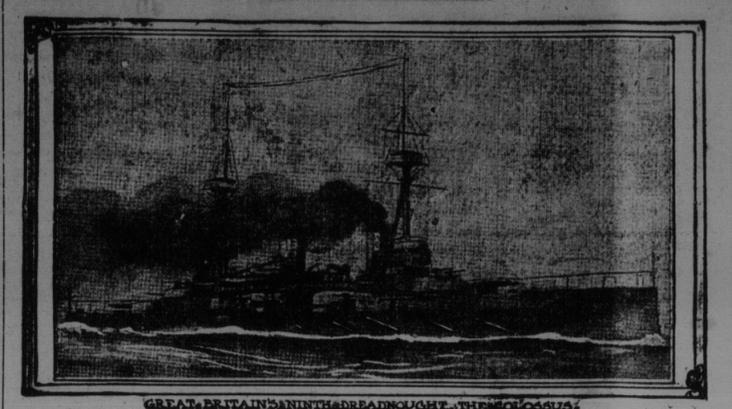

Well, the great man came to America several months ago to turn up Russian police agents that were at work here. He had the names of fourteen that he wanted to find and expose. Soon after he arrived stories began to be circulated on the East Side that Alexander Bourzoff was in the pay of the Czar's police and that men had suffered in Russia because of Evalenko.

One of two East Side newspapers printed guardedly without mentioning Evalenko's name. But the rumors grew and spread. The substance of all of them was that an acquaintance of Bourzoff in the Department of Police at St. Petersburg had permitted Bourzoff to make a copy of police records, records which showed that Evalenko had been acting as a Russian spy.

Evalenko is a man of substance. He is a big chap, bald, large eyed and smooth faced, who goes about exceedingly well dressed. He publishes at 102 West Thirty-eighth street books by Russian authors. His son William, who uses part of two floors of his house as a concerta imports umbrellas, embroideries. Evalenko was furiously angry when the rumors came to him.

Then Evalenko appealed to Editor Cahen of the Forward and to two Russian societies, the Social Democrats and the Socialist Revolutionists demanding that the committee be named to appoint a court of honor. He said that his reputation had been injured by a vicious slander. He feared that his life was in danger. Six men were named to constitute the court of honor. None of them, Mr. Evalenko said last night, was his friend. He was permitted to see the names of the court, he said. The court held sessions from time to time from March until April 21, when a verdict was rendered against the latter to the effect that during 1890, 1901, 1902 and 1903 the said Evalenko was in communication with the Russian Police Department in the capacity of its agent and in the investigation of information regarding Russian political refugees in America.

England's Latest Dreadnought Embodies Many New Ideas

GREAT BRITAIN'S LATEST DREADNAUGHT, THE COLLOSSUS

London, April 27.—Another battle-ship of the Dreadnought type has been put afloat, making the ninth, or with the four Intrepid cruisers the thirteenth, of the new type. The Colossus, which was laid down at the establishment of Messrs. Scott's Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, at Greenock, in July last, is the first of the light vessels ordered in last year's navy estimates to arrive at this stage of construction and is also the first battle ship that this firm has built.

She represents an improvement upon the design of the older Dreadnoughts. She is longer and heavier and has more powerful engines. Her displacement will be between 22,000 and 23,000 tons and her length has been increased to 545 feet, thereby permitting more space to be given between the turrets, with the result that all her ten heavy guns can be brought to bear on either broadside. Her heavy guns will be 12-inch, of 50 calibres in length and capable of developing a muzzle energy of 53,000 foot tons, whereas the make of twelve inch guns mounted in the Dreadnought only develop a muzzle energy of 47,000 foot tons. The anti-torpedo defence armament is also increased in power by the substitution of 4-inch breech loaders firing a 31-pound shot instead of a 3-inch gun firing a 12 lb. 12 pound shot. The contract speed remains the same, twenty-one knots, but as all the earlier type of Dreadnoughts worked up on trial to about twenty-two knots the Colossus may be expected to do likewise.

JUNK OFFERED TO THE LORD

Disappointing Results of Appeal in New York Church--Scrap Metal for Gold--Clergy Disappointed.

New York, April 27.—Canon Chase of Christ Episcopal Church, Williamsburg, was a disappointed man yesterday when he discovered that a large quantity of castoff and antiquated jewelry and silverware, as well as pewter metal goods and mutilated coins, were collected by his church ushers on Sunday in response to an urgent appeal for articles that would net about $1500 to wipe out an indebtedness of that amount on the church property.

For weeks he had labored among his flock, urging them that it was necessary that the church property should be free of debt. He has many wealthy parishioners and some of these gave him assurances that they would respond liberally to his appeal. Word had been sent out on the previous Sunday that members should bring their contributions to church last Sunday wrapped in parcels.

Canon Chase was in his pulpit on Sunday earlier than usual. He watched the members rushing in with parcels, some very small, others very large and a few fairly good sized. The service was nearly over when the canon announced from the pulpit that the ushers were ready to make the collection. It took nearly an hour to gather up all the bundles. They were signed by the latter to the effect that they had all been collected, the canon addressed the congregation, thanking them for their liberality and telling them that he had known from the bottom of his heart that they were going to respond heartily to his appeal.

Shortly before noon yesterday Canon Chase was ready to open the parcels. He brought to the rectory a manufacturing jeweler who was provided with all the appliances necessary for testing metals. Only a few of the packages had been opened when Canon Chase's countenance lost its smile. The gems and jewels, silverware and other treasures which he had expected would be turned in did not materialize. Instead the bundles yielded discarded jewelry and silverware which probably had been in some corner for years. In other packages was tarnished silverware which had long since seen its best days. Other parcels contained pewter tableware, while still other packages that were opened after the first few had disappointed the pastor were found to contain mutilated coins and timeworn watches.

In one of the smallest parcels was a $10 gold piece. It seemed to be the most valuable article that the examination had developed. As package after package was opened they disclosed a lot of the same kind of timeworn and shabby stuff. When all the packages had been opened and the quantity of junk was spread out on tables a value of less than $150 was placed on the whole lot.

SHACKLETON AND CANADA

Impressed With the Big Rivers and Great Railway Works--May Come Here to Live Shortly.

The following is a statement supplied the Toronto News by Sir Ernest Shackleton on "Canada and Canadians": Philadelphia, Pa., April 23.—The first thing that struck me in Canada was the freshness of the atmosphere. I immediately, on arriving in Canada, felt there was something in the air that made one wish to be up and doing. When my eye caught for the first time those wonderful highways of water, the great St. Lawrence and the Ottawa rivers, shining blue between the green clothed banks, I realized what nature had given to this country.

Canada's Great Rivers. In the rivers of Canada man has already great highways providing the cheapest and most efficient form of travel, and the enormous water power that can be harnessed for the use of man is unsurpassed, while the next thing which struck me was the way in which one passed in a few minutes from blazes of tree trunks to prosperous towns and next the look of contentment and well being that seems to permeate the dwellers in those towns.

Only Ocean Will Stop Us. I feel that the Arctic ocean alone will stop Canadian progress toward the high north to the boundary line in the south Canada will develop her mineral resources. There is much to be done yet. I understand the pride of the finding of new fields for commerce; the unknown spot today may in a few years be a thriving town for time after time.

In Robert Service, the young poet, Canada has a man who has caught the expression and sentiment of the great wide spaces of the country, the wonder of the mountains, the glory of the great glaciers, the magnificence of forest and stream have never to my mind been so clearly written about as by this young man. What we feel only, poets can speak. Often I have quoted Service because he is the one man in the world who brings home the glamour and the mystery of the unknown. Reading his poems one can understand how Canada claims men, and how they ever must follow her lure.

The Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association early today and for a time threatened the entire establishment with destruction. Five hundred thousand bottles of beer were destroyed and millions of burning corks made such a dense smoke that the firemen fought the flames in a black smudge. The streets at the plant lowest, with beer for more than an hour and smoking corks bobbing up and down in the stream gave the streets a strange appearance. The bottling and storage houses were completely destroyed entailing a loss of $500,000. Valuable paintings and furniture stored in the buildings by E. A. Faust, vice president of the company, were destroyed with a loss of $30,000.
