Let me go; for earth has sorrow. Sin, and pain, and bitter tears; All its paths are dark and dreary-All its hopes are fraught with tears; Short lived are its brightest flowers; Soon its cherished joys decay, Let me go; I fain would leave it For the realms of cloudless day.

Let me go; my heart hath tasted Of my Saviour's wondrous grace Let me go where I shall ever See, and know him, face to face Let me go; the trees of heaven Rise before me, waving bright, And the distant crystal waters Flash upon my failing sight.

Let me go; for songs seraphie Now seem falling from the sky Tis the welcome of the angels, Which e'en now are hovering nigh Let me go; they wait to bear me To the mansions of the blest Where the spirit, worn and weary, Finds at last its long sought rest.

Cheery Kitchens. A writer in the Country Gentleman put in a plea for the kitchen : Very much is written and said abou pleasant and tastefully furnished parlors but the kitchen is left in the back-ground, except as it is described in stories of the olden time, "with ponderous beams overhead, from which hung festoons of dried pumpkins apples, etc." It is too important a part of ome to be neglected.
