

When one wishes to utilize the eggs which have been preserved, they may be washed or wiped with a rag, unless one wishes to boil them. If the eggs be used for boiling, a small pin-hole should be pricked at the large end where an air-cell is situated.