

The day of rest. Use of one's leisure one of the great questions of life. To each one the choice of recreation. Meditation necessary. The rest of others.

XVII. THE SUPREME LAW 150

Love. Without it the best advice remains a dead letter. It is the source of the good life. All men's faults spring from a lack of kindness. "Love one another."

XVIII. REPARATION OF EVIL 155

Who should repair evil? Those who have committed it? We should have to wait a long time. Who ought to fight the fire? The first one who sees it—easy conclusion to draw. "I told you so." Value of this remark. Forgiving offences. Fruitless and active repentance. The thirst to repair evil.

WHERE ARE WE GOING?

XIX. DEATH AND ETERNAL LIFE 167

Why speak of death? Two ways of considering it. The good one. We are here
