A WONDERFUL COLD CURE. Just think of it, a cold cured in ten minutes—that's what happens when you use "Catarhazone." You inhale its soothing balsams and out goes the cold—coughs are cured—headache is cured—symptoms of catarrh and grippe disappear at once. It's the healing pine essences and powerful antiseptics in Catarhazone that enable it to act so quickly. In discharge of the nose, for irritable throat, bronchitis, coughs and catarrh it's a marvel. Safe even for children. 25c. and $1.00 sizes at all dealers.

A SERIOUS DEAL. "We should never be ashamed of anything made in the image of God," says an evangelist of the diaphanous skirt. Of course, but if you are made in the image of a forked radish?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MR. R. H. REVILLE WRITES A BREEZY WESTERN LETTER

Grand Trunk Pacific is already completed from Winnipeg to Edmonton and some 250 miles beyond on its long entourage to the Coast. From Edmonton onwards the G.T.P. passes through a great soft coal and mineral belt. Shale and marl are also present in large quantities in the near neighborhood and big cement works are being installed along the line. With an unrivalled wheat field of vast dimensions back and front of it, with minerals in abundance, almost at its very doors, the Edmonton of 50,000 people of to-day should soon be an Edmonton of 100,000 in the near future with unbounded possibilities of expansion and growth in decades to come. The people of the East would do well to keep an eye on Edmonton, its growth the past few years has been phenomenal. Its growth in years to come is bound to assume record proportions. This, perhaps, sounds like eulogizing Edmonton rather too extravagantly, but I can't help predicting a wonderful future for this "live wire" of a city which stretches so picturesquely on both sides of the river. It's a good city to live in. It's a good city to do business in. The climate is equable both summer and winter. Nature has been prodigally kind to her. With wise conservation of resources, with wise administration, Edmonton must and shall be a great and growing city.

The city is the centre, almost plumb, of the vast Alberta Province. Here are the handsome new Provincial Governmental buildings with their St. Paul-like dome. Here are the University buildings of the province. Here, too, the Grand Trunk Pacific is erecting the Hotel Macdonald on a superb site overlooking the swift current of the river, rivaling in situation almost the far-famed Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. Here are numerous fine schools and educational institutions, many of them erected by the Catholic church, the pioneer colonizing church of the West. O. J. Edmondson has laid truly and well the foundation of a great and growing city. And a great and growing city is destined to be. Recently the municipality has acquired, with commendable enterprise, the Edmonton golf links at the foot of the rising ground, on which the main portion of the city is built, for public park purposes. The city fathers will continue to run the links for the benefit of the followers of "the naughty little spotty little golf ball"—the first municipal golf links in the West and will in addition add baseball, cricket, and other grounds for sport. An admirable arrangement. And the Edmonton Golf Club deprived of its original holdings has gone far afield and has acquired, some eight miles from the city, six hundred acres of the most perfectly situated land that I have ever seen devoted to golf and kindred sports. Leaving the main road a drive of nearly a mile over a private road through dale and glen, you to the bank of the Saskatchewan, where at a cost of thousands of dollars a superb course of over 6,000 yards has been laid out. There is also a cricket ground, a polo field and tennis court. They think big things in the West. They do big things in the West. I had the pleasure under the pilotage of Mr. Balmer Watt, an old, or rather young, Brantfordite, son of the late Sheriff Watt, of inspecting and playing over nine holes of this ideal golf course and enjoyable to a degree was the experience of negotiating glade and glen, bunker and hazard.

Edmonton is not worrying very much about financial stringencies. Edmonton is sure of its own natural resources. Has confidence; has courage in the future and the bountiful harvest that this autumn is assured and will bring millions into her treasury. And that Edmonton is not too buoyant, not too optimistic, one "stranger within her gates," at any rate feels quite assured.

R. H. R. McAleer's chief argument to prove that McBride will not manage the Red Sox next year is an agreement with Bill Carrigan for the latter to do the work. Bill admits that they have agreed on the figures, but the papers have not been produced yet.
