ST. GILES' MEN AT BANQUET.

Fine Event at the Closing of the Season.

Eminent Toronto Speakers Heard by Large Gathering.

Geo. Tate Blackstock the Chief Speaker of the Evening.

The Men's Guild of St. Giles' Church, which was organized last year and had a number of interesting addresses during the winter months, at intervals of about two weeks, had a good closing of the season last evening, when they were fortunate enough to secure Mr. George Tate Blackstock, K. C., Mr. Kelley Evans and Mr. H. Osborne, K. C., of Toronto, to give addresses. A large number were present, and about 110 sat down to the banquet, which was served under the direction of Crawford, caterer, before the speech-making commenced. The tables were daintily decorated with roses, carnations and snowballs. Only gentlemen sat down to the spread, and the ladies were admitted at 8 o'clock to hear the speeches. Mr. H. S. Lees, President of the Guild, presided.

Mr. Lees, in opening the proceedings, said he was highly honored to hold the position of President of the Guild. It was organized but six months ago, and during that time had increased rapidly in numbers, and the interest had spread widely. He then called upon Mr. J. M. Cunningham to propose the toast, "Canada."

Mr. Cunningham was glad to have the honor of proposing a toast so dear to the heart of all, and to couple with it the name of Mr. Kelley Evans. When he becomes necessary to conserve Canada's resources, it looks as though its resources are limited. In this century the foundation is being laid, and it should be done well. Canadian press representatives in the old country had opened the eyes of the people there. Mr. Kelley Evans was then introduced.

In replying, he said a toast of that nature was in itself a task, but when introduced as it had been by Mr. Cunningham, it was a double task. The question of the resources of the country is one every citizen should take the deepest interest in. The agitation for conservation is largely due to the export of the United States. He realized that the people had destroyed, in some directions beyond repair, the great resources the Lord had given. Two subjects which can be considered are, first, the forest. The forest is nearly gone. It has been down, and the future was not considered. The sun had been for years and years storing up this product, and it is to be hoped that the damage has not gone too far to be repaired.

In 7,000,000 acres of forest, we have 7,000,000 acres yielding over $2 an acre. They are conserving their forests. It is not in the tree as a piece of wood that its value consists, but on that tree not only the stream depends, but the very climate. Every citizen should consider this conservation and not allow a few to exercise their powers for personal gain. Secondly, and one thing Mr. Blackstock generally says, is the little wriggling fishes in the water. A few years ago the whitefish were caught in tons and used for manure on the farm. The people are responsible for this awful waste, as they were warned. As an example Prince Edward county and the Bay of Quinte district allowed the fish to be taken heedlessly, and the food was taken from the mouths of the poor.

Mr. G. Tate Blackstock, the eminent lawyer of Toronto, who was the principal speaker of the evening, was then called upon, and gave an address of unspiced meat, and was gleefully sprinkled with humor, which kept the audience convulsed with laughter. He considered it a privilege to be present, and congratulated the guild on its rapid progress. It was a great time for him as well as a great time for Hamilton.

He felt that he had established a considerable claim upon the audience by introducing Mr. Kelley Evans and Mr. H. C. Osborne. In the character of bronchitis, he felt very much like the teacher in charge of the Sunday school class who was worried about getting them home all right, like a hen which had hatched out goslings. The friends were supposed to laugh when he made a joke, and if they didn't see it then they would feel it the next day. The assistance of friends is very good, but they often ask what to talk about, and want to know what he was to talk about, as if he knew, and as soon as they heard the subject tried to jostle him off the earth by saying that was what they were going to talk about. The occupation of a legal drummer, trekking all over the country, allows little time for reflection, and he was often obliged to pick up a bologna. Hearing the eloquent speech from the subject "Canada" reminded him that Canada is not only a great country in herself, but is still greater in that she forms a part of the great British Empire. It behooves all to bear in mind the obligations such a position imposes. Lord John Russell said when he was a boy, "It is a great thing to turn a small kingdom into a great empire." Wherever the British flag is found everyone is filled with a desire to defend it. Many things have entered into the constitution of that Empire. It now embraces 50 dependencies and consists of one-fifth of the area of the world. England at the time of the loss of the States had just emerged from the war with Spain and the prodigious struggle with France. Every person who reads history knows that the circumstances of 200 years ago cannot now be applied. In former years the difficulty arose as to the abolition of the slave trade, and although it is easily understood now, the people of those days raised their hands against the mother country because of her effort to abolish this trade. England exhibited what no other country has done, and relieved the Empire from the abominable trade, and compensated serious thing and he reminded the jury that it was better to set 99 guilty men at liberty than to convict one innocent one.

FOUND HIM NOT GUILTY.

Crown Attorney Washington, in his address, said the case was a serious one, and he was not before the jury as a partisan, nor as a man who would ask them to convict the prisoner, but as a citizen, like themselves, seeking after justice and trying to the best of his ability, to lay the evidence before them, in considering which they must use their common sense. In weighing the evidence that Constable Smith, while in the hospital with a bullet in his brain, was conscious and suffering no pain, they should use their common sense. P. C. Harry Smith had been a splendid constable and an upright, honorable man, and should not be believed when he says he knew that man who stood up and shot him, no witness for the defense had ever denied that, not even the prisoner himself.

They were asked to believe that the constable could not recognize a man at night in that alleyway, as neither the gas light nor the moon could shine on his face; but the rays of the sun or moon do not have to shine on an object in order that it may be seen, and there has been good evidence to show that a policeman at night, with a bullet in his head, could see a man in the street, and that the question of the alibi. A certain band of men get together and swear to a certain thing, and all the lawyers he ever knew were powerless to shake them by cross-examination. The barber, Mr. Carson, when interviewed by two policemen at two o'clock in the morning, before the alibi was fixed, said he first heard of the shooting about 8 o'clock, although it did not take place until about 9. Now, take the evidence of these men who say the prisoner was in the pool-room during the whole evening, and it is contradicted by Mr. Bennett, who says he saw the prisoner on the street, going out of one door and in by another. It was for the jury to say who should be believed and whether the prisoner was guilty or not.

His Honor Judge Snider then spoke a few words to the jurors. He said Hamilton was a city in which several criminals had been committed and the guilty persons had escaped and it was especially necessary that if the offender could be caught he should be punished, nevertheless justice demands fair treatment. They, as citizens like himself, must recognize the difficulty in arriving at a decision. It was for them to return a just and true verdict, to the best of their ability. Whoever shot the constable had taken great pains to cover his tracks, but deserved no sympathy whatever, as he gave none. Several witnesses said it was a brilliant night, with snow on the ground; the constable looked into the face of the man who shot him, and says it was the prisoner. They should scrutinize the alibi closely. The prisoner could not be in two places at one time. Several had sworn that the prisoner had not left the pool-room between 8 and 11 o'clock. Then Mr. Bennett says he saw him on the street about 8.25, going from one door to another, without a hat. What both parties say may be true, but only if it happened on different nights. Smith's evidence had not been contradicted. The real thing is, were the circumstances such that Smith could identify the man who shot him or was the alibi sufficient to prove that Smith's evidence cannot be believed? They must face the problem and decide. If there was a doubt, the prisoner should have the benefit.

After being out about two hours the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and the prisoner was released.

Napoleon Lebon, of Malone, N. Y., who pleaded guilty to smuggling Chinese across the Canadian border, was sentenced to spend six months in the Cayuga County Jail. His companion, Joseph Leventur, pleaded not guilty to a similar indictment returned against him today, and was held for trial at a later time.

The last court of the season was held at Buckingham Palace on Friday night, and was largely attended by diplomats and officials.

SPEED LIMIT FOR AUTOS.

County Council Fixes It at 15 Miles an Hour.

Wentworth county councillors finished up their June session yesterday afternoon. The rate of assessment was struck at 3½ mills, which is the same as that of last year.

It will be necessary for the council to raise $56,000 to meet the needs of the year, but the opinion was that the council would come out all right when the Government grant comes in.

A heated argument arose over the collection of taxes now overdue on the township of Saltfleet on the Beach property for 1907 and 1908. The councillors from Saltfleet, could not see why they should be called upon to pay taxes on property which the Government in the year 1907 turned over to the county and took out of their hands. They said they refused to pay the taxes on that property now that it is county property.

Wardens Gage said it was up to Saltfleet to collect the taxes on the Beach property and hand it over to the county. The Government grant of $250 was all that had yet been paid on those taxes, and the township of Saltfleet must pay the balance for the last two years. He told Councilor Milten, of Saltfleet, that this question could be settled amicably, otherwise it would be settled through the courts. It was all nonsense that these arrears should be standing. The assessment this year would be the same as last for the township of Saltfleet, $250 which the council would raise from the Beach. The council would also pay the same, whether annexation takes place or not.

The council decided to leave the question of taxes on Beach property for 1907 and 1908 in the hands of the Legislative Committee with full power to act.

A by-law was passed regulating the speed of automobiles. No automobile shall be driven at a speed exceeding 15 miles per hour in the county. The penalty for violation is not to exceed $50, and any person giving information which shall lead to the conviction of any one guilty of violating this act shall be entitled to half the fine.

As the townships of East and West Flamboro had not intimated their intention of executing their work of repairs on the road running between them, the council had appointed Peter Ray to do the work, these townships to pay the cost, amounting to $1,255.67, the amount to be equally divided and each pay half. In the event of there not being sufficient in the funds of the townships in the hands of the county treasurer to pay these amounts, the council decided to levy an additional rate against the said townships.

Lighting the Fire.
(Lippincott's Magazine.)

A fire broke out one night in one of the smaller towns of Massachusetts, whereupon its newly equipped fire department, composed of volunteers, was called on to show what it could do.

Only one lantern could be found, the smoke was pouring out of the building, and the night was dark. Finally a small tonque of fire appeared and a cheer went up as the firemen turned the hose in that direction.

"Look out what you're doing! Keep that water off that! It's the only light we've got to put the fire out by."

MASONIC.

An Important Function on Saturday Next, June 19th.

The Grand Master, W. M. Bro. A. T. Freed, having consented, at the request of the ladies of the Young Women's Christian Association, to lay the cornerstone of the new building on Saturday, June 19, at 3.30 p. m., the craft has gone into the matter to insure a successful and dignified performance of this impressive ceremony with characteristic energy.

A meeting of the masters and officers of the city lodges was called by W. Bro. Geo. V. Taylor, of the Barton, No. 6, and they selected a committee to make the necessary arrangements, composed of R. W. Bro. John Hoodless, R. W. Bro. Dr. Emory, V. W. Bro. Peddler, W. Bro. W. H. Wardrope and the masters of the lodges. The Grand Master has summoned the officers of the Grand Lodge to meet in Hamilton in the Masonic Hall at 3 p. m., and the committee also summoned the lodges to meet at the same time. The 91st Band has been engaged to head the Knights Templars, who will act as a guard of honor to the Grand Lodge. The procession will be formed at 3 p. m. sharp, to leave the Masonic Hall, so that the ceremony will be proceeded with promptly on the ground at 3.30.

It was decided, in order to hinder traffic as little as possible, and avoid the congestion at King and James streets, that they would march by Gore to John, to the south side of King, to the west side of James, to Jackson, entering from the rear of the building, and after the ceremony to reform and return via MacNab street to York to east side of James to the Masonic Hall.

The 91st Band and the Scottish Rite choir will lead the hymns which are the first in the regular ceremony: "All People That on Earth Do Dwell," and "God Save the King."

The police have been requested to keep the grounds absolutely clear till the craft are assembled, and only invited guests of the ladies will be allowed on the platform.

An address will be presented to the Grand Master by the ladies, to which he will respond, and it is thought as it has been some years since a public Masonic ceremony has taken place in this city that there will be a very large number of the craft in attendance.

W. Bro. W. H. Wardrope was selected as chairman of the committee of arrangements, and R. W. Bro. John Hoodless as secretary. The brethren will attend in full regalia.

Edward Potts, a Lancashire architect, who left £25,000, directed that his son, George Herbert Potts, who had come to Canada, should only get his share if he discloses his whereabouts within seven years.
