(From the false gloss given to the report in question, in the case of his own "friends" the public can form a pretty fair estimate of the veracity of the Adverticer with respect to other Candidates alluded to at the same time and place, avowed "opponents" to his line of politics—if he have any.]

The Giant; a Poem in six Cantos, by the author of "The Island adrift." &c., &c. J. S. Bremner, Charlottetown—price 9d.

This is the title—and a formidable title it is—of a racy work just issued from the press, and which, on the principle, we suppose, that "brevity is the soul of wit," is comprised in Fifteen pages. Its brevity, however, we deem its chief fault; a compliment, we would, that we could pay to many Newspaper correspondents of our acquaintance. The Giant here described is an embodiment of the veritable demon of Intemperance, whose character and ravages are pourtrayed with pathos alternating with humour in strains of much power, both of thought and expression. Such talents we are giad to see enlisted in the cause of Temperance; and trust to find them appreciated in a ready and remunerating sale of this effusion of a native Bard.

We think it very unseemly in the Government, and very derogatory of the respect in which our ralers should be held, to find them banding themselves together to held meetings in order to decry the pretentions of any persons who may oppose the late members, who were so particularly devoted to their interests. When the Government interest and patronage are made use of to induce the people to vote for a certain Candidate high in their favor it shows that that Government does not rest on the free expression of the people. If the Candidates are not of the messives able to explain the policy of the government, would they be able to vindicate the rights of their constituents when on the floor of the House! We asswer no. And those persons that call in the aid of the most blustering, arrogant, and imperious of the dictators in the Government, will of course be ruled by these same persons in the House of Assembly if they should succeed in getting a constituency; not for the good of the country, but to suit their own ends and purposes.

See We understand that John Longworth Equitariant wants would indicate him to be; but that, on the contrary, the same vices that disfigure polished and civilized life, flourish there is residued the waring withers, can be and unroused the sailuration as solicitor General and now comes before the public a free and unfettered candidate.

We have received a communication from Mr. Nell MeNell, late member for the second District of Queen's County, wishing us to correct a second province in the country, the same vices and more than the surface of the second District of Queen's County, wishing us to correct a second possession of the most distinguished characters of the first of Queen's County, wishing us to correct has resigned his situation as solicitor General and now comes before the public a free and unfettered candidate.

We have received a communication from Mr. Neil McNeil, late member for the second District of Queen's County, vising us to correct attement contained in the Astertiser, which, he says "it calculated to mislead the public mind," and wishes us, as far as he is concerned only, to give the facts of the case.

We do not think any respectable person will be led astray by any thing stated in the Astertiser. That paper and the persons who are connected with it have been so often convicted or attering false and garbled statements, that no person of any obstractor puts any faith in them, and the whole circulation of the paper is so pality that it is not worth heeding.

So late only as the present week Eight respectable members of society have addressed a letter to the Islander, refuting statements made by Mr. Pippy in reference to the Order of the Sons of Temporanes, of which body he seems to be, certainly, an unworthy member. With such a person it would be derogatory to hold any intercourse, and we therefore apprise our readers, that we will not, in fature, bry their patience with so unworthy a subject, and we would not have done so now, but that we feel bound to take notice of Mr. Myneil's letter.

To the Europe or Harran's Gazerra.

Sir,—In looking over the Astertiser of the 23d met., I observed a report of a Meeting which was held at Crapand, on Trenday last.
