Epps's Cocoa

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural qualities of the food products of the world, and by a careful selection of the few purest and best, Dr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a deliciously flavored beverage which will give us energy, restore our health, and make us happy. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until it is strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle poisons are being poured into our system every day, and are doing their work in a silent way. We may acquire many a fatal illness by keeping ourselves well supplied with pure food. Epps's Cocoa is made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, by Grocers. Made in England.

THE DELEGATES' REPORT.

A copy of the report of the delegates from the Maritime Provinces, who, on the invitation of the Canadian Pacific Railway, visited Manitoba and the Northwest last summer, has been handed us. It contains a large amount of information relative to the soil, climate and resources of the different Provinces and Territories visited. After referring to some length to each place visited, the delegates make a summary of their impressions, from which we take the following extract:

During three weeks spent in Manitoba and the Territories we were amazed at the unanimity with which almost every person with whom we conversed praised the country. The universal testimony of the settlers was that they had bettered their condition by going to the west, and had no desire to leave. We saw in that country people of a great many different nationalities, English, Irish, Scotch, French, German, Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, Belgian, Luxembourg, Manitow, Newfoundland, and Americans, besides a large number of former residents of the old provinces of Canada. In one township we saw former residents of Japan, Denmark, New York State, the British Isles and the Eastern Provinces of Canada, and all expressed themselves pleased that they were doing and their prospects in the country. We were especially surprised to find settlers from the United States so desirous of expressing their preference for the West as a farming country, and over the Western States of the American Union. On the day we went to Red Deer the car adjoining ours was occupied by 14 young men, mostly immigrants from the States, who told us that they had already satisfied themselves of the superiority of the Northwest over Nebraska as a farming country, and that they were now on their way to the Edmonton District for the purpose of taking up lands for the people they represented, numbering 100 families. We arrived at Edmonton some days later, and in the evening a number of gentlemen leaving the Nebraska delegation still at work making their selections. At a point near the American line, a week later, we saw a number of immigrants passing northward and bringing with them considerable effects.

The population of the Northwest is increasing by immigration faster during the present year than at any former period; and notwithstanding the fact that the best localities will soon be taken up. There can be no doubt that if the country continues to be blessed with good crops, it will soon be the home of a vast population.

We have endeavored to present, in these papers, a fair description of the farming capabilities of Manitoba and the Northwest. Our impressions of the country are of the most favorable nature. There are no subjects however on which there is some divergence of opinion and that is with regard to the occasional aridity of the soil. These frosts are never general, but some years come like clouds, nipping the grain in a few sections, while elsewhere it escapes. In answer to our inquiries the farmer told us that he had only lost a few acres in a twelve year crop. Another complained of losing a portion of his crop once in three or four years. While some sections are less liable to frost than others and there are some elements of change in its visits, there can be no doubt that good farming will maintain its effects. Early sowing is above everything essential. To secure a crop that will stand up to the winter, the land should be thoroughly prepared in the autumn and the seed sown as soon as the snow leaves the ground. Mr. Sandison of Brandon, one of the largest and most successful wheat growers of the Northwest, has never suffered any appreciable loss of crop. Although he is a very large farmer yet his aim is to grow more than he can put in his hands, and he is not at all afraid of frost. More labor is required at the right time to attend to the sowing and harvesting of the wheat crop.

In the balance against these drawbacks are to be noted a number of fertile lands, to be got for the taking, and adapted to a variety of branches of husbandry; a breezing climate which gives strength to the soil, and color to the crops; and other religious and religious advantages equal to those enjoyed by the best regulated communities anywhere; and British institutions administered according to the will of a people whose feelings and aspirations are in the main identical with our own.

What advice shall we give to the people of the Maritime Provinces as to the settlement of the Northwest? To those who have good farms at home, and particularly such as are advanced in years, we would say remain where you are; but in view of the fact that it is impossible for parents to keep their families around them, and that good farming lands are not now available for homesteads in the Maritime Provinces, we would say that you go to Manitoba or the Northwest Territories. There you will soon acquire property and take your place as a part of an independent farming population, instead of becoming a poor day laborer, or a wage earner, getting, if any, but a few wages by the piece, but making little, if any, provision for the future.

Concerning the prices of land and free homesteading, the report contains the following information:

Any male person, being a British subject and 16 years of age, can acquire a free grant, or patent, of 100 acres of land, on any of the open

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

It is stated that Prof. MURPHY of Salem, Mass., has solved a problem of home baking in a most practical manner. He has built a house with all its rooms facing southward, with only a passage on the north. Almost the whole southern front is made of glass, and by means of reflection, Prof. Murphy is enabled on sunny days to heat his whole house with sunshine alone. At night and on cloudy days he has heard fire going. He believes that by this contrivance he has the most wholesome heat that is attainable.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

FOR FEBRUARY.

The complete novel in this issue, "The First Night," is by Julius Gordon. It deals satirically with the ambitions of a daughter of wealthy parents, not quite to the manner born socially, and is illustrated. The Journalist Series is continued in an interesting article by Hon. John Ross Young on "Who the Englishman is?" Essays, Reviews, and Portraits of some of our distinguished contemporaries are added, and one of Secretary Howland's addresses is included.

It is interesting to note that Prof. Murphy's house is built on a hillside, with the sun shining on the southern front. At night and on cloudy days he has heard fire going. He believes that by this contrivance he has the most wholesome heat that is attainable.

The Spilt Seed.

"Who's there?" shouted the occupant of a hotel bedroom, as he heard a noise in the passage of his room.

There was no answer and the owner noise stopped.

"Anybody there?"

"It must have been a spirit," he said to himself, "I must be mad."

"(Aloud.) If there is a spirit in the room it will signify the same by saying—no, that's not what I mean. If there is a spirit in the room it will please rap three times.

Three very distinct raps.

"Are you happy?"

"Nice raps."

"Do you want anything?"

"Will you give me any command, unless if I get up?"

No answer.

"Shall I leave from you tomorrow?"

"Raps are very loud rap in the direction of the mirror."

"Is it the spirit of my sister?"

No answer.

"Is it the spirit of my mother-in-law?"

Three very distinct raps.

"Are you happy?"

"Nice raps."

"Do you want anything?"

"Will you give me any command, unless if I get up?"

No answer.

"Shall I leave from you tomorrow?"

"Raps are very loud rap in the direction of the door."

"Shall I ever see you?"

"He waited long for an answer, but none came and he turned over and fell asleep."

Next morning he found the "spirit" of his mother-in-law had carried off his watch and chain, his trousers and his great coat—North-west Magazine.
