Get Ready for the FUTURE TODAY

Opportunity may knock at a man's door, but the richest prize go to him who seizes the fickle divinity by the forelock. The only way you can be sure of tomorrow's success is to prepare for it today. At a pinch an ounce of preparation is worth an ocean of regrets.

The man who is not thoroughly trained for a business or commercial life doesn't know who kick's him from behind—he's the last to be hired and the first to be fired. He spends his lifetime doing other people's work while they climb over his back to the ladder of success.

Come out from the ranks of incompetents. Be something—somebody. We can help you. Write for our C. B. C. blotter and free prospectus.

Appaling Disaster.

Pennsylvania Mill Town Wiped Out By Flood And Fire.

JOHNSTOWN DISASTER RE-PEATED.

Three hundred or more persons met their death through the bursting of a dam above Austin Pa., on Saturday. Fire followed and completed the work of destruction. The curtain of night which was rung down on the flood scarcely before its victims had all been claimed and its surviving spectators fully realized how great a tragedy the elements of water and fire had enacted in the natural amphitheatre of the Alleghany mountains there, was lifted by dawn Sunday, revealing a ghastly scene of death and devastation.

Austin itself, Saturday a busy mill town of 8,000 people, many of whom were enjoying a fine autumn afternoon as a Saturday half holiday, is only a ghost of a town. Torn to pieces by water and eaten by fire, the wet and charred remains of its buildings, believed to hold the remains of 300 or more persons, were strewn along the valley edge piled in windows where the main street business section was, or swept in scattered masses for down the ravine. Spectators, many of whom barely escaped being victims of the disaster, and hundreds of people from surrounding towns, looked down from the steep hillsides on Austin and Costello through a veil of fog Friday morning to see the wreckage here of some four hundred houses, a score of business blocks, three churches and several large lumber mills and three miles farther down the river, at Costello, the ruins of more than fifty buildings. The flood did not spend its force until it reached for more than ten miles from the reservoir. Wharton, still further on, suffered somewhat, but is practically intact. The loss of life at Costello, where the residents had more warning, is believed to be but three. Property loss in the valley is estimated at upwards of six million dollars.

The immediate scene of the obliteration of Austin covers an area three-eighths of a mile wide and one and three-quarter miles long. This comprised the business section and the valley residence portion. Nearly a mile above stood the mammoth concrete dam of the Bayless Paper and Pulp Company, six hundred feet long, 52 feet high and 60 feet thick at the bottom, tapering to a thickness of 8 feet at the top. Back of this dam yesterday lay a reservoir of water a mile and a half long and an average of 35 feet deep. Directly in front of the dam stood the plant of the Bayless Company with four main buildings. Stacked high nearby was 700,000 cords of 50 inch wood and slabs, and also a portion of the company's immense timber stock, totalling in the Austin Valley 15,000,000 feet of hardwood and 20,000,000 of hemlock. This was a five year supply, practically the last large cut of the region, valued at $2,000,000.

The wreckage of the dam had been complete as it was sudden. Two immense sections from top to bottom a 150 feet wide were thrown out bodily like the immense gates of a canal lock. The outward swing was more than 90 feet, and on either side the remaining structures began gradually to crumble away. Repairs last spring had consisted of a patch of cement 14 feet square. One of the several sections Saturday began at that patch. The cause of the breaking of the dam is a matter which the district attorney of Potter county has taken steps to investigate.

Credit for the quick spreading of the alarm was given to Lena Binckey, a telephone operator. Upon receiving the message from the Cliff House that the dam had broken she pushed the alarm button connecting with the fire department and the engineer's office of the Goodyear Langbar mill below the dam. The engineer tied his whistle down and the fire bell in the town was sounded continuously. She then rushed to the street screaming the warning cry, "The dam has broken." Then she fled for her life toward the steep hillsides at the north end of Main street. Turning towards the valley she saw the great wall of water descending upon the town. "From where I stood," she said next day, the wall of water seemed

50 feet high. Above it rose a great cloud of spray in which houses seemed to lose, bumping against one another, spinning and turning as they fell to pieces or were swept out of my sight. The noise was appalling. When I fled from Main street there were scores of people behind me, many of them children. They did not seem to appreciate the imminence of their danger. Some turned into stores as if to make a casual purchase. While I was looking down upon them, utterly helpless to give further warning, the cloud of mist that seemed to precede the flood hid them from view, and a moment later the great water buried the houses from my sight."

The British navy is equipped with torpedoes said to be effective at ten thousand yards, or nearly three times the range of the most powerful projectiles now used in the United States Navy. The existence of this torpedo has been kept a secret and it was only by a "leak" by one of the British experts that it became known. No say Washington advises.

Dudley Cusston, manager for Mark Hambrough, the great pianist, was shot to death at Rimouski last Friday evening. The demand, with Mr. and Mrs. Hambrough, were passengers on the Dominion of Britain, and headed to take the train for the east. During the evening while a political demonstration was in progress, a revolver was discharged the bullet striking and killing Cusston.

We regret to learn that Roy. Dr. Genthler, F. P. Palmer Road, met with an accident last week that will likely lay him up for some time. Returning from the Exhibition at Summerside he was driving in his carriage; the night was dark and the driver could not see that a carriage in front had suddenly stopped. A collision occurred and Father Genthler was thrown violently out and had several ribs broken.
