AMERICAN LADY CORSETS

Will Fit You Perfectly

American Lady Corsets are worn by thousands of ladies all over America. They stand for the final word in corsetry; producing to perfection fashion's demands for this season, namely, the modish low bust, the very long hip and back—in fact the uncorrected effect so sought after.

"American Lady" boning is very superior, made of specially selected material—flexible more or less to meet the demands of the various figures for which it is intended.

American Lady Hose Supporters are made of Para rubber thread webbing, giving the best possible wear.

We control "American Lady" Corsets for Charlotte town and guarantee them to give satisfaction.

Trade Unionism in Germany.

In the Chronicle of last week America made mention of the exceptionally fine address on the trade union question delivered during one of the sessions of the Metz German Catholic Congress last month by Prince Lowenstein, President of the Congress. The readers of America will recall the pitch of that address, admitted to have been the most important utterance heard by the splendid gathering of German Catholics that made the meeting in the old Upper Chambers of Wurtemberg, Hesse, and Baden-Baden, his judgment naturally carries great weight with the Centre party. We are told that his words at the Metz gathering were received with tumultuous applause. May that applause be an augury of the coming peace and harmony so needed in the ranks of Socialism's mightiest opponents in the German Empire!

American deems it well thus to rehearse the history of this important address of Prince Lowenstein for its own readers, because it is not improbable that a condition quite similar to that which occasioned the impression of the President of the Metz Congress is directly threatening trade unionism in our own land. The Socialist party in the United States is bent upon attaining control of the labor movement in this country, has for years been matter of common knowledge. Naturally the leaders of the Socialist trade union agitation now rampant in Germany are heartily disposed to lend all possible assistance to their American brethren in this purpose, but just now they appear to anticipate the growth of a Christian trade union movement in this country, or at least the growth of a Christian influence in the existing trade union bodies. To prevent the spread of such a movement, and to exert an influence in favor of Socialist control over the numerous labor organizations of our country, the General Commission of Trade Unions of Germany, a distinct in the wool Socialist body, has just issued a publication in English for distribution in the United States on the "Church and the Trade Unions in Germany." A Socialist member of the Reichstag, Dr. A. Erdmann, is the author of the pamphlet, which was prepared for circulation in this country at the Vorwärts printing office (Paul Singer & Co.) in Berlin, a well known Socialist printing office.

The treatise is carefully worded and care is taken not to offend the religious belief of any worker in or outside of the Socialist movement. This, to be sure, is an old artifice of the enemy, and the Catholic worker will not fail to read into the true purpose of the publication, that purpose, evidently, is to discredit both the Christian trade union movement and the Catholic workingmen's associations of Germany, and, by inference, the influence of similar institutions, present or future, in this country also. The Berlin pamphlet is undoubtedly designed to answer as well the defence of the Christian trade unions of Germany, published about a year ago by the active workers of our own Central Verein in this country and sent to all the officials of the American Federation of Labor. The fact that the "Vorwärts" pamphlet clearly carries this purpose of attack, by the way, startling evidence of the zeal with which Socialists campaign for the control of the labor movement. We confidently believe that their latest attack will be promptly met by the Central Verein people, and in a manner quite as salutary as that in which former efforts of Socialist writers have been rendered vain and fruitless.—M. J. O'Connor, S. J. in America.

rupt the harmonious relations which ought to subsist among Catholic workmen, and when he insisted that the leaders in the two camps must recognize this, the eloquent speaker was entirely in accord with the mind of the Holy Father. He was in the right, as well, when he made his forceful plea that the quarrel between the partisans of the Cologne and Berlin movements should finally and definitely cease and that every union should be helped to advance the Catholic cause in its own way. Prince Lowenstein's splendid utterance should not be fruitless. As a hereditary member of the Bavarian Reichstag and a member of the Reichstag and of the Upper Chambers of Wurtemberg, Hesse, and Baden-Biden, his judgment naturally carries great weight with the Centre party. We are told that his words at the Metz gathering were received with tumultuous applause. May that applause be an augury of the coming peace and harmony so needed in the ranks of Socialism's mightiest opponents in the German Empire!

Considering, therefore, the special conditions existing in Germany, the Holy Father continued, it seems well that the so-called Christian Societies established to certain German dioceses should be tolerated, Catholics may, then, be permitted to join also these mixed associations so long as toleration does not cease to be opportune and proper; but suitable precautions are to be taken to avoid the dangers which were involved in organizations of the kind. The bishops of the land, he concluded, must regard it as a sacred duty to be vigilant, and not to permit that Catholics should suffer through participation in the proceedings of such mixed bodies, and to see to it especially that Catholics do not join any association that contravenes the teachings and precepts of the Catholic Church.

The main intent of the Holy Father's message stands out lucidly. Catholics should refrain from rifle and in case of dispute should appeal to their natural guides in matters of faith and moral teaching—to the bishops holding jurisdiction in the land. When, then, in his speech at Metz Prince Lowenstein declared that this Ecceyical had settled the dispute hitherto threatening to dis-were slightly wounded in the head. —Admiral Count von Wolseburg, of the Austrian navy, lost both legs, three petty officers were killed, three others and two civilians were wounded by the bursting of the branch of a gun on August 20th. The admiral died on the following day.—America.

South Africa.—The South African Federal Court of Appeal at Bloemfontein, revising the finding of the lower courts, has ruled that Syrians are white men before the law. The contention was that Syrians because they hailed from Asia were not Europeans in the proper sense as opposed to native and colored folk. Hence their right to own fixed property was questioned. Lord De Villiers pointed out that if the Transvaal law of 1885 was applied to Syrians, they could also be confined within a certain fixed area. Looking at the whole tenor of the law, the court was satisfied that the framers of the law would have been horrified at the idea of restricting white men, even if they came from Asia Minor, to localities like those set aside for coolies, Arabs and other Asiatics. The degradation implied by such classification was keenly felt by the Syrians, who are presumably Catholics, as the editors of the Catholic Magazine for South Africa congratulates his "congregationists" heartily "on this wise decision of the highest court of the land." Their social status is now fixed.—America.

Animals Remember Abuse.—To tease any animal is unwise, and even dangerous. Animals never forget. A writer in Farm and Fireside shows how the dispositions of farm animals are made ugly or gentle according as they are treated by the small boy. He says: "I know of two little boys and an old family mare. The old mare has often been teased by one of the boys, and when he comes near she lays back her ears and with flapping eyes and snapping teeth tries to get at him. Sometimes when he loafs guard perhaps the chance will come, and who knows what will happen? The other lad always petted and played with the old mare and talked to her, and she will come to him and follow him about anywhere. He never teases her, and she shows her gratitude in her only way. "Teasing colts, horses, or other dumb animals shows a streak of added meanness and should not be permitted. It also spoils the animal's flow much better to have them so from motives of affection rather than fear."

Told By The Teacher.—The teacher was talking about her experience of twenty years with girls in a private school. "There is no bad girl," she said. "If they seem bad or do naughty things, you always find out—if you search carefully—that it is a question of the fathers or mothers, or possibly the mothers. If a mother makes a friend of her daughter, she can do anything with her; if she does not, then her daughter makes a friend elsewhere and the mother's chance is lost. "A girl is never bad because she wants to be bad; she is bad because she does not know good. She does not think about it at all. She wants to have what she calls a fine time. She wants to be what she thinks is pretty. She wants to do what she thinks most attractive. "She does not know how to do any of these things; she has no one to tell her. She hears occasionally, 'Do not do that' and 'Do not do that', but is not told why she is not to do this or that, nor told what she is to do. She does what she thinks most attractive and finds out by experience, when too late, that what she thought was attractive was merely foolish. But she had no one to tell her. "She wants to look pretty and she fixes up her face or hair, and finds out when she is too late that she has spoiled her skin and made her hair artificial, and it is not pretty. Then she becomes defiant, and that is the end. "There is always a stage in a girl's life when she wants to change herself and make herself what she thinks her ideal. She wants pink cheeks and light hair—it is her ideal of beauty. This is the most dangerous time in a girl's life. It comes about sixteen. If you can then sit down and talk to that girl, and make her own good points and bad points, and teach her how to make the best of each, that danger point will be passed and she will steer clear of the cosmetic stage in her life.
