Better Methods.

Last Tuesday reference was made in this column, to the opportunities afforded Newfoundland for the capture of the pickled herring trade of the United States, providing due attention and care were taken in the curing and packing processes. With the enlarged demand in Europe for Scotch, English and Icelandic herring, the fishermen of this Colony (good old word, which dominion will never replace sentimentally) have the growing trade with America in their own hands. There will not be any real competition for them to face, and with the waters around the island teeming with schools of the "King of the Sea," there should be no difficulty in supplying every demand made by the millions of people of the great Republic of the West. They need the food. We have it for them. The trade that may be built up is colossal if only we take pains. The fact that we have no competition should incite us to the putting up of an article in the herring food line which will command the praise of purchasers. The slip, shod, anything-will-do-for-theforeigner methods of the past must be abandoned entirely, and every efwhich are opened to us. Since we should be synonymous with No. 1 The value of our herring resources has, perhaps, not been thoroughly realised by ourselves in the past, bu we are coming into the knowledge that we possess boundless wealth in the increased prosecution of this vast industry, which coupled with more there yesterday. careful attention to the curing than was given formerly will yet mean more and more demand in the marts of the American world. But it will be well for us to remember that no exploitation of our control of the markets open to us will be permitted. Packers and shippers both may not forget that they cannot take advaning Gazette of the issue of November and assist the lady, will escape. 23, a warning which, in the light of last year's Scotch pack transactions. is worth noting and keeping for reference. The future of this industry depends on the packers themselves, and they will do well to profit by the advice which is given in this article, written by one who is thoroughly

Four New Branches.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce, cue work. with commendable enterprise and for the purpose of making a bid for a efforts, larger share of outport business, is about to open four branches of the institution, three on the South Coast-Grand Bank, Harbor Breton, Relleoram- and one at St. Pierre. The advantages, which the establishment of these branches will give to the places named are many. The prosperous fishing centres of Harbor Breton and Belleoram have for long felt the inconvenience which lack of banking facilities carries with it, but now with the setting up of the Commerce, this will disappear. Grand Bank will be the fortunate possessor of two financial institutions, a fact which speaks highly for the constantly growing volume of business done in that thriving fort made to capture the markets town. We congratulate Manager Stewart of the St. John's Office of the have them, we can hold them so long Bank of Commerce on having induced as we continue to give quality and his directors to extend the benefits of weight. #### A Peculiar Accident

About ten o'clock this morning Gerald Aspell, employed at Baine Johnston's wharf, was the victim of an accident which caused him to be taken to the General Hospital. He was on the elevator at the time, and getting in the groove in which the weight ran, this pinned him down, stopping the elevator. The weight pressed on his knees which so tightened h'3 clothing that he nearly choked. However, several men soon extricated him, and Dr. Tait was sent for. On arrival he ordered the man to hospital, but this command the injured man refused to comply with. Dr. McDonald later acsteucilled on a package of herring predict a substantial advance in busi-Fr.
