of glasses and a gradual crescendo of coarse voices within. Our luck seemed to have deserted us; the owner of the purple diamonds was dining at mode length. I thought it was a dinner party. Rames differed; in the end we proved right. Wheels grated in the drive, a carriage and pair stood at the steps; there was a stampede from the dining-room, and the loud voices died away, to burst forth presently from the porch.

Let me make our position perfectly clear. We were over the wall, at the side of the house, but a few feet from the dining-room windows. On our right, one angle of the building cut the back lawn in two diagonally; on our left, another angle just permitted us to see the jutting steps and the waiting carriage. We saw Resenthall come out—saw the glimmer of his diamonds before anything. Then came the pugilist; then a lady with a head of hair like a bath sponge; then another, and the party was complete. Rafflles ducked and pulled me down in great excitement.

"The ladies are going with them," he whispered. "This is great!"

"That's better still."

"The Gardenia!" the millionaire had bawled.

"And that's best of all," said Raffles, standing upright as hoofs and wheels crunched through the gates and rattled off at a fine speed.

"Now what?" I whispered, trembling

"Now what?" I whispered, trembling with excitement.

"They'll be clearing away. Yes, here come their shadows. The drawing-room windows open on the lawn. Bunny, it's the psychological moment. Where's the mask?"

I produced it with a hand whose trembling I tried in vain to still, and could have died for Ramiles when he made no comment on what he could not fail to notice. His own hands were firm and cool as he adjusted my mask for me and then his own.

nrm and cool as he adjusted my mask for me and then his own.

"By Jove, old boy," he whispered cheerily, "you look about the greatest ruffian I ever saw! These masks alone will down a nigger, if we meet one. But I'm glad I remembered to tell you not to shave, You'll pass for White-cheel if the wear contract the contract of the page of the p chapel if the worst comes to the worst and you don't forget to talk the lingo. Better sulk like a mule if you're not sure of it, and leave the dialogue to me; but, please our stars, there will be no need. Now, are you ready?"

"Quite."
"Got your gag?".
"Yes." 'Shooter?"

"Yes."
"Then follow me."

in another on the lawn behind the house. There was no moon. The very stars in their courses had veiled themselves for our beneft. I crept at my leader's heels to some French windows opening upon a shallow verandah. He pushed. They yielded.

"Luck again," he whispered; "nothing but luck! Now for a light."

And the light came!

"nothing but luck! Now for a light."

And the light came!

A good score of electric burners glowed red for the fraction of a second, then rained merciless white beams into our blinded eyes. When we found our sight four revolvers covered us, and between two of them the colossal frame of Reuben Rosenthall shook with a wheezy laughter from heard to foot. head to foot head to foot.

"Good evening, boys," he hiccoughed. "Glad to see you at last. Shift foot or finger, you on the left, though, and you're a dead boy. I mean you, you greaser!" he hoared out at Rames. "I know you. I've been waitin' for you. I've been watchin' you all this week! Plucky smart you thought yerself, didn't you? "Ah you're a knowin' one." said Rosenthall, fingering his triggers. "But you've struck a knowin'er."

Childhood Dangers.

Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent during the hot weather months. Too often these troubles become acute and a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. During the hot weather season every wise mother should keep a box of Baly Own Tablets in the house to check the | ills if they come suddenly. Better still an occasional dose of this medicine will keep the stomach and bowels clean and prevent these dangerous ailments from coming. Mrs. John Lancaster North-Portai, Sask., says: "My baby was attacked vith diarrhoea and severe vomiting. I at once gave Baby's Own Tablets and next day she was as well as ever. I find the Tablets are the only medicine a little one needs." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co. Brockville Ont.

and hook nose of Rosenthall himself. I was looking beyond them at the doorway filled with quivering allk and plush, black faces, white eye-balls, woolly pates. But a sudden silence recalled my attention to the millionaire. And only his nose retained its color. "What d'ye mean?" he whispered with a hoarse oath. "Spit it out, or, by Christmas, I'll drill you!"
"Whort price thet brikewater?" drawled Raffles coolly.
"Eh?" Rosenthall's revolvers were describ-

"Where in hell did you get hold o' that?" asked Rosenthall, with a rat-tle in his thick neck, meant for mirth. "You may well arst," says Raffles. "It's all over the plice we're I come from."

"Who can spread such rot?"

"I dunno," says Rames; "arst the gen'leman on yer left; p'r'aps 'e knows."

knows."

The gentleman on his left had turned livid with emotion. Guilty conscience never declared itself in plainer terms. For a moment his small eyes bulged like currants in the suet of his face; the next, he had pocketed his pistols on a professional instinct, and was upon us with his fists.

"Out o' the light—out o' the light!" yelled Rosenthall in a frenzy.

He was too late. No sooner had the burly puglilst obstructed his fire than Raffles was through the window at a bound; while I, for standing still and saying nothing, was felled to the floor.

I cannot have been many moments without my senses. When I recovered them there was a great to-do in the garden, but I had the drawing-room to myself. I sat up. Rosenthall and Purvis were rushing about outside, cursing the Kaffirs, and nagging at each other.

cursing the kamrs, and nagging at each other.

"Over that wall, I tell yer!"

"I tell you it was this one. Can't you whistle for the police?"

"Police be damned! I've had enough of the blessed police."

"Then we'd better get back and make sure of the other rotter."

"Oh make sure o' yer skin. That's what you'd better do. Jala, you black hog, if I catch you skulkin'"

I never heard the threat. I was creeping from the drawing-room on my hands and knees, my own revolver swinging by its steel ring from my teeth.

For an instant I thought that the volver, and left the white teeth chattering in his black head as I took the stairs three at a time. Why I went upstairs in that decisive fashion, as though it were my only course. I cannot explain. But garden and ground floor seemed alive with men, and I might have done worse.

I turned into the first room I came to. It was a bedroom—empty, though lit up; and never shall I forget how I started as I entered, on encountering the awful villian that was myself at full length in a pier-glass! Masked, armed and ragged, I was indeed fit carrion for a bullet or the hangman, and to one or the other I made up my mind. Nevertheless, I hid myself in the wardrobe behind the mirror; and there I stood shivering and cursing my fate, my folly, and Raffiles most of all—Raffies first and last—for I daresay half an hour. Then the wardrobe door was flung suddenly open; they had stolen into the room without a sound; and I was hauled downstairs an ignominious captive.

Gross scenes followed in the hall:

an ignominious captive.

Gross scenes followed in the hall; the ladies were now upon the stage, and at sight of the desperate criminal they screamed with one accord. In truth I must have given them fair truth I must have given them fair cause, though my mask was now torn away and hid nothing but my left ear. Rosenthall answered their shrieks with a roar for silence; the woman with the bath sponge hair swore at him shrilly in return; the place became a Babel impossible to describe. I remember wondering how long it would be before the police appeared. Purvis and the ladles were for calling them in and giving me in charge without

The Curtain Drops.

The curtain dropped yesterday afternoon on the final act of the Douma of Russia's first Parliament, when, under the spur of the threat of Governor Rechanborg to use military force to end the session, and with troops already converging on the Hotel Belvidere, where the meeting was held, the assembled members of the lower House, 186 in number, hurriedly adopted and signed an address to the people, which signed an address to the people, which signed an address to the people, which is thoroughly revolutionary in its nature, elected a perpetual executive committee, headed by Paul Dolgoraukoff, vice-president of the House, to carry on the work of liberation, and adjourned amidst characteristic Russian embracing and kissing.
