Mr. Edward Blake, Irish Nationalist member for the south division of Longford, called attention to the report of the royal commission on the financial relations of Great Britain and Ireland, and moved that it had established the existence of an undue burden of taxation upon Ireland, constituting a great grievance and making it the duty of the government to propose remedial legislation at an early day. Mr. Blake spoke of the economic conditions of Great Britain and Ireland, and said British rule had advanced the former but had failed to prosper Ireland. In conclusion Mr. Blake protested in behalf of the Irish party against the proposed new commission to enquire into the financial commission to enquire into the financial relations existing between Great Britain

Mr. Nosse makes an important point respecting the treaty of commerce and navigation between England and Japan, entered into two years ago, and which is to come into force in 1898. According to the terms of this treaty, any British colony which made application through the Imperial government for participation in the benefits of the most favored nation clause, would be so admitted, if such application were made within two years from the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.
