DISASTROUS FIRE ALONG INTERNATIONAL

Large Quantity of Pulpwood,
Poles and Ties Destroyed by Settler's Fire.

A large quantity of pulpwood, cedar poles and railway ties piled along the International right of way at Maitland, about fifty-eight miles from Campbellton was destroyed by fire caused by a settler clearing land one day last week.

The lumber belonged to a number of operators among whom are the Richard Mfg. Co., Meigs Pulpwood Co., Lynch & Fournier, B. A. Mowat and others.

The entire lot was covered by insurance and is valued roughly at about $70,000.

It is said that the settler had no permit to set fire. If this is so an example should be made of him as altogether too much valuable timber has been burned by just such carelessness.

BE CAREFUL.
This is the season for forest fires. Settlers, fishermen and others are reminded that a small fire is easily extinguished but when once it gets into the dry grass and underbrush it is impossible to check it. Watch your fires.

PORK AND BOOZE.
A story is told of the enterprising prohibition inspector at Bathurst. One day he thought he would run out to Gloucester Jct. to see how things were going in his line. He searched the freight shed and found nothing but general freight, among which was an innocent barrel of salt pork. Pork and beans are all right, but pork and booze. Why not? No sooner thought than acted upon. The barrel was removed and a few pieces of pork removed when a very attractive five gallon jar was revealed. The jar was confiscated and now the question is being asked "who squealed." The inspector is doing good work and the thirsty ones are becoming parched.

WOMAN "FEARLESS JOE."
When we out here in the constant turmoil of war are so sad in losing so good a comrade as Homer, we realize what all of you at home must suffer. Homer was the greatest boy I have ever known; he was respected and admired by every one who knew him. He was the bravest of the brave; in fact, he won the name of Fearless Joe, though he was never rash, being cool and collected even when all about him was confusion. To the new men he was pointed out as an example to follow, and indeed I have heard more than one man say that but for Homer he would have gone to pieces.

"The fight we were in was the recent German advance in the south. We received orders on March 22 to prepare to move from our position, and left at 4:30 a.m. on the 23rd. He went into action at daylight the following day. It was very misty, and at the same time the Germans had put over a smoke cloud, which was rolling over the country so that one could not see more than a few yards.

West Too Far Forward.
"Though a miscalculation, we went too far with the cars, without realizing that we were past our front line. We saw the German coming to the rear, and we were in a bad way. Every one jumped to get the guns out and prepare to meet them, while the drivers tried to get the cars turned round and to back them away. I was driving a car, and I had just time to shake Homer's hand and jokingly warn him to be careful, as he rushed along the road to mount his gun. He smiled back at me and said 'I think I'm going to have a chance to see a few of them in all this time.' That was the last I saw of him, and I little thought at the time that I would never again shake the hand of him whom I loved like a brother.

"We got some of the cars away behind ridges, where we waited, and very soon our wounded began to come back with the news that the boys were fighting hard, but that the Germans were too many for them.

Maimed Gun Alone.
"Very few of our Battery came out of that scrap, but those who did never life of telling of Homer's gallant bravery. He was in charge of a gun, and after every other man of the crew was either killed or wounded he went on firing into the on-coming horde, killing and wounding hundreds of them, till he finally received a bullet through the stomach. Those who saw him say that he never made a murmur, but just turned around and started back to an advanced dressing station. From there apparently, he was sent to No. 2 Stationary Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards.

"Every officer of our battery, except Capt. Nicholson, the O. C., was killed that morning. The Captain lost his right arm. A letter was received from him a few days ago and read out on parade, in which he especially mentioned Homer as one of the bravest he had ever known."

SCHOOL GROUND IMPROVEMENTS

Money Needed for This Work—
Tag Day Saturday
June 8th.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees held recently a committee was appointed to consider plans of improving the school grounds. Later this committee conferred with the teachers as to the means to be adopted for raising money for this purpose.

By an unanimous vote of the teachers it was decided to make an appeal to the citizens by having a Tag Day on June 8th. Sixteen young ladies from the High School have volunteered to carry out this plan.

It is to be hoped that the volunteers will be encouraged in this needed work by meeting with a hearty response.

The school grounds in many of the towns of our province are beautifully laid out and are a source of pride and pleasure to the people.

Lance Corporal Homer Joliat Dies Stinging Enemy Push.

Ottawa, Ont., June 3.—A thrilling story of the action in which Lance-Cpl. Homer Joliat, son of Inspector Emil Joliat who was mortally wounded has been received by the Inspector in a letter from Pte. H. C. Latham, of the Borden Motor Machine Gun Battery, who was the chum of the dead soldier. On April 4, Inspector Joliat received news of his son's death in No. 42 Stationary Hospital Amiens, though no details as to his wounds were given.

The letter written by Pte. Latham is dated from France on April 24th and reads as follows:

BATHURST PLAYERS AGAIN SUCCESSFUL

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" Well Received Here—Proceeds
For Red Cross.

The Bathurst Dramatic Club created a most favorable impression here Monday evening when they presented under the auspices of the Campbellton Women's Institute, for Red Cross purposes the "Mystery Farce," "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

The Opera House was well filled, to see this production which had been so highly spoken of, and we think we can safely say all enjoyed the production. This play is usually considered far above the reach of amateurs and in fact is not often attempted even by professionals outside the large cities, so that the success of the Bathurst Club in doing so exceptionally well with it is a notable achievement.

The scenery necessary for the presentation of the piece was all prepared by the producers, and was complete in every detail, much more so than is usually seen in the smaller cities, and added much to the success of the venture.

The various parts were taken in a professional manner and evidenced much painstaking and careful work by every member of the company. In fact it is seldom amateurs work together as smoothly as did the Bathurst ladies and gentlemen responsible for the production of "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

Miss Therault's orchestra once more gave its services to the rounding out of the programme, and needless to say was a source of keen enjoyment.

Following was the cast of players: "SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE." Characters in order of Entrance. Elijah Quimby—The Caretaker.

SUCCESSFUL EFFORT FOR HOTEL DIFU

Girls' Guild Produce "A Woman's Honor" in Creditable Manner.

The Campbellton Opera House was crowded to the doors Thursday evening to greet the Catholic Girls' Guild in their production of "A Woman's Honor." The young ladies were assisted by a number of young gentlemen. The entire performance was most creditable and the proceeds amounted to $210.50 which was handed over to the Hospital.

The leading parts were taken by Miss Marguerite M. Henry and Martin A. Kelly. Miss Henry taking the role of Olive and Mr. Kelly that of General Mark Lester. Both took their parts most admirably and delighted all.

Miss Theresa J. Barry as Sally, daughter of Robt. Glenn, also had a fine part to perform and gave entire satisfaction, as did also J. L. Roy as the General's private secretary in love with Sally.

Mr. Hugh A. Daley as Pedro, the General's half brother, ably performed his part, which was a particularly difficult one, and Miss Evangeline Roy as his wife gave entire satisfaction.

Messrs. A. L. Steeves in love with Olive and Gerald Wall as Dr. Garcon were all that could be desired, while A. Poirier as a Wall Street banker and Robt. Neeley as Glenn's butler came in for much favorable comment. The entertainment throughout was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The specialties which included step dancing by Mr. Omer Guidry of Campbellton and a violin solo by Mr. Alonzo Frenette of Nouvelle were exceedingly good.

KELLY—FERGUSON.
The home of Mr. Mitchell Ferguson of Flat Lands was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wed. June 5th at four o'clock when in the presence of about thirty invited guests, his daughter, Isabelle was united in marriage with Charles Stewart Kelly of Campbellton.

The bride looking very lovely in a gown of white tulle and duchess lace with the customary veil and orange blossoms, entered the drawing room on the arm of her father. Her only attendant was her little niece, Isabelle Ryan who acted as flower girl. Miss Daisy Ferguson played the wedding march.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wellington Camp, B. D. pastor of the Campbellton Baptist Church under a beautiful arch of evergreens and wild flowers.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room which was beautifully decorated with violets.

The many beautiful and costly gifts of silver, cut-glass, china, linen, furniture, etc., testify to the popularity of the happy couple. The groom's present to the bride was a set of French ivory.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left on the Maritime Express for a trip to St. John and other Maritime points. The bride's going away gown was of wine colored tulle with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Campbellton.

Many friends in Restigouche as well as in other places will join in wishing them every happiness and prosperity.

WILLIAM J. FLYNN.
The entry of the United States into the world-war led me to make the disclosures of facts embraced in this serial photodrama. The early events of the great conflict brought official recognition of the motion picture as a powerful medium of public opinion. I therefore felt that the screen would prove the most convincing and broadest medium through which to present the perils we have gone through, as striking indications of what may happen at any time through enemy spy activities.

"THE EAGLE'S EYE" AT THE IMPERIAL

drama Will Run as Serial.
See It.

The first episode of the serial photodrama, "The Eagle's Eye," presented by The Whartons, noted producers of great serials, in which Chief Flynn reveals the unwritten history of the Imperial German Government's spy plots in America, is called "The Hidden Death," and will be presented at the Imperial Theatre, Friday evening.

This episode shows how the leaders of Imperial Germany's spy system in America operated in contributing to the plans of the German naval staff to destroy the Lusitania. Ambassador von Bernstorff was so sure of her destruction he inserted an advertisement in the New York Times May 1, 1915, in effect warning Americans not to sail on her.

So certain was some one in Berlin that the Lusitania would be torpedoed, a medal commemorating the destruction of this ship was made and distributed two days before the tragedy occurred. She was sunk on May 7, and the medal was dated May 5, 1915.

The German naval staff, it would appear, had an exact date set for this great tragedy of the sea to occur, but owing to the fact that the sailing of the vessel was delayed, she did not reach the point where the submarine lay in wait for her till two days later than had been calculated. This was the first blow in a war of frightfulness that was intended to strike terror into the heart of the world and especially to warn America of the consequences of war.

The serial is one of the most interesting yet produced, and has many specially educational features which appeal to all classes. Every loyal citizen should see it.
