

MR. McMURRICH'S PARTY

AND THE PLATFORM OF THE NATIONAL LIBERAL UNION.

What the Papers say of it—How it is Feared for Existence—Opinions from Near and Far.

The following extracts from Canadian papers give an idea of what is thought of the National Liberal Union recently floated in this city.

The present mayor of Toronto, on the other hand, is a man for a small party, who mistakes the kind feeling which could honor and the entire absence of any feeling of the popularity which is the natural tribute to positive qualities, has come out as president of the National Liberal Union, supported by a number of gentlemen, who are the only ones known to fame in that great man, Mr. Hallam. Third parties have been rather sufficient in number, but Mr. McMurrich has the confidence of the masses.

From the Montreal Times. There is not much that is new in the platform, and what there is will scarcely be of any interest to sober minds. We are sorry to say that this address is permeated with a rashness and sometimes even with what appears to us a want of candor, which detract greatly from its value.

From the Northern Standard. The objects of the nation may seem important but the efforts of its members are properly directed and proceed from patriotic motives, only good can result from them.

From the St. Catharines Journal. It will be seen from the above that the new bantling for political place is not very far from the mark. Whether it will survive for any length of time will be determined by the skill of its men than by constitutional vigor.

From the Toronto Mail. Mr. McMurrich is not the first man who has conjured up an imaginary party, and evoked from his inner consciousness a fantastic policy; but we venture to say that no inventive genius of the sort has ever allowed his motive to be so open and national.

From the Montreal Mirror. That the new party is not in earnest seems to be borne out by the fact that its plans do not dovetail imperially. It talks of imperial federation in one breath and the right to make our own commercial treaties in the next.

From the Ottawa Citizen. While giving the promoters of this new movement full credit for sincerity, we express the opinion that as a distinct organization the National Liberal Union's prospects are not particularly bright, and that, consequently, it will fail to establish itself as a permanent and useful section of the great body of political opinion.

From the Montreal Gazette. Imperially, as a declaration is fought at by the leading men of the Liberal party, and is the subject of a long and elaborate report of the Liberal press.

MONEY AND TRADE.

The New York stocks advanced on nearly every line, but did not close at the highest point.

The Bank of Commerce has declared a dividend of 4 per cent. Hudson Bay is 2 1/2. All stock for Dec. 1 are to be transferred on Saturday next, and except Federal bank stock, which is to go through Monday.

The Montreal market for stocks was again weak and tumbled to lower prices all over the list. The decline was nowhere so very marked however, as in the case of Bank of Montreal and St. Paul railway stocks.

From the Montreal Intelligence. The party contains some queer elements. With several good specific points there is an ample supply of "glittering generalities."

From the Montreal Standard. The new party may not have a long life, but if it saves the country from losing its political morality altogether it will have performed a great work.

From the Montreal Standard. It is evident that the colonies should either have more intimate relations with the mother country, or become independent allies. That is the idea which is at the bottom of the movement.

From the Montreal Standard. The ship may be good, and the sailors brave and true, but without a captain they are of no avail against the elements.

From the Montreal Standard. The platform is composed of so idiotic planks that it has not adopted prohibition as one. Therefore it has greatly lessened its usefulness.

From the Montreal Standard. The objects of the nation may seem important but the efforts of its members are properly directed and proceed from patriotic motives.
