NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.—"I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. During my sickness I had been obliged to get some one to look after my home for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after it myself. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine in turn with the Vegetable Compound, and I certainly recommend these medicines to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 180 Jos. Janisse Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful times, run-down feelings and weakness are symptoms to be noted. Women suffering from these troubles, which they so often have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. All druggists sell this medicine.

The high winds of Friday and Saturday have about completely destroyed the celery beds near Thsford, some of them being covered with three or four inches of dirt.

Two Boys Who Like Farming

Nearly all normal boys are fond of animals, and can be induced to take an interest in the live stock of the farm if given a proper chance. It is unreasonable, however, to expect any boy to become interested in ill-bred, ugly, half-nourished animals, and no person can blame him if he fails to become enthusiastic over acting as valet to a line-up of "crow-baits." Undersuch conditions, "doing chores" becomes a nightmare and a horror and the boy often makes up his mind to place as much distance as possible between himself and such work at the earliest opportunity.

The farmer who has boys growing up about him will do well to give attention to the question of getting some of them interested in feeding a few animals which are better than the general run of farm live stock. If he can develop one enthusiastic stockman upon his farm, he will have accomplished something which will return him large dividends in the future, and he will not have to complain that none of his boys take an own feeding, and very liberal prizes are offered. No feature of the show creates so much interest as the boys' calf-feeding competition, and an enthusiastic gallery always watches the placing of the awards.

The competition is restricted to beef animals, and the leading beef breeds, Shorthorn, Hereford, and Angus, are always represented. The competition of 1924 was a marked victory for Shorthorns, five out of the six top prizes going to representatives of this breed. First prize was won by a Shorthorn calf shown by George Tait, Warrenton, Man. This win meant $150 in prize money, the regular first prize being $100, to which was added a special of $50 offered by the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association for the first prize calf if sired by a Shorthorn bull. The calf also won first in the open class, which meant another $35, and was finally sold at 60 cents per pound, which amounted to $572.80. Altogether, therefore, this boy had a tidy sum of money for his effort, and he is convinced that feeding Short-

This is George Tait, Warrenton, Man., and his Shorthorn calf which stood first in a class of 77 entries in the Boys' Calf Feeding Competition at Brandon, Man., in 1924. The prize money and the sale price of the calf amounted to nearly $600.00. No wonder George is proud of his calf, and that he thinks feeding Shorthorn calves a good business.

Interest in the farm. Aside from the point of keeping boys on the farm, there is the fact that keeping better stock and feeding it in the way it should be fed will materially increase the profits from the farm, so that the farmer has everything to gain and nothing to lose in making an experiment such as has been suggested.

Exhibitions have awakened to the importance of encouraging boys and girls to take more interest in live stock, and at many fairs in Canada the most interesting and popular class is the one in which boys and girls exhibit animals of their own feeding. The value of the training afforded by such an exhibition is hard to over estimate, for the boys and girls who compete in these classes are learning valuable lessons which they will never forget—lessons which will make them better farmers and better citizens.

One of the pioneer fairs in encouraging boys to exhibit, is the annual Spring Show held at Brandon, Man. At this show, it is not uncommon to see between seventy and eighty boys exhibiting calves of their horn calves is a good business proposition.

In 1922, Richard Hamilton, North Brandon, Man., won the boys' calf-feeding competition with a Shorthorn steer. This calf also won the open class and the grand championship of the show, for which he got another $50 special offered by the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association. The calf was sold at 70 cents per pound, and when Richard proceeded to count up, he found himself the proud possessor of $1,001.00 in cash and a gold watch.

Other cases could be cited, but the lesson is that these boys got results by picking good Shorthorn calves, and then going about it in an intelligent manner to make the calves still better. Think this over, you parents who have boys and who would like to keep some of them on the farm, and if you would like further information regarding Shorthorn cattle, write to G. E. Day, Guelph, Ont., or to James B. Davidson Carman, Man., for useful pointers published by the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association.

TROUBLE

How good we may think we can manage

But trouble will work in somewhere. It seems that the demons of damage will catch us before we're aware.

But all trouble should be utilized. Exploited as much as we can. And it never should be criticised. Because it is testing the man.

A fanning mill truly in living. Dispel the chaff and the weeds. The kernels, and grains, it is giving. The kind that forever succeeds.

All trouble at first must be galling. It grates on our senses so much. Producing endurance, and calling. "Tis better to suffer it such."

The only best way to produce it. For character grows out of that. And trouble we bear to induce it. To give us a hope that's ecilat.

Yes, character and its formation. The biggest, and chiefest concern. It's wonderful, mystic creation. It's growth, and development learn.

Creating a hope that is yearning. For the "fulness of God" in us now. God's love like a flood overwhelming. Our hearts! for His wisdom knows how.

The mind of the Master is wanted. And trouble creates the desire. The mind of the Master is granted. When its value we learn to admire.

Watford, June, 1, 1925. W. B. Laws
