Chesley, of Hantsport, on a motor trip to Yarmouth, visited his sisters at Upper Granville. Miss Mary Albee Chesley, M. A. B. Sc., after a visit of several days with her cousins at the old Crowley homestead, Granville, returned on Saturday to her home in Lunenburg, with her father, Judge S. A. Chesley, K. C., D. C. L. She leaves in September for England, where, gristly to the regret of many friends throughout the Province and elsewhere, they will in future reside, thus following the example of their distinguished relative, Mr. Justice Russell, late of Halifax.

Miss Marjorie Leslie, of New Haven, Conn., en route to her old home at Woodville, stopped off on Saturday for a few days visit with her brother, Mr. K. Leslie and Mrs. Leslie. Mrs. A. P. LIGHTS ON AGAIN SUNDAY NIGHT

Bridgetown was without electric power from Friday night to Sunday night. Trouble developed by the commutator shorting the armature wires, the Superintendent stated. Mr. Roy White, assistant superintendent, from St. Stephen, was called in and located the trouble. On Sunday night lights were on as usual. Saturday was a busy night in town and there was considerable scurrying around for kerosene lamps and candles and happy was the man who had a mantle gas lamp. Among the stores of the town, Mr. A. J. Burns probably put up the best illumination. There were some humorous incidents among them a retort by a legal practitioner of the town. He appeared like Diogenes of Plato, or one of the other old Greek philosophers, we do not recollect exactly which as our school days are far away. Asked what he was carrying a lamp for he said: "I'm looking for an honest man but am afraid I shall have to get a bigger lamp." We would not pass this on even for a joke if it were not well known that there are only ten dishonest men in the whole town.

A SPLENDID PLAY AN WORDS.

A splendid play an words, one of the best yet floated into being here a few days ago. Here is the story in brief. The Mayor of a town, (we won't say how far away) took occasion to lay off a workman engaged in construction. The matter did not give rise to any special arguments but some of the wags of the town decided to assert that it did and calling the man aside asked him what he meant by addressing such language to the Mayor. "Don't you know," said one, "that he is the chief magistrate of the town and could put you in jail for what you said." He had jurisdiction to lock you up."

"George Dixon! George Dixon," said the man, "what the H— has George Dixon to do about it. He wasn't there."

It then looked like a tight to the finish, but the Cider Town boys went "into the air" when Berwick pounded Lockett; in seventh, and when they finally retired the side, the score stood 12-6. Neither side tallied in the remaining innings.
