

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN CANADA.

We are indebted to the Globe for the following report:—

This being St. Patrick's Day, on which every true son of Erin feels it his duty to show his loyalty to his native land, and his veneration for its patron saint by an almost religious observance of its recurrence, the Irish societies of this and neighbouring cities made this an occasion for a display upon a larger and grander scale than has, perhaps, ever before been witnessed in Toronto.

The procession was formed in front of the La Salle Institute, and proceeded to St. Michael's Cathedral.

The procession arrived at the cathedral shortly after 10 o'clock, when Mass was offered, as usual, and a sermon delivered by Father Cassidy.

THE SERMON.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Cassidy, of Thornhill, who took for his text Hebrews xiii., 7 and 9. They were assembled to put in practice the advice contained in the words of the text, and to commemorate and do honor to their saint and prelate, St. Patrick.

On this memorable day they did not stand isolated or alone in doing this; for in every part of Christendom where the children of St. Patrick had found an abiding place, and had made a home; on every shore to which they were exiled or had wandered to; there, as well as in the old land from which they all sprang, will this day be given to the praise and honour of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

He felt that on this great day their hearts were animated with sentiments befitting the occasion; that they had come there to pray to God for Ireland and the Irish; to honor St. Patrick, and beg of him to extend his intercession to them. The preacher then proceeded to speak of the virtues of their patron saint, and of the result of his labor as evidenced in after ages; and testifying to the power of faith he taught, and to the depth of religion implanted in the hearts of the people of Ireland.

be so mean and contemptible as to do anything which would bring disgrace on the countries they loved and the religion they honoured. If there were any such present let them be turned out from their midst and cast on one side, as being unworthy to sit with the true sons of St. Patrick.

The service was then proceeded with, Rev. Father Rooney, Vicar General, was celebrant.

The societies, with bands playing and banners displayed, then commenced their march through the principal streets, and on arriving at De La Salle Institute, the societies took their places in line along Duke and George streets, a large crowd of persons occupying the greater part of the road, though rain at that time was falling somewhat heavily.

THE CONCERT.

In the evening a grand concert was given at the La Salle Hall, where a very large audience had assembled. The programme comprised several of the Irish national songs, and some fine airs, all appropriate to the occasion.

Between the parts Brother Arnold announced that several gentlemen were present who would deliver addresses.

Hon. C. Fraser, M.P.P., was then introduced and said he regretted that pressure of business elsewhere prevented him remaining longer, as he had hoped to have enjoyed for a much longer time the pleasure of listening to the songs of Ireland, and the patriotic inspirations which they all breathed so fully and completely.

Mr. John O'Donohoe, M.P., then came forward and delivered an eloquent and interesting address. He said it afforded him very great pleasure to meet so many of Ireland's sons on this St. Patrick's day, when every Irish heart thrills with fervor and calls up memories of the past, ever green in their hearts; and these memories were not called up in vain, for the pleasure he had experienced during the day, and more especially during the evening, convinced him that the recalling of the scenes and memories of their native land, would be found to be a source of profit and lasting benefit to them, as raising their moral nature and capacities.

only taken up the sword as a last resort. That was the doctrine of O'Connell, which he enunciated alike from the platform and from the hill of Tara. Such men were taking the lead now—notably in the case of Isaac Butt. Let Home Rule be adopted in Ireland, and the tide of emigration would be turned to Canada, and no more truly loyal people than the Irish would be found on the face of the earth.

Mr. Hawkins, of Blandford, followed in a brief address, much to the same purport.

LONDON, ONT.

St. Patrick's day was celebrated here by a procession of the Father Matthew Temperance Society from the school-house to the Roman Catholic Cathedral, headed by their new brass band, and by divine services in the church.

BELLEVILLE.

St. Patrick's day was duly observed here by a large procession at eleven a.m., by the Sons of St. Patrick, who proceeded to St. Michael's Church, where an eloquent sermon was preached by the Very Rev. Vicar-General Farrelly.

KINGSTON.

The following is abridged from the Daily News:—The anniversary of the Tutelar Saint of Ireland was celebrated to-day with the usual eclat. The weather, which for the past few days has been fine, was now changed to murky, gloomy, sky, but this did not damp the ardour of the Irishmen turning out in great numbers to celebrate that day which is justly considered devoted to Ireland.

The procession was as large as ever. It was formed in front of the City Hall, and started a little after ten o'clock in the following order, marshalled by Messrs. Jas. Rogers and Michael Welch, assisted by Messrs. Mooney and Mark Welch.

Mass was then proceeded with; after which the Procession reformed, and marched through the principal streets, and, on arriving at the City Buildings, was addressed by Mr. P. Doherty, President of the St. Patrick's Society, who spoke eloquently on the subject of Home Rule for Ireland.

Having alluded to the many years that had elapsed since he first was enrolled a member of the St. Patrick's Society, and the changes that since then have taken place, he passed to the all engrossing topic of Home Rule on which the Irish have set their hearts. Of Ireland's ability to manage her own affairs he adduced her successful management of her trade and monetary institutions.

The learned gentleman also made some remarks upon the relative positions of the Catholic minority in Upper Canada and that of the Protestant minority in the Lower Province, as illustrative of the illiberality of the first named:—

Now my friends I have a word to say to you about Canada, for after all, as much as we love Ireland, where the ashes of our forefathers rest, our devotion and duty to Canada are paramount. Canada ought to be our first consideration as adopted citizens of the finest and best governed country on earth, and where civil and religious liberty are secured to all by these constitutional guarantees that only free men can fully appreciate.

He then condemned the proposed incorporation of secret political religious societies, and deprecated the introduction of a spirit of know-nothingism exclusiveness in politics. We should all make the good of Canada our first object, but not to the exclusion of old countrymen, and Irish, whose love for their Fatherland formed a noble trait in the Irish national character.

Our countrymen are celebrating "The Day" in the four quarters of the globe. On this day will they turn towards Ireland as the Mecca of their devotions. In Africa her sons have fought and bled to maintain the power of England, and have just marched to victory. Her arms have ever been victorious when in her ranks were found the Irish soldier.

the age, himself an Irishman. (Cheers) Even to-day the chivalry which is so distinguishing a characteristic of the Celtic race appears in all its ancient splendour in the person of the renowned and brilliant McMahon (loud and prolonged cheering) Duke of Magenta, President of the French Republic, the first soldier of his day, the hope of the Celtic people. (Cheers.) He may yet be called upon to a still more distinguishing part on the world's stage, and curb the ambition of a Prince who has persecuted the children of the Sainted Loyola, trampled upon the sacred rights of conscience and religion, and who has striven to intimidate the Great Pius in the Government of his church, and the maintenance of the rights of its pastors and people. (Applause.) The old man of the Vatican is undismayed. He will continue to maintain, with the help of God, his authority over two hundred million of Catholics, who acknowledge and will continue to acknowledge him as their only earthly ecclesiastical ruler and guide. (Prolonged cheering.)

JOLIETTE COLLEGE.

The students of the College gave a grand soiree last night, (17th inst.) The crowded house by which they were greeted, manifests the sympathy which Canadian people have for Ireland; indeed, the cordial reception which the Irish students meet in the Canadian Colleges, strongly affirms the assertion made by Father Burke in his late lecture in Cork.

Mr. M. Kehoe opened the entertainment by a discourse in which he, in the most delicate terms, defended his country, in what is generally attributed to them as their faults.

The frequent airs discoursed by the Brass Band, speaks highly of the musical talents of the College, in a word, was well calculated to bring back the Irish heart, to those golden days, when Ireland's bard had strung his harp and sung his songs of freedom. At the close of the evening, the Hon. G. Daby, M.P., addressed the students and Irish people assembled, paying an elegant tribute to the Green Isle.

NICOLET COLLEGE.

On the eighteenth, Nicolet College was the scene of one of those impressive family entertainments, originated in honor of the glorious Apostles of Ireland.

Owing to the talent and interest of the performers, seconded by the experience of their able manager, Prof. O. H. de Châtillon, the soiree was productive of much satisfaction and pleasure. The short but appropriate addresses, the lively and soul-inspiring music elicited frequent rounds of applause, and the ludicrous farce entitled: "The Mischievous Nigger," accomplished its object worthily, judging from the repeated bursts of laughter which accompanied its performance.

Breakfast—Epps's Cocoa—Grateful and Comforting. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills.

While I was under the process of Erysipelas the Hon. Dr. — called upon me; I told him how much of the Hypo I had used. He said: "Fellows! Hypophosphites is a good medicine, an excellent tonic, and no doubt had drawn the acidity that was in my blood to the surface, and thus prevented it from attacking some important organ of my system."

I have conversed with many who have used it, and all say they were benefited by it. For myself, I have much pleasure in saying it improved my general health amazingly. It gives a clear skin and healthy countenance, but to know its virtues it must be used, and were it within the reach of all classes, I believe it would be used universally; yes, by the well, to renew their age, and by the sick to make them well.

It makes an old person look ten years younger.—"This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.
