

not think it was giving them what they wanted and they thought they would break the machine and then get the necessary changes. I believe the farmers of Saskatchewan want security with freedom just as the rest of us do, and perhaps in the very near future we shall have things built up in that province on a more satisfactory basis.

Dealing again with the old soldier settler problem, I suggest that we have to continue pressing for this, particularly because of certain articles that appeared in the Legionary, the official organ of the Canadian Legion. I have seen the May issue, which contained a bitter attack upon the requests that have been and are being made by soldier settlers for clear titles to their land. It was written by a civil servant of the government, who, I understand, went to the legion convention and got in his work there. He wandered into a committee room where a committee was dealing with the resolution on soldier settler business, and burnt-out veterans, and said that he hoped he was not intruding. When the facts are known I think it will be seen that he was intruding and that he is not wanted by the soldier settlers of Canada. I cannot place all the blame on this particular civil servant. The minister in charge has to accept his responsibility also, and if the Veterans' Land Act which is being administered at the present time is to be a success, then the business of the old Soldier Settlement Act and the Veterans' Land Act must be removed from the charge of the Minister of Mines and Resources and a different man put in as director. I am quite satisfied that we shall not and cannot have a satisfactory administration while the present set-up exists there.
