IS THERE A LETTER ?

The World does not know whether such a letter passed or not, but the prevalence of so much gossip prompts. the belief that there is something in the story.

If such a letter is in existence a very peculiar state of affairs emerges. How ould Sir Wilfrid Laurier, bearing in mind the principles of responsible goverument, pledge his word to R. L. Borden that another session would precede a general election? Is it not possible that providence or some other cause might make it imperative for the governor-general to dissolve the house? At first glance, the writing of such a letter and its delivery to the nominal eader of the opposition would seem to partake of the character of a treasonable act.
