

ution
frand of the day.
get Carter's,
Carter's,
nd demand
Little Liver Pills.

AN COMPANIES
N CANADA LOAN
D SAVINGS CO.
established 1863.
76 Church-st., Toronto.
ad street and Postage-avenue,
Winnipeg.

Capital.....$3,000.00
Capital.....1,500.00
Capital.....775.00
Capital.....70.00
ALTERS, LEE,
Manager.

CANADA LOAN & SAVINGS
COMPANY.
King and Victoria-sts., Toronto
A. COX, President.

Capital.....$3,000.00
Capital.....1,500.00
Capital.....775.00
Capital.....70.00
ALTERS, LEE,
Manager.

NEY TO LOAN
Large and small sums.
No valuation fee.
Savings & Loan Co., Limited,
CHURCH-STREET, 136

DIAMOND MUTUAL LOAN AND INVESTMENT CO.
Capital.....$5,000.00
Capital.....2,500.00
Capital.....1,250.00
Capital.....625.00
Savings & Loan Co., Limited,
CHURCH-STREET, 136

TS CORPORATION
OF ONTARIO.
Post Vauits 19-21 King
St. W., Toronto.

Capital.....$1,000.00
Capital.....500.00
Capital.....250.00
Capital.....125.00
Savings & Loan Co., Limited,
CHURCH-STREET, 136

Hon. J. C. Atkins, P.C.
Hon. J. C. Atkins, P.C.
Hon. J. C. Atkins, P.C.
Hon. J. C. Atkins, P.C.
Hon. J. C. Atkins, P.C.

PRIZE
in FURS manufactured goods
kably
PRICES.

ION WILL PROVE
H. ROGERS
ng and Church-sts.

ULATION
buy and sell New York stocks and
and grain and provisions on market. Telephone 201.

A. KING & CO.,
King-street East, Toronto, Ont.

AND JONES
Finance Agency, Ltd.
Office, 107, Mt. Pleasant 107, Mt. Pleasant, Toronto.
Represented on and National of Edinburgh of North America
ent American Co.

POSTAL GUIDE-DURING
of January, 1896, make use as follows:

Jan. 1, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 2, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 3, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 4, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 5, 1896, 1.00

Jan. 6, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 7, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 8, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 9, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 10, 1896, 1.00

Jan. 11, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 12, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 13, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 14, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 15, 1896, 1.00

Jan. 16, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 17, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 18, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 19, 1896, 1.00
Jan. 20, 1896, 1.00

PATENTS PROCURED

In Canada, Great Britain, United States, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Portugal, Russia, Sweden, Norway,
Denmark, Greece, Turkey, Egypt,
Siam, Persia, Japan, China, India,
Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand,
South Africa, Canada, Mexico,
Central America, West Indies,
Caribbean Sea, etc.

SEVENTEENTH YEAR

WILL NOT VISIT QUEBEC

BECAUSE OF THE DEATH OF PRINCE
HENRY OF BATTENBURG.

The Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen Cancel Their Trip to the Caribbean - Charlotte - The Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen have decided to cancel their trip to the Caribbean islands
because of the death of Prince
Henry of Battenburg.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.-In consequence of the death of Prince Henry of Battenburg, the Governor-General and Countess of Aberdeen have given up their trip to the Caribbean islands.

A telegram was received here yesterday stating that Bishop Labreque of Chicoutimi had sent out notices to all his curates, asking them to instruct their people to vote for no man who was not pledged to vote for the Remedial Bill in Parliament.

Charlotte, where a bye-election takes place tomorrow is Bishop Labreque's candidate. Mr. Clon is the Conservative candidate, and Mr. Anson the rouge standard-bearer.

St. John, as a winter port, is booming. Three trans-Atlantic lines have vessels regularly visiting the port and now it is announced that the liner of steamships is coming. The New York and Porto Rico Company will put vessels on the route between St.
John and Halifax, and Porto Rico.

The Spero is a steel steamer of 321 tons register, was built in 1891 and is under the Norwegian flag. Monthly trips will be made during the winter and spring.
Sugar and molasses can be secured as cheaply as elsewhere. This line offers a good chance for Ontario shippers, particularly millers, by which to send their goods to Europe.

Mr. Hazen, M.P., has received a despatch from St. John, stating that the line of steamships will be made during the winter and spring. Sugar and molasses can be secured as cheaply as elsewhere. This line offers a good chance for Ontario shippers, particularly millers, by which to send their goods to Europe.

The Cabinet had a two hours' session yesterday, when considerable routine business was done. The report of the sub-committee on the Remedial Bill was submitted to the Cabinet. The Cabinet business was taken up, and the report of the sub-committee on the Remedial Bill was submitted to the Cabinet. The Cabinet business was taken up, and the report of the subcommittee on the Remedial Bill was submitted to the Cabinet.

Dr. Sprague, M.P., introduced a deputation to the Minister of Public Works on Friday, consisting of Mayor Johnson of Meaford, ex-Mayor of Meaford, W. W. Stephens and C. R. King, sufficient to put in a claim for a grant for Meaford harbor.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

An absurd rumor is in circulation that three of the Ministers had resigned. The report was traced to Grit, and it was found that it was a case of the wish to be evidence, and intended to do harm to the Government.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

The Government has received a de-
putation from the District of Nipigon
consisting of Mr. J. B. Klock, of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills, and Mr. J. B. Klock,
of Klock's Mills.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY

MONDAY MORNING JANUARY 27 1896

VARIOUS VIEWS OF IT.

SALISBURY A STATESMAN

AND ONE OF THE FIRST RANK, SAYS
MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Colonial Secretary speaks to the People of Birmingham this evening
at a public meeting on the subject of
the suggestion for concentrated action
in regard to Armenia.

London, Jan. 25.-The Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a speech at Birmingham this evening.
He congratulated the country upon
having at the head of affairs Lord Salisbury, whose judgment and resolution had placed him at the very first
among the European statesmen.

Referring to the Gualauna boundary
dispute, Mr. Chamberlain said that it had been a long time since the subject had been brought before the public, and that it was a matter of importance to the British Empire.
He said that the British were disposed to give importance to the intervention of the United States. There
seemed to be some misapprehension
on both sides. The opinion seemed to have prevailed in England that American statesmen wished to pick a quarrel,
while the Americans seemed to have
thought that the British were disposed to impugn the Monroe doctrine,
which they rightly held to be the most important to their own security.

They also seemed to have thought that the British were disposed to interfere in a harsh and arbitrary manner
with a smaller state. He believed that the American people would all that is best in the United States would regard
with horror a needless war with their own blood and treasure. He also believed that the British were disposed
to have a high reputation for straightforward, honorable dealing, would never drive the two great nations to strife. On the other hand, the Americans could be assured from the utterances of Lord Salisbury and Mr. A. J.
Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury, that the British were disposed to have a single inch of American
territory beyond what she already rightfully possessed.

All that was necessary to settle the trouble was time
and fuller knowledge. Meanwhile he would re-echo and reciprocate from the bottom of his heart, Wolcott's noble
words: "Blood is thicker than water."
(Loud cheers.) That would always be the sentiment of every British. The two nations were more closely allied
in sentiment and interest than any other nations, and while the British looked with
trifling interest upon the possibility of the Stars
and Stripes being torn from the Union Jack
cause sanctioned by community of sentiment.

The Armenian Horrors.
He added that while the continental
nations regarded the sufferings of the Armenians with comparative indifference, the United Kingdom felt the sufferings of the Armenians as a de-
late afternoon, at the rooms of the Royal Medical Society, the Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a speech to the Armenians.

A news agency claims to have an advance copy of the report, a synopsis
of which will be given in this report.
Mr. Chamberlain's opinion that the Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the British were bound to intervene, was
the subject of the speech.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY

MONDAY MORNING JANUARY 27 1896

VARIOUS VIEWS OF IT.

SALISBURY A STATESMAN

AND ONE OF THE FIRST RANK, SAYS
MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Colonial Secretary speaks to the People of Birmingham this evening
at a public meeting on the subject of
the suggestion for concentrated action
in regard to Armenia.

London, Jan. 25.-The Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a
speech at Birmingham this evening.
He congratulated the country upon
having at the head of affairs Lord
Salisbury, whose judgment and resolution had placed him at the very first
among the European statesmen.

Referring to the Gualauna boundary
dispute, Mr. Chamberlain said that
it had been a long time since the
subject had been brought before the
public, and that it was a matter of
importance to the British Empire.
He said that the British were disposed to give importance to the intervention of the United States. There
seemed to be some misapprehension
on both sides. The opinion seemed to
have prevailed in England that Ameri-
can statesmen wished to pick a quarrel,
while the Americans seemed to have
thought that the British were disposed to impugn the Monroe doctrine,
which they rightly held to be the most important to their own security.

They also seemed to have thought
that the British were disposed to in-
terfere in a harsh and arbitrary manner
with a smaller state. He believed that
the American people would all that is
best in the United States would regard
with horror a needless war with their
own blood and treasure. He also be-
lieved that the British were disposed
to have a high reputation for straight-
forward, honorable dealing, would
never drive the two great nations to
strife. On the other hand, the Americans could be assured from the utter-
ances of Lord Salisbury and Mr. A. J.
Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury, that the British were disposed to have a single inch of American
territory beyond what she already
rightfully possessed.

All that was necessary to settle the trouble was time
and fuller knowledge. Meanwhile he
would re-echo and reciprocate from the bottom of his heart, Wolcott's noble
words: "Blood is thicker than water."
(Loud cheers.) That would always be
the sentiment of every British. The
two nations were more closely allied
in sentiment and interest than any other
nations, and while the British looked with
trifling interest upon the possibility of the Stars
and Stripes being torn from the Union Jack
cause sanctioned by community of sentiment.

The Armenian Horrors.
He added that while the continental
nations regarded the sufferings of the Armenians with comparative indiffer-
ence, the United Kingdom felt the
sufferings of the Armenians as a de-
late afternoon, at the rooms of the Royal Medical Society, the Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a
speech to the Armenians.

A news agency claims to have an advance copy of the report, a synopsis
of which will be given in this report.
Mr. Chamberlain's opinion that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the British were bound to intervene, was
the subject of the speech.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY

MONDAY MORNING JANUARY 27 1896

VARIOUS VIEWS OF IT.

SALISBURY A STATESMAN

AND ONE OF THE FIRST RANK, SAYS
MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Colonial Secretary speaks to the People of Birmingham this evening
at a public meeting on the subject of
the suggestion for concentrated action
in regard to Armenia.

London, Jan. 25.-The Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a
speech at Birmingham this evening.
He congratulated the country upon
having at the head of affairs Lord
Salisbury, whose judgment and resolution had placed him at the very first
among the European statesmen.

Referring to the Gualauna boundary
dispute, Mr. Chamberlain said that
it had been a long time since the
subject had been brought before the
public, and that it was a matter of
importance to the British Empire.
He said that the British were disposed to give importance to the intervention of the United States. There
seemed to be some misapprehension
on both sides. The opinion seemed to
have prevailed in England that Ameri-
can statesmen wished to pick a quarrel,
while the Americans seemed to have
thought that the British were disposed to impugn the Monroe doctrine,
which they rightly held to be the most important to their own security.

They also seemed to have thought
that the British were disposed to in-
terfere in a harsh and arbitrary manner
with a smaller state. He believed that
the American people would all that is
best in the United States would regard
with horror a needless war with their
own blood and treasure. He also be-
lieved that the British were disposed
to have a high reputation for straight-
forward, honorable dealing, would
never drive the two great nations to
strife. On the other hand, the Americans could be assured from the utter-
ances of Lord Salisbury and Mr. A. J.
Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury, that the British were disposed to have a single inch of American
territory beyond what she already
rightfully possessed.

All that was necessary to settle the trouble was time
and fuller knowledge. Meanwhile he
would re-echo and reciprocate from the bottom of his heart, Wolcott's noble
words: "Blood is thicker than water."
(Loud cheers.) That would always be
the sentiment of every British. The
two nations were more closely allied
in sentiment and interest than any other
nations, and while the British looked with
trifling interest upon the possibility of the Stars
and Stripes being torn from the Union Jack
cause sanctioned by community of sentiment.

The Armenian Horrors.
He added that while the continental
nations regarded the sufferings of the Armenians with comparative indiffer-
ence, the United Kingdom felt the
sufferings of the Armenians as a de-
late afternoon, at the rooms of the Royal Medical Society, the Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a
speech to the Armenians.

A news agency claims to have an advance copy of the report, a synopsis
of which will be given in this report.
Mr. Chamberlain's opinion that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the British were bound to intervene, was
the subject of the speech.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the British
were bound to intervene, and that the
Armenians were the victims of a
system of oppression, and that the
British were bound to intervene.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY

MONDAY MORNING JANUARY 27 1896

VARIOUS VIEWS OF IT.

SALISBURY A STATESMAN

AND ONE OF THE FIRST RANK, SAYS
MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Colonial Secretary speaks to the People of Birmingham this evening
at a public meeting on the subject of
the suggestion for concentrated action
in regard to Armenia.

London, Jan. 25.-The Right Hon.
Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, delivered a
speech at Birmingham this evening.
He congratulated the country upon
having at the head of affairs Lord
Salisbury, whose judgment and resolution had placed him at the very first
among the European statesmen.

Referring to the Gualauna boundary
dispute, Mr. Chamberlain said that
it had been a long time since the
subject had been brought before the
public, and that it was a matter of
importance to the British Empire.
He said that the British were disposed to give importance to the intervention of the United States. There
seemed to be some misapprehension
on both sides. The opinion seemed to
have prevailed in England that Ameri-
can statesmen wished to pick a quarrel,
while the Americans seemed to have
thought that the British were disposed to impugn the Monroe doctrine,
which they rightly held to be the most important to their own security.

They also seemed to have thought
that the British were disposed to in-
terfere in a harsh and arbitrary manner
with a smaller state. He believed that
the American people would all that is
best in the United States would regard
with horror a needless war with their
own blood and treasure. He also be-
lieved that the British were disposed
to have a high reputation for straight-
forward, honorable dealing, would
never drive the two great nations to
strife. On the other hand, the Americans could be assured from the utter-
ances of Lord Salisbury and Mr. A. J.
Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury, that the British were disposed to have a single inch of American
territory beyond what she already
rightfully possessed.

All that was necessary to settle the trouble was time
and fuller knowledge. Meanwhile he
would re-echo and reciprocate from the bottom of his heart, Wolcott's noble
words: "Blood is thicker than water."
(Loud cheers.) That would always be
the sentiment of every British. The
two nations were more closely allied
in sentiment and interest than any other
nations, and while the British looked with
trifling interest upon the possibility of the Stars
and Stripes being torn from the Union Jack
cause sanctioned by community of sentiment.

The Armenian Horrors.
He added that while the continental
nations regarded the sufferings of the Armenians with comparative indiffer-
ence, the United Kingdom felt the
sufferings of the Armenians as a de-