Toronto Company Denies Having Bought Stolen Nickel

In giving evidence at a recent special enquiry into the sale of scrap nickel alleged to have been stolen from the Quebec arsenal, Manager Fitch of the Quebec Scrap Metal Company stated that a quantity of metal had been purchased by the J. P. Scott Company of Toronto at 20 cents a pound.

This the J. P. Scott Company deny. The company bought some scrap brass and copper from the Quebec company, and found included in the consignment about 2000 pounds of scrap nickel. They were doubtful about the ownership of the nickel, and informed Col. Sherwood of the Dominion Police at Ottawa, who promised to investigate. They have the nickel stored awaiting the instructions of Col. Sherwood.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 3.—A fortnight hence parliament will open, and the session promises to be an exciting one. It may be the last before a general election. It is well understood that the opposition leaders have no intention of agreeing to a further extension of the life of parliament, and if they come to such a decision definitely in caucus when the session opens there is no doubt that the government will insist upon a "show-down" in the house, in which case an appeal fo the country would be anticipated within a short while.

However, there has been a great change in public opinion recently. The prejudice against holding an election in war time is growing more pronounced also, and there is the possibility that when the rank and file of the Liberal members arrive for the work of the building, but that that this did not give him concern, as many people had helped defray the cost of the building, but that the total members arrive for the which had been $19,000. that the attack of the enemy on this point failed and that he was driven back. The Germans say that they have captured the village.

London military observers, in commenting on the ending of the German advance, for the question whether the allies retain Matchin, in the Dobrudja, or give it up, is probably immaterial to the solution of the main problem, say that they expect that a great and fierce battle is about to develop on the front between the Dobrube and the Carpathians. That depends however, upon that they expect that a great and fierce battle is about to develop on the front between the Danube and the Carpathians. That depends, however, upon several equations. The Russians, with the reorganized Rumanian army, may plan to launch a speedy counter-offensive to regain western Rumania, and if they do this, they probably will begin their operations long before spring in order, to permit the resumption of their western advance with the ceming of good campaigning weather. If the Teutons expect a speedy Russian attack they may elect to try to push forward at all costs, but the further they would continue their advance eastward beyond Galatz, the longer their lines again. they may elect to try to push forward at all costs, but the further they would continue their advance eastward beyond Galatz, the longer their lines again would become and the more difficult would the country become for the transport of large armies. It is more than probable that if the signs point to a quiet winter on the present lines in Rumania the enemy will send 200,000 to round up allen enemies, and that protection was given them instead of making them declare themselves as to King Constantine has not yet yielded to the ultimatum from the allies; he doubtless expects German aid, now that the Teuton advance in Rumania has halted. The worst feature about the situation is the division in the allied councils over the matter of embarking an a Balkan expedition. One set of London papers applauds it and unduly magnifies it; another set demands instant evacuation. If such divided opinions are allowed to sway notificians, now one way and now another, the time will be spent in representation. demands instant evacuation. It such divided opinions are allowed to sway politicians, now one way and now another, the time will be spent in perpetual embarking and disembarking expeditions. It is evident that if the allies should abandon Venizelos and Greece Constantine would become more of a base that would, perhaps, even enable the enemy to cut off traffic thru the Suez Canal.

As usual these days, peace debates, mingled with stories about pending As usual these days, peace debates, mingled with stories about pending German offensives, fill the European newspapers. In regard to peace, Count Julian Andrassy, former Hungarian premier, now says either that Presient Wilson has, or is about to have, in his possession, the peace terms that the enemy is willing to offer the allies, and that if they wish to know what they are proposed to rein their energy will inform them. Thus, in their energy to rein are President Wilson will inform them. Thus, in their eagerness to gain some advantage over the allies, the Teutons are giving completely away their some advantage over the tames, the reutons are giving completely away their collusion with Mr. Wilson in the matter of sending forward his peace note. In regard to pending German offensives, the scare is being worked up, doubt-In regard to pending German onensives, the scare is being worked up, doubt-less by German agents, that a big offensive against France is again to be tried. The lesson taught the Germans at Verdun then was never learned; neither has been learned the lesson of the Somme. It does not look reasonable, however, that the foe has not had any sense knocked into him.

British operations in Mesopotamia are dogged either by extreme heat or British operations in Mesopotamia are dogged either by extreme heat or torrential rains. The factor of rain has retarded progress in the region of Kut-el-Amara, nevertheless some advances have been made in the past few days. The effect is that the British investment lines have been drawn tighter. The British object is to try to cut off the Turkish army in this region.

On the western front the chief events reported yesterday were artillery actions on both the French and British lines. The German artillery was especially busy about Souchez and the southern half of the Ypres salient yesterday morning.

By a Staff Reporter. Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 3.—That the German submarine which sank the Lusitania was justified in its action was the startling statement attributed was the startling statement attributed to A. L. Bitzer, alderman-elect, by A. B. Pollock, head of a large munition factory, today. Mr. Pollock is one of Kitchener's most prominent and successful business men and is thoroly in sympathy with the ideals and alms of the British League. To a party of newspapermen who called on him at his plant, he declared that the statement was made by Bitzer in the presence of half a dozen men

"We were discussing the sinking the ship and the campaign of fright-fulness carried on by Germany," said Mr. Poliock. "All of us spoke in the strongest terms of Germany's action but Mr. Bitzer regarded it as justifi-

"Germany was perfectly justified in sinking the Lusitania," he said, "as it had munitions of war aboard. Those women and children were to blame for their death, as they should not have gone on board the Lusitania after being warned by German Ambassador Bernstorff."

"You are perfectly sure Mr. Bitzer made that statement?" Mr. Pollock was asked. "Oh, yes, there is no doubt of that."

"Would you be willing to make affi-davit to that effect?" "I am perfectly willing to swear at any time as to the truth of that state-

Novel Methods to Secure Recruits Adopted by St. Catharines Officials.

St. Catharines, Jan. 3.-St. Catharines was today plunged into a week of recruiting in an effort to raise 250 men. for the 176th Battalion (Niagara Rangers.) The opening was marked by the ringing of the fire bell. A crowd of people rushed to the central station, where Lieut.-Col. Williams, chief recruiting officer, Pte. Sam Landers of Hamilton and Mayor Burgoyne conducted an open-air meeting, at the conclusion of which the suggestion of compulsory service was applauded. Prior to this a meeting of the re-cruiting league was held in Griffin's Family Theatre, where $200 each to the firs six recruis was offered by Dr. Jessop, M.L.A., and James D. here today on good authority that the Canadian Northern had decided not to make any application fomorrow at Ottawa before the minister of railways and canals for the approval of their plans thru Hamilton and on to St. Catharines, where they would pick up Hamilton, Jan. 3.—It was given out make any application fomorrow at Ottawa before the minister of railways and canals for the approval of their plans thru Hamilton and on to St. Catharines, where they would pick up their road from that city to Niagara Falls and thus make connection with the American railways.

It had been stated not long ago that if the hydro bylaw was defeated in Hamilton the Canadian Northern would move at once to have their plans adopted; now it has been decided to hold things over. Whether any adjustment or compromise or co-operation between Sir William Mackenzic and Sir Adam Beck is in sight no one here is able to say.

The statement in The World after the vote on election day that the Ontario government would be more concerned than apyone else in maintaining the integrity of the hydro radial railway from Toronto to Niagara River by way of Hamilton, is apparently borne out by what is already taking place, and Mr. Hearst and his collegues apparently are only too apxious to take sides with Sir Adam Beck.

anxious to take sides with Sir Adam Beck.

Only a Delay.

The net result, therefore, of the situation at the moment is that Hamilton has only delayed the building of the road that is designed to give greater service to this city than any other railing way gives to any other place in Canada; as the plans call for an elevated its liway thru the centre of the city of the highest class, with an equipment giving a faster and better service; than any yet undertaken either here or in the States. And another result is that Hamilton has got for mayor a gentleman that nobody expected would carry the vote, and who has yet to make his reputation as an administrator of municipal affairs.

Apparently T. J. Stewart, M.P., who opposed the radial proposition, and claims to have helped to defeat it, is already half sorry for his course, and is new busy explaining his reason.

Submit Bylaw Again.

All the indigations tonight are that the proposition will be again submitted to the voters of Hamilton at the earliest opportunity, and that it will carry by a great majority.

The owners of the preferred stock and bonds of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company and subsidiaries, are getting somewhat anxious as to the future; and it is now believed that they are ready to nearliest some kind of reasonable deal looking to the hydrocelectric commission, backed by the Ontario Government, taking over those.
