

FIND STUDENT SLAIN; MONEY IS UNTOUCHED

Body of Elmer C. Drewes Discovered Propped Against a Philadelphia Lamp Post.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—The body of Elmer C. Drewes, a student of Dartmouth, who left his home here on Saturday to return to college, was found with a bullet hole through the top of the head on an isolated road in the northern part of the city early on Sunday. The police believe that he was murdered. Money, bonds and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars were found untouched in his pockets. The body lay propped against a lamp post. An overcoat had been drawn over the knees and a soft hat lay in the lap. This, according to the police, clearly indicates that robbery was not the motive. Drewes was a graduate of the officers' training camp at Plattsburg and during the war acted as military instructor at Princeton University. He left Dartmouth on Friday afternoon, spent that night and Saturday morning in New York, went from New York to Atlantic City and returned from Atlantic City to his home on Saturday afternoon. Drewes told his parents that he had collected a debt of $100 from Charles Shaloss, a friend. Shaloss gave him a check for the amount, which Drewes had his father, C. T. Drewes, cash for him soon after he returned. He had dinner at home on Saturday and left the house to take a train at 9 p. m. for Hanover, N. H. The detectives have found no one who saw him alive after that.

REFUSE INQUIRY INTO REPRISALS

"Rake Ireland from End to End for Arms"

Statement by Sir Hamar Greenwood—Lord Cecil and Mr. Asquith Support Henderson's Request for Investigation.

London, Oct. 21.—The Irish debate in the house of commons last night resolved itself into a duel between the opposition and the government, the former demanding and the latter resisting an independent inquiry into the reprisals.

The defence of the government, set up by Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, was that "while the Asquithians put the emphasis on the reprisals, I put it on the provocation." He insisted that no case had been made out for what he characterized as Arthur Henderson's insulting resolution, demanding an inquiry into the reprisals by the police and soldiers in Ireland. He incidentally remarked that the United States added, could not be a party to any surrender to crime.

was no longer welcoming immigration from Ireland because it did not desire to swell the vast total of disturbing element in the republic, and he declared his intention to rake Ireland from end to end, including Ulster, in the search for arms.

Lord Robert Cecil, former assistant secretary for foreign affairs, and former premier Asquith both pressed urgently for an inquiry. Lord Robert declared that the administration in Ireland in the last eighteen months was one of the most disastrous and tactless reigns in the country's history. For the sake of the country's good name the government ought to clear themselves of the charge of connivance in the reprisals.

Mr. Asquith asserted that there was prima facie evidence that some officers and servants of the executive in Ireland had far exceeded the limits of legitimate self-defence and that until the perpetrators of the reprisals received condign punishment there would not be the shadow of respect for the authorities in Ireland.

Andrew Bonar Law, government leader in the house, based his refusal for an inquiry on the necessity of supporting the officials and others responsible for the security of law and order. He declared the authorities had condemned the reprisals, which since then had been greatly reduced. The government, he said, was not going to be bullied by a Big Dublin Raid.

Our Travelling Salesmen Enjoy Selling Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea

Travelling salesmen work very hard as a rule. They put in long hours, and the pleasure of travelling is not so great as to those of us who mostly live at home.

Naturally, therefore, these men must get a great deal of their pleasure and satisfaction from their work—they like to sell the finest of products and represent a good "house".

Our travelling salesmen are exceedingly critical of the products which they are asked to sell, and when we told them last January that we wanted them to sell a new tea of extra quality—much finer than has usually been sold in Canada—they were keenly interested, put the new tea to many tests amongst their friends, and gave it a lot of time and thought.

Having convinced themselves of the extra fine quality of Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea, they started on their trips full of enthusiasm.

Their satisfaction, however, has been much greater on their later trips, because of the splendid renewal orders which are following their first sales.

Like good merchants, our salesmen enjoy selling the very finest tea—Red Rose Orange Pekoe.

Try the tea which has met with so much success.
