T THE RECENT DRAWING ROOM HELD IN THE PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, AT OTTAWA a very charming dress worn by a St. John lady was the cause of much comment and general admiration. This dress was furnished by us and made by our dressmaker, and it is such work that we delight in undertaking. Although our work room is rushed to its limit at the present moment, we are booking orders every day for future work. Come with yours now. You can select all materials, whether in the light flimsy dainty house wear materials, or in costume goods. You will find here a large assortment. In trimmings and linings we keep everything, and you may have your goods made up on the premises by one of the best mantle makers in this city. She has proved herself such in the five years she has been in our employ.

The winter port business will close n a few weeks and naturally there is much speculation among the members of the C. P. R. Atlantic steamship staff as to just who will go west and just where they will go. When the C. P. R. took over the Elder-Dempster ousiness there were many changes and as the present season is the first complete one under the new regime there is much doubt as to what disposal will be made of the members of the staff. So far as can be ascertained, it is not West Side will be dealt with and there street. The fire started in the hay loft, ment of several of the heads of department, but none can as yet be con-

THE FATAL CARD TONIGHT. Tonight the Dailey Company produc the powerful melo-drama The Fatal Card for the first time in St. John. This piece is one of the greatest melo-dramas ever presented on the stage The story is a very strong one dra-matically, there is plenty of good comedy, and a beautiful romance running throughout the piece. There are two or three scenes in this piece that are so intense, that the audience will not even whisper while they are being acted. In the voting contest Carl Eckstroms eads with a total of 654, Miss Blancke 642: Mr. Jelenko, 554: Mr. Southern, 530 Miss Hadsell, 519; Miss Carr, 502; Little Edwina Paul, 474; Mr. Robinson, 469; Miss Townsend, 310. A number of otes have been cast for Mr. Dailey and Miss Nannery, but as neither of these popular members are in the contest, the votes are not counted.
