WANT TO MERGE LABOR AND

Unification of Two Departments Would Effect Large Saving, Say Lawmakers, and Favor Industrial

Albany, March 3.-Republicans are considering the question of establishing a State Industrial Commission to take over the work of the Workmen's Compensation Commission and the State Department of Labor. For next year these two departments have asked for appropriations aggregating $1,900,000.

Through a unification of the departments, a saving of $500,000 at the outset is anticipated and a further saving can be effected as the work is systematized, in the opinion of those who have been examining the expenditures of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, which for the present year asked for an appropriation of more than $1.100,000, and of the State Labor Department, which wants $800,000 to carry on its work next year.

The proposition to make the Departments of Labor a bureau in the office of the Secretary of State is not finding much favor. In Ohio they have an industrial commission, which administers all laws relating to labor, including the compensation law, and the plan of administration there has been a success, according to reports received in Albany.

Governor Whitman favors a unification of the State's administrative departments. It is pointed out that this would be a perfectly logical course with reference to the departments which are charged with the enforcement of the labor l the enforcement of the labor laws, and the handling of problems incidental to the State's industrial life. If the compensation and labor departments were brought under one head a great deal of duplication and overlapping of work could be eliminated and the robbins of administration would be simplified. One set of inspectors would answer all purposes and it is urged that this alone would wipe out the multiplicity of inspections that are so wearisome and annoying to the business interests of the State. The statistics and the publicity work could also be handled by many suggestions as to how best to deal with the compensation and labor departments, but the one to bring them together under the one head seems best to them to meet the most important necessity of eco-

Canada vs. Power was dismissed with costs.

Francis J. Murray, late proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel and deceased husband of respondent-plaintiff, applied for and obtained a policy of insurance for $2,000, written by company appellant-defendant. On Murray's death the company refused payment of the claim on the grounds that the insured Major-General Lessard arrived at the Ritz-Cariton had been a sufferer from gout and had falled to declare the fact when called upon, in the application Mr. George W. Fowler, M.P., arrived from Ottawa from this disease. The jury found in favor of plainto answer the specific question whether he suffered tiff and the finding was upheld in Review. From the latter judgment the insurance company appealed to the King's Bench sitting in appeal.

In answer to the question whether he suffered from gout or rheumatism, the deceased had said: "Som rheumatism years ago." He did not reply as to the gout. The proof, as summed up by Mr. Justice Carroll, speaking for his colleagues, was to the effect that Dr. Finley, who had treated deceased, had expressed this disease.
