Being Afraid to Be Happy.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"Cheer up, the best is yet to come."
 Not long ago I asked a young married friend of mine who, after a very stormy girlhood, had entered the safe harbour of a happy married life, and is the wife of a devoted husband, the mother of an adorable baby, and the mistress of an ideal little home, if she were not perfectly happy.

A swift shadow swept across her face like the brief darkening of the sun by an April cloud.

"Yes, I am," she said, "except that it seems too good to be true. I'm so happy that I'm afraid."

I think she expressed a feeling that is familiar to most of us. The fear of happiness is almost as old as the desire for it. We distrust happiness. We seem to hold our breath, as it were, lest we destroy the bubble of joy.

In "Anna of the Five Towns" Arnold Bennett says of Anna, who is so happy to find that Myrns is in love with her, that she can hardly believe in her good fortune. "Like most of us she lacked the high courage to grasp happiness boldly and without apprehension; she had not learned that nothing is too good to be true."

"I always dread to be happy," a very temperamental young girl used to say to me at college, "because I know that I'll probably be unhappy afterwards, and it's so hard to come down from the heights." I wonder how much she has fixed belief that she would have to be unhappy afterwards had in producing that result.

Is it right to feel in this way about happiness?

Is it grateful to the All-Giver to taint the happiness which he grants us by distrusting its continuance? Happiness is really the normal rather than the abnormal condition. When men and women keep themselves in touch with the laws of nature and in general live in a normal way, they have a pretty good chance for happiness. Children, who are the nearest to what God meant the race to be, are almost always happy. "Heaven lies about us in our infancy"; it is only around the growing boy that shades of the prison house of fear and distrust begin to close.

Nothing is too good to be true. Believe that and you will make it so for yourself. I cannot remember just who it was who used to say each morning, "I believe that to-day is the best day of my life," but I am sure he added much to his share of happiness by that attitude.

Now please don't say, "Oh just some more of that New Thought nonsense," and put it impatiently out of your mind.

Nothing is too good to be true. Not even that fact itself.

So cheer up, the best is yet to come.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes.

A good supper dish is made by buttering rounds of toast, then spreading sardine paste over them before the Welsh rabbit is poured on.

When a cloth dress becomes spotted, sponge it with equal parts of hot water and turpentine. Iron the parts when dry over a damp cloth.

Pieces of old kid gloves are excellent for mending the back seam of children's shoes. Sew the patch neatly on the inside of the worn place.

Chalotte russe is more appetizing and less sweet if flavored with sherry. This should be carefully stirred in, so as not to curdle the cream.

If a package of value is to be sent a great distance, it is an excellent plan to provide the box with a cover of unbleached muslin securely sewed in place.

The white of an egg beaten in lemon juice and slightly sweetened is a simple remedy for hoarseness. The mixture should be slowly dissolved in the mouth before swallowing.

To clean lacquered articles, brush with hot water and mild soap, wiping and drying before the fire and finishing with a soft cloth. Do not use alkali or soda. It will remove the lacquer.

To mend rubber use soft kid from an old glove and paste the patch to the gum with automobile paste. The leather adheres better to the gum than a gum patch.

If shelves and floors of closets are wiped with water which is hot with cayenne pepper, insects will be kept away. Borax and alum are good to put into the cracks.

To save gas, remove the tip and insert a small piece of cotton in the pipe and replace the tip. This lessens the pressure and a more even and softer light is obtained.

If you mix cornstarch in flour with sugar before adding it to your pudding, it will not be necessary to mix it with milk or water first, as is usually the method.

To keep sliced Spanish onions from falling apart, take toothpicks and stick them through each side to center, then dip in eggs and cracker crumbs and fry in batter.

When nuts have become too dry to be good, remove the shells, let stand over night in equal parts of milk and water; then dry them in the oven, and they will be fresh and good.

A delicious sandwich filling is made from one part of shredded or grated celery, with a dash of salt.

Money Matters
Worry Methodists.

Toronto, June 17.—Salaries too small, salaries so much in arrears that ministers have to run into debt, antiquated methods of raising funds, obstinate finance boards blocking progress, are some of the conditions which the ministerial salaries committee of the Methodist church reported to the conference yesterday through their chairman, J. W. Flavell. To remedy these conditions, they recommended that weekly offering envelopes be universally adopted, that the stewards on each circuit be prompt with their payments, that finance committees be established and volunteers be asked from each conference to help the ministerial salaries committee. The conference adopted the recommendation of the committee that each circuit adopt a system of weekly offerings for ministerial support and that a superintendent with staff personally canvass each adherent of the church, also, it was quoted that the minister's salary be paid in full each month, and, if necessary, arrangements made for a bank credit if funds were not to hand.

Ireland for Ever.

An American was visiting Ireland for the first time, and, staying at an hotel in Dublin, sought to startle some of his acquaintances as to the height of the buildings in New York. Several very "tall" stories had been received in silence.

One brawny Irishman stood it as long as he could, and then queried: "There are certainly big places your way, but ye haven't seen our newest hotel, have ye?"

The American superciliously grinned, but politely said that he had not. "I thought not," said the Irishman. "D'you know, man, it's so tall that we had to put the two top storeys on hinges!"

This remark was backed by several acquiescent cries from different parts of the room. The American sat up. "What for?" he asked.

"So we could let 'em down till the moon went by!" said Pat.

An Advertising Tale.

It was the usual rendezvous, the smoking-room at the Blue Dragon; and gathered together there was the usual crowd—knights of the road, all of them; and between them they "travelled" in almost every conceivable commodity, from biscuits to hairpins.

The conversation, as conversation among such men is apt to, drifted round to the subject of advertising, and wondrous, amazing tales were told concerning the gentle art of "pushing" sales before the young man from America chimed in, and capped the lot.

"It was last winter," he began, in his confident, persuasive voice, "a bitterly cold day, over in Chicago, being frozen to the marrow, I slipped into a second-hand clothes shop, and bought a muffler. As I unfolded the thing, a packet fell out, containing a photograph and a note.

"Now, that photograph was a portrait of the most beautiful girl I've ever dreamed of. Hence, since the note gave her name and address, and said, 'If you are single, please write to me,' I sent off a letter forthwith.

"Three days later I received a reply: 'Sir, the Mary Smith to whom you wrote was my grandmother. She died nine years ago, aged eighty-six. —Yours truly.'

"That dealer, you know, gentlemen," concluded the young man from America, with a wistful sigh, "never advertised. Nearly broke my heart, he did!"
