The Brush that Really Brushes

Thorough brushing requires a brush that reaches every hair and penetrates to the scalp. This is why the Pro-phy-lactic Pen-e-trator is a real brush. It does the work expected of it and does it thoroughly.

The stiff, springy bristles are set in widely separated tufts and penetrate the thickest hair. Examine this brush at any store where brushes are sold and you will see why it brushes through the hair. Sold always in the yellow box.

Gas Whole Armies.

War in which whole armies are put to sleep by gas and captured was pictured as not at all impossible by Col. F. Bacon, chief of the technical division of the United States Chemical Warfare Service, in a statement made public yesterday by the New York Chemical Society. He said also that gas offers the possibility of ideal war.

I can easily imagine, says Colonel Bacon, "the official communique of the battle of Patagonia, twenty-five years from now, which would read as follows:

"Last night at ten o'clock our airplanes sprayed over the enemy's position a new gas, soporific, which has the effect of putting a man asleep for six hours. At 1 a.m. our troops advanced into the sections held by the enemy, disarmed the sleeping enemy, and the whole army facing this sector is being sent to the rear as prisoners."

"I realize that this sounds like a fairy tale rather than a statement made with a serious purpose, but it is not beyond possibility. In fact, it is in line with the trend of research in this field."

"If the Government would efficiently spend a few millions of dollars a year on war research, methods would surely be devised which would make us absolutely safe from an attack without the necessity of maintaining such extensive army and navy organizations as at present."

"To say the use of gas in warfare must be abolished is almost the same as saying that no progress must be made in the art of warfare towards making it more efficient or more humane. If one reads of the great battles of history one will find that the victors were general conquerors because of the fact that they chose their position as to have their flank protected by river, mountain range or some naturally strong barrier."

"Much of the strategy of these battles consisted in maneuvering so as to obtain the advantage of position. With the use of gas it is possible to saturate a piece of ground so that no troops can cross it, and thus make an artificial barrier for the flank or protect the lines of communication. Moreover, these artificial barriers can be kept barriers for just as short time as the strategy of the particular battle demands. These are but hints, but show the tremendous unexplained possibilities of gas in warfare."

"Like everyone else who was on the other side, I hate war and would ardently support every possible means which would tend toward its abolition. But if we must have war, let us be prepared to wage it in the most efficient and at the same time in the most humane way."

Nicknames of Great Men

"Scold" or "Topsy" were the nicknames by which William Morris, artist, socialist and poet, was known to his friends.

Both these names were given to him by a fellow artist, Dante Gabriel Rossetti. Morris paid a visit to Iceland, and an Icelandic paper which he sent to Rossetti described him as William Morris, Scold.

Rossetti took this up and from that day forth Morris was known as the Scold, the Scandinavian name for a maker of sagas, a poet, and singer of the mighty doings of vikings and heroes. It was the robust build of the poet, his fine head, with its crown of shaggy hair, which made him sometimes called the "vikings" and also "Topsy."

Many poets seem to have had nicknames and sometimes whole schools of poetry have been nicknamed. The Lake School, for instance, comprising Wordsworth, Southey, and others, was held up to contempt by some of the critics as the "Lakers". They live in the Lake and appropriate quarter.

For poems diluted with plenty of water, Walter Scott was for years referred to as "The Great Unknown," on account of the mystery surrounding the author of the Waverley Novels. Robert Burns was familiarly known as "Rantin' Rovin' Robin," and is dear to all Scots as Robbie Burns, while the immortal bard of Stratford-on-Avon was known to his friends as "Gentle Willie."

Dr. Johnson was spoken of as "Sulky Sam," while others called him the "Great Cham of Littérature." Peel's nickname of "Spinning Jenny" was evolved from the jealousy with which aristocracy regarded the new man in politics; and to the same feeling may be assigned the "Apothecary" with which Addington was labelled in token of his father's practice in medicine.

Strange Sea-Monster Captured.

London.—A sea monster 30 feet long and weighing ten tons has been captured by fishermen off Cahretveen, County Kerry, says the Daily Chronicle. The monster has several fins and a large tail and was only captured after a six-hour struggle, during which several of the boats were upset and all the nets badly damaged.

Experts who have seen the animal say that it is impossible to classify it, but suggest it is allied to the tunny.

SUPREMACY.
Whenever a champion breaks into fame, whatever his record, whatever his game, there's one thing I know beyond shadow of doubt, if he hadn't worked they'd have weeded him out.

The road to the top is a long climb up-hill, and practice alone is the father of skill; and practice is dreary, unless hearts are stout. The lazy and shiftless are soon weeded out.

Not by chance comes achievement, and not by good luck. Is the top ever gained, but by hard work and pluck? Though a man may be gifted, the fact still remains.

Behind every leader are many who've tried. Who started out bravely and then dropped aside; The long years of practice proficiency asks. Soon send back the weaklings to commonplace tasks.

Whenever one rises to stand with the few, and is praised for the thing he has learned how to do, I know, be it trade or profession or game, if he's up at the top he has worked for his fame.

White Star Deny Olympic Is Raced.

SCORE LEVIATHAN CLAIM — LAKERS DO NOT RACE.

CHERBOURG, August 25.—(Associated Press.)—The White Star liner Olympic arrived here at 7.30 to-night, 14½ hours after the U.S. steamer Leviathan touched here on the way to Southampton.

NEW YORK, August 25.—(Associated Press.)—The White Star line issued a statement yesterday, reiterating a previous denial that its steamer the Olympic, had raced the Leviathan across the Atlantic. No captain of the line would think of racing his ship, it said.

"The White Star line admits that the Olympic is at least a knot an hour slower than the ship she is reported to have raced across the Atlantic," added the statement. "Its fastest ship, and the world's fastest, is the Majestic, which made the existing New York-Cherbourg trip in 5 days 6 hours 13 minutes without racing, or being forced. It is suggested that the beating of this record would be better evidence of speed than an imaginary race with the Olympic."

THE SHOE MEN

Household Notes.

To glaze sweet potatoes they must be first parboiled and then baked in a greased baking dish with corn syrup brown sugar, butter and a little water and occasional basting.

Hollow out ripe tomatoes and fill with a mixture of grated pineapple, tomato pulp, chopped walnut meats, a little thick mayonnaise, salt and paprika. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Salt and pepper filets of sole, lay in a well buttered pan, spread with a little chopped onion, mushrooms and parsley, top each with a small piece of butter cook and serve with a hot egg sauce.

When making a juicy pie, brush the edge of the under crust with a paste made of flour and a little water, add the upper crust, press the edges together firmly, and less good juice will escape.

For a cool fall evening a savory new England boiled dinner is excellent. Use a generous sized piece of corned beef, a small head of cabbage, a few sliced turnips and carrots, and several potatoes.

Beat until stiff one pint of heavy cream add one well-beaten egg, two-thirds cupful of powdered sugar, one-half cupful of both pineapple and cherries, cut in small pieces. Pack in mold, seal and freeze.

Endeavor to vary the way in which you serve the much-used potato. Don't always have them mashed, baked or boiled. Try stewing them in milk, first dicing and heating them in hot butter.

To make a plain frosting for coffee cakes, ginger cakes or buns, rub one cupful of powdered sugar until it is perfectly smooth, add slowly two tablespoonsful of milk or warm water and a little of any desired flavoring.

Sweet potatoes are never more delicious than when candied in a casserole.

Use one cupful of brown one-quarter cupful of water and a tablespoonful of butter to about potatoes, pared and cut in strips
